(Sidewalk T/ST-5912) 1968 R1

NB: (1) also released as Tower ST-5912 1968 R1. (1) reissued on CD (Acid Rays 5504) 2004.

This West Coast band's excellent album was co-produced by Michael Lloyd, who wrote most of the songs, and Kim Fowley. An album of mild psychedelia it contains a fair degree of orchestration and was probably influenced by The Beatles' Sgt Pepper album, released the previous summer. Some tracks, like Fogbound and Umbrella, had considerable commercial potential. Others, like Song Thru' Perception are notable for their crispy, clear vocals and October Country for some beautiful string arrangements.

The Smoke formed when Michael Lloyd met Steve and Stan through some mutual friends. They played with a few other guys as The Laughing Wind, Max Frost and The Troopers, and worked together on Michael's project as Rubber Band. Michael Lloyd had previously been working - scoring some motion pictures and producing records - with a young business executive named Mike Curb. They had met four years previously when Michael was looking for some songs for a group he was recording. Michael started to work for Mike's company (Sidewalk Productions) about 1967. Mike liked the concept and songs for The Smoke album and agreed to sign the group and release the album on his Sidewalk label.

Towards the end of the project, Michael Lloyd's old friend Jimmy Greenspoon became interested in joining the band. They had been playing together for many years in outfits such as The New Dimensions. Jimmy didn't participate in the recording, but he did appear in the pictures and album cover art! While waiting for The Smoke to be released, Jimmy was offered the opportunity to become a founding member of Three Dog Night, which he wisely seized.

After recording The Smoke album (and briefly travelling on the road with The West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band), Stan Ayeroff studied composition at the California Institute of the Arts and classical guitar at California State University Northridge. He played with Delbert and Glen (legendary R&B pioneer Delbert McClinton, who taught John Lennon how to play harmonica). In 1971, he was a founding member of Oingo Boingo, at the time, a surrealistic musical theatre group. He's gone on to write books on pioneer guitarists Django Reinhardt and Charlie Christian as well as clarinetist Benny Goodman for the Jazz Master series. He's also written six solo guitar books for Warner Bros Publications. In the late seventies he toured with Vicki Carr and Dory Previn as guitarist and arranger. Recently, he was orchestral supervisor for Rod Stewart's 1993-94 World Tour and the Page/Plant 1994-95 World Tour. In 1996 he was musical supervisor and conductor for Heart's concert video "The Road Home".

Drummer Steve Baim (aka Braim) continued to write music and poetry, and was a performance artist in 1970-71 at Fresno State College. He's currently an upscale architect and builder in Los Angeles and plays accordion and writes poetry.

In the fall of 1969 Mike Curb became President of MGM Records and Michael Lloyd (then 20 years old) Vice-President of A&R. Over the years he produced records and wrote for many television shows and motion pictures. His credits include Lou Rawls, The Osmonds, The Flying Burrito Brothers, Shaun Cassidy, Belinda Carlisle, The New Seekers, Eric Carmen, Stryper, kids songs on TV and video, the music from "Dirty Dancing", The Bellamy Brothers, Debby Boone, the late George Burns, Barry Manilow etc. and he became one of the most successful American record producers. His recordings have earned over 100 gold and platinum awards, several Grammys, Academy Awards, Dove Awards, Golden Globes and American Music Awards.

Gold Is The Summer Of Thoughts has been compiled on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD). (VJ/JM)

NB: α shown as by Little Joe and The Ramrods.

Two Norfolk, Nebraska bands, Little Joe and The Ramrods and The Strollers (no recordings), combined forces in 1965 to form the group that would eventually become known as The Smoke Ring. Originally retaining the Little Joe and The Ramrods moniker, line-up ('A') would move from the traditional "guitar-organ-bass-drum" garage band format to a larger horn-oriented band in 1967, then adopted the Smoke Ring name in 1968. It was also in 1968 that McClure and Semrad - formerly of the University Of Nebraska band J. Harrison and The Bumbles (Fremont, Nebraska's first rock band) - replaced Asmus and Schrad. Though not part of the line-up ('B') that recorded the first Buddah single, McClure and Semrad joined in time for the band to release the second Buddah single and make an appearance on "American Bandstand". Besides "Bandstand", where the group performed No Not Much, a cover of a Four Lad's tune that sold over 800,000 records for The Smoke Ring, the band also made television appearances on George Klein's local Memphis WHBQ-TV show, as well as appearances on regional rock shows in Cleveland, Boston and Los Angeles. In 1969, the band trekked to Sam Phillips' Sun Recording Studio in Memphis to record an album whose masters, according to Mike Semrad, "have never been found" (third generation copies, however, are still in the band's possession).

Appearing Tonite! - The Smoke Ring is a cassette-only release featuring both issued and otherwise unreleased material. It was released in 1995 by Ace Brothers Records and limited to 1,000 copies.

No Not Much was also released as part of Buddah's Dial-A-Hit compilation (Buddah 5039) 1969. More recently, the track has also appeared on the Complete Buddah Chart Singles, Volume II CD (Buddah 75517-49517-2) 1996. You'll also find Waiting For Love To Come My Way on Fading Yellow Vol. 6 (CD). (MDo/MSd)

	Love's The Thing/She Gives Me Love	(Dot 16975) 1966

Love's The Thing, is a superb rockin' punker with strong raucous vocals and clangourous guitars, that builds to a rave-up climax and a final breath-taking vocal 'whoop'. A true classic - play at full volume - it's guaranteed to cure head colds! The flip is a melodic pop ballad.

The band is actually East L.A.'s Romancers and these re-release singles, under a new name, resulted from a deal between the band's producer Eddie Davis and Count Five's Irwin Zucker, who thought Love's The Thing ought to be a hit and so it should have been.

A minor Los Angeles outfit whose bluesy-rock may be of interest here but who don't really fall into the psychedelic or garage genres despite Look

What You've Done, which is a powerful garagy ballad with a short but searing guitar solo.

All their records were produced by Bones Howe and four of their six singles are not on their only album, which was recorded with the help of other California musicians, including Warren Zevon and Mike Deasy. Their song Well Tuesday was used in the motion picture 'Dreams Of Glass'.

Art Guy had been in several outfits on the Strip - the Dimensions, then the Spartans (who became The Minutemen), then the New Dimensions (pre-East Side Kids) and he still found time to go solo before he joined this outfit.

Smokey and His Sister (NY)

	Lot Of Lovin/Would You Come Home	(Columbia 4-44207) 196?

Born in 1948 in Cincinnati, Smokey (real name unknown) met Dylan after a local concert in 1965 and "it just opened up his brain" according to the long liner notes to his only album. Shortly after, as with millions of other US teenagers, he began writing songs and playing guitar. In 1966, he moved to Greenwich Village with his sister Viki and their songs and harmonies scored them a contract with Columbia. Their debut single got a good review in 'Crawdaddy' and made a brief chart appearance at No. 121. They moved to Warner Bros for an album which was produced, arranged (and ruined!) by Paul Harris, a busy session man (Tom Rush, Jim and Jean). The songs are average folk-rock with male and female vocals, they were all recorded with rich strings arrangements and the album, which is now rare, is far from being collectable.

In A Dream of Silent Seas can also be heard on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 2 (CD). (SR/VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1 SMOKEY JOHN BULL (Avco Embassy AVE-33020) 1971

45: Do Me Like Like You Did Before/
Gotta Get Away (Avco 4561) 1971

A large inter-racial group with nine members, who recorded this album combining horn-rock, soul, blues and gospel rock with some psychedelic touches. Their material included covers like Dylan's The Mighty Quinn and The Byrds' He Was A Friend Of Mine plus original material. (SR)

Smokin' Willie (IN)

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (OR 006) 1994 in a numbered limited edition of 375. (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive RRCD077) 2004.

Smokin' Willie provided the tuneage for many southern Indiana high school sock hops and biker gatherings in the late sixties. Their only album was privately pressed and sank without a trace. 1,000 copies were pressed. Their fiery basement-thud approach to the hits of the day is well documented on the record, which features versions of Get Ready, A White Shade Of Pale, House Of The Rising Sun and others like you've never heard them before, plus a sizzling original Hot Blooded Mama. Smubbs was a quintet from Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, New York. Their album, recorded at Syncron Sound Studios in Wallingford, Connecticut, is mainly in a poppy soft-rock vein, although they delve into R'n'B on Momma's Blues. The highlight is undoubtedly the haunting White Paper Sail, but it's a patchy and disappointing album overall. (VJ/MW)

45s: Snail's Love Theme/When I Met You (Perfection #360) 1966

From Smyrna/Marietta in Georgia this mob were just 11-13 year olds when they started playing in 1964. They recorded their sole vinyl offering in 1966, inviting some of the neighbourhood teens into the studios by tempting them with free food. The result was far from a love theme; more a horrible noise - one of the worst records I've ever heard.

45s: You Don't Want Me/You're All Mine (Cuppy C 103) 1966
Polka Dotted Eyes/The Voice (East Coast C- 1022/3) 196?

From the Folcroft/Collingdale area of Pennsylvania, You Don't Want Me features a superb slice of Bo Diddley via the Rolling Stones fuzz-garage ala Not Fade Away. The flip is also catchy garage-beat with a cool break. Even cooler, the single was co-produced by The Magic Mushrooms' Sonny Casella, with John Grande. Polka Dotted Eyes, is a mid-slow punker with Animals/Them influences and can also be found on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD) and Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP).

The Sneakers (LA)

45: Whatcha Gonna Do/I'm Goin' Back (Hot Line 119) 1964/5

This band hailed from New Orleans. Both tracks on their sole single are heavily influenced by early Merseybeat sounds and, with a wonderfully sparse production, ooze with period charm. Not strictly garage but a good example of the U.S. response to 'the Invasion' before the advent of the fuzz-pedal. (MW)

The Sneekers (?PA)

45: Soul Sneeker/Sneaker Talk (some PS) (Columbia 4 43438) 1965

Sneaker Talk has been compiled on Quagmire Volume 8 (CD). (MW)

Previously in The Bloomsbury People, his first solo album offers a blend of strange prog-rock with offbeat lyrics, fragmented classical passages and unexpected time changes. It makes interesting listening and this is one of the very best Gear Fab reissues. Some of the keyboard segments sound similar to UK band Renaissance circa Scheherazade but without the female vocals. Based in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Snopek kept on recording during the seventies and eighties, with Major Arcana and solo.

His first solo album has been reissued on CD a couple of times. The Music Is Intelligence reissue features extra tracks with recordings from the same period plus a version of Orange Blue recorded in 1987. The Gear Fab reissue also includes the 1987 recording of Orange Blue plus Lifencave Book Two, an electronic piece recorded in 1973. (SR/VJ)

45: Where Has My Old Friend Billy Jones Gone/
Caterpillar (Epic 5 10425) 1968

From Cleveland, Ohio this band was originally known as the Muther's Oats. The awful folk-ballad Where Has My Old Friend Billy Jones Gone can be ignored here. The flip Caterpillar however is an incredibly strange slab of psych-pop which is somewhere between The Beatles' I Am The Walrus and Sweetwater's My Crystal Spider. The single is truly a relic of the era. Both sides also appear on their eponymous album, of which Catapillar and Song Of The Sirens are the stand-out tracks. The band's female singer was recruited by the record producers to change their sound.

On the album, the first three tracks are pretty bland multi-voiced folk-rock, although the short guitar incisions are promising. What follows on side one is strangely melodic acid-rock with oblique harmonies on the brilliant Engelbert and a kind of twisted Peanut Butter Conspiracy influence, with a sharp tempo change and toy-town psych on You Let Me Know. Side two is even better, starting with the piercing guitar on Song Of The Sirens, another track reminiscent of Peanut Butter Conspiracy. A coiled waltz similar to Aorta, The Flying Miraldos follows suit, whilst Sweet Dreams and Bab's Song are pompous but cultivated baroque harmony pop with lush arrangements. The venom is in the tail where the tour de force Caterpillar pulls all stops and ushers the listener through more effects and key changes in three minutes and sounds as boldly experimental today as anything from this period.

Will Ryan later recorded as Willio And Phillio in the seventies and eighties.

Compilation appearances have included: Song Of The Sirens on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD); and Where Has My Old Friend Billy Jones Gone on Rockbusters (LP). (MW/JRe/GGI/MK)

The Society from Waco, Texas produced one acid-inspired single. The second single was a demo by a much later incarnation. High And Mighty sounds like a cross between The 13th Floor Elevators and The Seeds. The flip is a weird instrumental. Sammy Piazza also played with The Chessmen and was later with Hot Tuna.

The John Hill-Don Cochrane team was responsible for his single on Cotillion and believed to have been based in New York or Philadelphia. 45: Love Her So/There Were Times (Cori CR 31008) 1966

This Massachusetts band, from Fitchburg and Leominster, formed in high school in 1965. They released just one single in 1966, but survived into the mid-eighties, performing in the central New England area. Reunited for the Dance Under The Stars benefit for the American Cancer Society in 1996, they continue to gather for an annual bash.

Love Her So is a moody garage-ballad that reaches a dramatic conclusion punctuated by some growling guitar chords. The vocals are too 'clean' and somewhat at odds with the music - they sound more like an accomplished vocal group. Still this is a single whose particular charm grows after several spins.

Love Her So can also be found on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 3 (CD). (MW)

45: Sad Now/She Played With Love (Apro 1) 1966

Here's a superb folk-rock garage-psych outing by an outfit from Mesa, Arizona who were also known as Sounds, Inc. Sad Now is a melodic garage folk-rock ballad with yearning vocals that suddenly erupts with a wonderful burst of warped off-the-wall guitar that returns to leave one stunned at the end. She Played With Love is cool Byrds garage jangle.

Compilation appearances have included: Sad Now and She Played With Love on Legend City, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and Sad Now on High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP).

Randy Wells was later in Twentieth Century Zoo; Ross Herrick would be in the folk-comedy act The Galahads; David Reedy moved onto Floyd and Jerry (& The Counterpoints). (MW/DN)

I've Been Hurt/The Price Of Loving You (123 1709) 1969

When Greg Presmanes left Atlanta's Fly-Bi-Nites in the spring of 1969, it precipitated some major changes. Freedman took over as leader and they became The Solid Soul, reflecting their switch to a funkier R&B sound. Just one single was released in the summer on the local Lovett label; it garnered enough interest to be picked up for national exposure by the Capitol subsidiary 123. (MW/RM)

Originally from Nebraska, Solomon was based in the Los Angeles area in the sixties. It is thought that he spent some time in a mental hospital, which may explain the odd character of his recordings... primitive melodies amateurishly sung against an eerie backing for the most part. His records are sought-after by collectors of the very strange. He recorded at least one further album, At The Show Biz in the late seventies which falls outside the scope of this book. (VJ)

This Hollywood, California band featured classically-trained flamenco guitarist David Allen, formerly of The Off-Beats (on Tower). He's not to be confused with Davie Allan, although this one went through plenty of outfits too. The Off-Beats changed their name to Somebody's Children and backed Mae West on her sultry saunter into the pop forum. They put out at least one single on Uptown, then two on Dagonet (as The Chyldren and then The Children), having added David's sister Angela Allen to the line-up.

The next line-up ('C') featured another lady, called Samra, and was known as The Marianne. Reportedly they released eight singles over the next two years, for Bell and EMI (Columbia and Regal Zonophone), having relocated to the UK. The next incarnation was Brave Butter, a stripped-down duo of Allen and Trerotola, who released a pair of singles (the one on Happy Tiger fetches high prices, not sure why).

Back in Los Angeles in 1970, Allen reunited with sister Angela and put together flamenco-rock band Carmen and returned to the UK (so you can read about them in 'Tapestry Of Delights Revisited'). What a journey.

I'm Going Back To New York City has been compiled on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 3 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD). (MW/VJ)

45: Alone On the Highway/I Don't Need Anybody (Cypher 103) 196?

Although the location of this band is unknown, they are thought to have come from New York or Massachusetts. The single was produced by Don Oriolo, and both sides were written by M. Papa (with D. Mullins in the case of Alone On The Highway). The flip is a bluesy ballad, whilst Alone On the Highway is similar to Steppenwolf with a heavy sound and good vocals. (SR/MW)

Trippin' Out, which relates to the influx of hallucinogenics on the high school campuses of America and some of their virtues and perils, is quite a compulsive number with an effective harmonica intro and good fuzz guitar which culminates into a psychedelic haze.

Originally known as The Hustlers, Something Wild came from Santa Maria, California and played between 1965 and early 1967. They also recorded an earlier acetate Hole In My Soul/The Blues, which was recorded at Stars International Studios in Hollywood early in 1966.

Bill Evans is still active on the local music scene, penning Rickenbacker 12-string electric material with Byrdsy licks and simple arrangements with local musicians.

Karl Gebhardt (Kal-X-Blue) had previously been in The Gremlins. Billy Payne went on to play with Little Feat.

Compilation appearances have included: Trippin' Out on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP); She's Kinda Weird on Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP); and Trippin' Out, She's Kinda Weird and Hole In Her Soul on Thirteen O'Clock Flight To Psychedelphia (CD). (VJ/MW/BEs)

From Providence, Rhode Island Sondheim was an avant-garde artist who used exotic instruments and voice fragments on his recordings. The 10 tracks on The Songs (40 minutes in all) were recorded in one take and its musical elements regularly overlap - guitars compete with dueling vocals, while sitars, recorders and kotos strangle melody lines, drowned in reverb. The multi-phonic vocal parts are the album's strangest element and overall it is certainly worth a spin. (VJ)

Tacoma, Washington was their home town and they were one of the finest punk bands to come from the Northwest in this era. The Witch was an enormous hit in the Pacific Northwest, indeed The Sonics were immensely popular there. Their follow-up Psycho was also a local hit. Most of their material was original and written by Gerry Roslie, although they also did cover versions of tracks like I'm A Man. Arguably they were left behind in the San Francisco-based rock renaissance of 1967.

Their debut album was full of power and energy. Roslie's screamed vocals and the thundering drumming of Rob Lind characterised a punk venom rarely matched in the sixties and this album included classic numbers such as The Witch, Psycho, Boss Hoss and Strychnine.

Their second album Boom sounded even tougher with highlights like Cinderella, He's Waitin', Shot Down and a frenetic version of The Kingsmen's Louie Louie.

Their third album, which was produced by Jerry Dennon, was called Introducing because it was their first on a major label. It was released when the original band was falling apart and comprises repackaged earlier hits and some later numbers. Although not of the standard of their two Etiquette albums it was still better than most releases that year. This album was later re-released in the late seventies under the title The Sonics' Original Northwest Punk. The last single recorded by the original line-up was Any Way The Wind Blows. After this members departed to go to college or join other bands - with Rob Lind being the last original to leave in 1968.

Jim Brady came in on lead vocals in 1967, from The Mercy Boys, and by 1968 was leading the band. From Love-itis onwards they perfected a new sound adding strings and horns but it didn't go down with their fans and they slowly faded out of the limelight.

The Buckshot release was a sampler of their material for Etiquette that was available via mail order ads in 'Bomp' magazine.

THE SONICS - The Sonics Boom LP.

Gerry Roslie reformed the band in 1979 with a new line-up to record Sinderella for Bomp. 1980's Unreleased was a selection of later singles and previously unreleased tracks. Fire And Ice also comprised second rate previously unreleased material. These three albums are for hardcore Sonics fans only.

Live Fanz Only features a 1966 Oregon concert on one side and a gig from 1972 on the other.

Doug Heath and Ron Foos formed The City Zu and Danny Hoeffer went on to play for Tower Of Power. Rob Lind now lives in L.A. where he is involved in the film industry. Gerry Roslie still records and writes songs today.

There have been several retrospective releases of their material. The Young Savage Sonics compiles extremely primitive recordings of the band found in an attic! The Jerden Years 1966-69 (on CD or 2-LP) includes the whole of their 1966 album and much more. Fire and Ice: Rare and Unreleased features their last known recordings from circa 1966-68. It includes the band's wild version of Zappa and The Mothers' Any Way The Wind Blows. Psycho-Sonic airs some of their best tracks from 1965.

As one would expect the band are featured on a number of compilations, including:- The Witch and Psycho on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 1 (LP); Any Way The Wind Blows and You've Got Your Head On Backwards on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (LP); High Time on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP), Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP) and History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD); Like No Other Man on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (LP); Santa Claus on Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP); Any Way The Wind Blows on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth (LP); Cinderella and Louie Louie on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 3 (LP); Boss Hoss and He's Waitin' on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP); Like No Other Man on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP); The Witch, Shot Down and The Hustler on The Northwest Rock Collection, Vol. 1 (LP); Strychnine on Born Bad (Songs The Cramps Taught Us), Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP) and Songs We Taught The Cramps (LP); The Witch on Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Louie Louie on The Best Of Louie Louie (LP); Strychnine, Psycho and The Witch on Nuggets Box (4-CD); Like No Other Man and Maintaining My Cool on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP & CD); High Time on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (LP) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); High Time and You've Got Your Head On Backwards on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 - Knock You Flat! (CD); You've Got Your Head On Backwards and Like No Other Man on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD); Cinderella, Strychnine and The Witch on Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD); He's Waitin' on Uptight Tonight (CD); I'm Going Home on The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (CD); Lost Love on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 3 (CD); You've Got Your Head On Backwards on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD); I'm Going Home on The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 4 (CD); there's a previously unreleased version of Maintaining My Cool on Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 4 (CD); The Witch, Psycho, The Hustler, Boss Hoss and a previously unreleased stereo version of Shot Down all figure on Required Etiquette (CD); and finally the instrumental rarity Goodhard Rock appears on Turds On A Bum Ride Vol. 6 (CD). The compilers of the last compilation surmise that this track is "probably" an outtake from material recorded for their third album.

Busy Body!!! Live In Tacoma 1964 gives an airing to lo-fi recordings they made at The Red Carpet and Tacoma Sports Arena. Both performances are less than 30 minutes and nowhere near as powerful as the band in the studio. There's an inevitable appearance by The Witch but this is more of historical significance.

They also contributed three tracks alongside The Wailers and The Galaxies to an early compilation Merry Christmas (Etiquette ETALB 025) 1965. The tracks were: - Santa Claus, The Village Idiot and Don't Believe In Christmas. (VJ/MW/KSI)

CD: 1 RANDY HOLDEN - EARLY WORKS '64-'66
(Captain Trip CTCD-056) 1997

EP: 1 SONS OF ADAM (Moxie 1032) 1980

Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day (Decca 31887) 1966
Feathered Fish/Baby Show The World (Alamo 5473) 1966

This was one of the best of the L.A. garage bands. All three of their singles can be heard on the Moxie Sons Of Adam retrospective, whilst Captain Trip's Early Works '64 - '66 CD includes both Decca singles and three previously unreleased cuts, Without Love, I Told You Once Before and a cover of the Zombies'. You Make Me Feel Good. Their singles were produced by Gary Usher.

Sometime in 1966, Randy Holden quit and was replaced by Craig Tarwater, who Joe Kooken and Michael Stuart spotted backing Jackie DeShannon at a club in San Jose, California.

Stuart and Holden later played for The Other Half, Michael Stuart was in Love and Tarwater later played with the The Other Half, Daily Flash, Frank Zappa, Buddy Miles and Love's Arthur Lee.

Joe Kooken later changed his name to Jack Ttanna and it was by this name that he led L.A.-based Genesis in the late sixties. He later went into a restaurant venture with Lee Michaels in Marina Del Ray, California. Craig Tarwater now lives in Walla Walla, Washington and operates a mail order business called Video School of Guitar as well as his local music store, Blue Mt. Music Inc.

Sons of Adam also played a song in the Sidney Poitier/Anne Bancroft movie 'The Slender Thread' in the scene where Anne Bancroft goes to a go-go club with her husband. The Sons of Adam are identified in the film credits, but the name of the track is not known.

Compilation appearances have included: Feathered Fish on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD), Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 6 (LP & CD); Baby Show The World on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD); Mr. You're A Better Man Than I on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day and Take My Hand on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 5 (CD); Mister You're A Better Man Than I and Baby Show The World on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP); Tomorrow's Gonna Be Another Day, Take My Hand, Mister You're A Better Man Than I, Saturday's Son and the previously unreleased Without Love, I Told You Once Before and You Make Me Feel So Good on Randy Holden: Early Works '64-'66 (CD); and, finally Saturday's Son figures on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/CTr/RR/JRo/MW)

Here's some wacky psychedelia from Port Arthur in Texas. It certainly sounds like it's recorded in someone's garage. Worth checking out if you're into light-hearted psychedelia.

(4) was a private pressing produced by the band themselves, made up of live tapes from the era. This album was issued with no song titles on the cover or labels, leading to speculation that an insert must exist, but none has materialised. It was reissued on vinyl (w/two inserts) (CFS 2126) 1993. The trail-off on the reissue contains the number L-41076. (4) reissued on CD (Acadia ACA 8007) 2001.

There are also a couple of recommended compilations. Marin County Sunshine (Decal LIK 21) 1988, contains material from their first three albums, whilst Fat City is a good CD collection of the band's pre-Capitol recordings (Big Beat CDWIKD 188) 1999. The band recorded three further albums: Circle Filled With Love (Ariola) 1976; Loving Is Why (Ariola) 1977 and Sons Of Champlin Live (Grateful Dead Records) 1998.

One of San Francisco's most durable 'second division' bands The Sons Of Champlin were clearly a product of the city's drug culture. They formed in the autumn of 1965 out of the ashes of The Masterbeats (who had included Champlin, Haggerty and Caine) and the Opposite Six. After a debut gig at The College Of Marin they soon built up a strong 'live' reputation. They recorded a number of tracks during 1966-7, but only one single was ever released on Verve. In 1967, Myers left and was replaced by Bill Bowen from Electric Train. They signed to Capitol in 1969.

Their debut double album Loosen Up - Naturally successfully captures their live sound. By this time Myers had left the band to join the army and Jim Beem had also left. Essentially a loose jazz and drug influenced band, commercial success eluded them. Later in 1969 they changed their name to The Sons and their second album saw a return of Jim Beem on trumpet.

Like so many Bay Area bands they split up in 1970, only to reform before the year was through, minus Caine. This format issued their third album which is worth a listen. However, further splits began to emerge and since their album sold badly Capitol dropped the band. After issuing Minus Seeds And Stems themselves they changed name to Yogi Phlegm for a while but entered a dormant spell on the recording front. They did, however, appear on the penultimate night of the closure of The Fillmore West on 3rd July 1971. They re-emerged with an album on Columbia in 1973 and thereafter playing a sort of funky style soul, recorded an album on their own Goldmine label. This was reissued by Ariola and several more albums followed for that label, which are outside the scope of this book.

Bill Champlin went on to record solo albums in 1978 and 1982, before joining Chicago later that year. In 2000, he sang on Who Said a track on Los Angeles based guitarist Marino's album. Tim Caine played with Good Dog Banned after he left The Sons Of Champlin. Mark Isham is now a music arranger for the film industry and has scored music a number of movies.

The band reunited in 1997 and subsequently released two live recordings; Sons Of Champlin LIVE (1998) and Hip Li'l Dream (2002).

The Big Beat CD, part of Alec Palao's 'Nuggets From The Golden State' series, collects 20 tracks from their 1966 Trident recordings - only the debut single was released at the time. This pre-Capitol period displays their initial pop influences - smooth harmony-pop, folk-rock, R&B and soul are prevalent but there's some good punky fuzz-pop too. The collection highlights their attention to, and competence in, harmonies and background vocal arrangements. The songs are nearly all originals. Just three covers appear apart from Sing Me A Rainbow - The Beau Brummels' Don't Talk To Strangers, Mann/Weils' Shades Of Grey and Paul Simon's I Wish You Could Be Here, later covered by the Cyrkle.

Sing Me A Rainbow, Go And Hide and Shades Of Grey (with alternative backing) have all been compiled on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD); and Fat City and 1982-A both get an airing on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). (VJ/MW/CF/AP/CK/BHe)

It Won't Rain On Me is a crudely recorded and insistent keyboard-dominated ditty. It makes up for its lack of polish with a naive charm that belies its release date. It's featured on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD) who've tracked the band down to Wyandotte, Michigan. (MW/RM)

45: Love Babe/There's A Little Girl (Gateway AIP 1058) 1967

Formed by students at West Liberty State College, hence their name, this band was based in Wellsburg, West Virginia and played throughout the tri-state area.

In 1967 they won a contract with Kapp after teaming up with two girl singers, Nancy Petit and Melanie Ross, to become Eighth Day. However it was a short-lived venture for most of the boys. Part-way through the album recording sessions in New York City, all Sons Of Liberty members (line-up 'A') departed, with the exception of Brandolino. The girls stayed put too. The departees were replaced en bloc by The Opus IV from Steubenville, Ohio.

Confusingly the picture sleeve of The Eighth Day's Hey Boy! single featured a picture of the original band but was performed by the Opus IV line-up. The Eighth Day album sleeve pictured the latter line-up although six of the 10 tracks were by the original group.

Meanwhile the ditched members of The Sons Of Liberty regrouped and, with new recruit Gregg Gorby on drums, put out their own (and only) single on the Gateway label.

DeFede later worked at Sears before starting his own business, Technimedia Studios, based in Jewett, Ohio. (MW)

Tossin' And Turnin' (Sonic 826A 2746) 1968

This Rhinelander, Wisconsin outfit released a fragmented fuzz-psych rework of Tim Rose's Morning Dew. The flip sounds like a much earlier effort - an almost frat-style Tossin' And Turnin'.

Rich Smith also played in a band called Screamin Bob. (MW/JSh)

2 DAY FOLLOWS NIGHT (Bronte 1001) 1972
3 LIVE AT VIRGINIA BEACH (Bronte 1002) 1973

These albums were recorded by an obscure Christian folk-rock group from Maryland comprising three girls and two men, with guitar and organ. The first album is housed in a nice sleeve and is notable for three excellent cuts on side two that feature raga guitar and psych effects. (SR/VJ)

45s: I Don't Know/Please, Don't Be Mad (PS) (Acropolis 6601) 1966
Black Nor Blue/Do You Need Me? (PS) (Acropolis 6612) 1966

Previously known as The Statesmen, this five-piece hailed from Greeley near Denver in Colorado. They recorded for the obscure Acropolis label, which only had three releases and was owned by a Kansas University student who it was later discovered was an older brother of one of the band. Both their singles came in picture sleeves. The first one I Don't Know, released in early 1966, made quite an impression locally and resulted in them getting quite a lot of touring engagements around the Midwest. Essentially it was in the folk-rock mould, whilst the second has a more 'garage' edge.

One of the former members is now dead and another became a jazz musician.

Sopwith Camel formed in San Francisco in 1965. Although Kama Sutra tried to portray them as a 'good-time' band, they also gained the reputation as a good live act which placed emphasis on guitar work. This dual-identity is also in evidence on their 1967 album; although the bulk of the material follows Kama Sutra's obvious intention to turn the Sopwith Camel into a West Coast Lovin' Spoonful, tracks like the ethereal, classically-influenced Maybe In A Dream and the raucous Cellophane Woman are quintessentially San Francisco underground. This album was later reissued in 1973 as Hello Hello.

SOPWITH CAMEL
THE MIRACULOUS HUMP RETURNS FROM THE MOON

SOPWITH CAMEL - The Miraculous Hump Returns... LP.

Their second and final album was a vast improvement on their earlier work. Many of the tracks, notably Sleazy Street and Coke, Suede and Waterbeds had a distinctly jazzy influence, whilst Orange Peel had some stand-out flute playing and Dancin' Wizard was a slower, Eastern-influenced number. The strongest track, however, was probably Fazon - the opening cut - which typified the soothing, laid-back sound for which The Sopwith Camel had become known by the early seventies.

Rod Albin, who had been in their pre-album line-up had earlier played for Liberty Hill Aristocrats. He left before the album to join Roadhog, and Kasten also departed to Joy Of Cooking. Norman Mayell went on to play for Norman Greenbaum and Blue Cheer. William Sievers later recorded as William Truckaway.

In 2001, the band's drummer Norm Mayell reissued Miraculous Hump on CD.

Hello Hello is included on Incense And Oldies (LP) (a budget sixties pop compilation which is nowhere near as good as the title suggests) and on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book). You can also find Frantic Desolation on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD) and There's Still Time (a previously unreleased demo) was on Timemazine #1 (CD), which came free with the fanzine. 45s:	My Conscience Is Dead/Macks Jazz	(Cold Wart 68)	1970
	If You Could Read Me/ Life's Short Span (Part II)	(Cold Wart 78)	197?

From Grand Rapids, Michigan this band formed in 1969. Michael Manion recalls: - "We formed just after I had returned from a concert tour of Europe with the American Youth Symphony. I had been in a couple of other bands with Hoffmeyer before. He knew Sorensen and Bolson, and that's how we got together. It was a somewhat unusual band for that area, in that we did almost exclusively original material, written by Sorensen. Since we didn't do covers, or not many, we were not a bar band, and so had trouble getting gigs. But there were some locals DJs, such as Johnny Mack (Macks' Jazz) and Jay Walker, that were supportive. As was studio owner and producer Phil Roberts, who was in a well-known group in that area called The Kingtones. We were pretty loud for the time, having large "Kustom" amplifiers - the ones covered in padded naugahide, and I played a large, double bass drum set, a la Ginger Baker."

"We never really broke up, but sort of fizzled. I think that Hoffmeyer and Sorensen are still in the Grand Rapids area. I've heard that Hoffmeyer is in the health care field, and Sorensen is directing a chorus. I think Bolson was studying to be a lawyer. I was, even then, getting into 'New Music'; Feldman, Stockhausen, Cage, etc. and I am a composer. I moved to Cologne after grad school and lived there for most of the eighties, worked for Stockhausen for a while. I lived in London for a few months, on Highbury Hill, just down the road from the Arsenal. Now I'm dividing my time between southern California and Europe, I also continue to perform, now New Music on electronic percussion. But I just bought a really cool set of vintage Slingerlands..."

In addition to the two singles, the band also recorded an album, the master tapes for which were lost by Roy Sorensen on a trip to L.A.

If You Could Read Me can also be heard on Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW/MMa)

Hey Jim is a tribute to Hendrix following his death and is actually a medley of Hey Joe and Purple Haze with amended lyrics. To The Woods is also a hefty fuzz-rocker. Both sides are credited to M. Eulberg and were recorded in St. Louis, Missouri. The single is thought to date from around 1971. 7 And 7 Is/Petals (Mala 596) 1968

Formed in 1966 in Grand Rapids, Michigan by best friends Aris Hampers and Jeff Boughner, their first gig line-up included classmate Del Mayer and a friend from Ottawa on drums, Steve Johnson. By 1967 Del Mayer had been replaced by Dick Steimle, a talented guitarist from another local band whom Hampers had approached after seeing him play. Dick Steimle joined them from rival Grand Rapids outfit The Barons who'd put out one single - Try A Love With Me/Don't Come Back No More (Jafes 985) in 1965.

They were just starting to get popular locally when they spotted an ad for a 'Battle Of The Bands' that would culminate in a National finals. They entered and also won the State finals held on their home-turf in Grand Rapids.

So, in 1967, The Soulbenders made it to the grand final of a nationwide 'Battle Of The Band's competition held in Braintree, Massachusetts which was recorded for posterity on Battle Of The Bands - Ridge Arena, issued as both a double album and triple album set on the Normandy label. Bands that placed outside the top three only got one track apiece preserved on vinyl but The Soulbenders' rendition of House Of The Rising Sun is one of the highlights, from our biased viewpoint. The Gents from Provo, Utah won top honours and have six tracks preserved, second and third (Action Brass and Tony's Tygers) have two tracks apiece.

Aris Hampers recalls that they shared a table with The Gents, who lived up to their name and got on really well with them. He was knocked out by their switch to classical sounds (Moonlight Sonata) which obviously impressed the judges. He found out afterwards that The Soulbenders had placed fifth - quite an achievement.

Encouraged, the band returned to Grand Rapids and recorded their first single. Hey Joe went to the top of the local charts, staying at No. 1 on WLAV for six weeks before being toppled by the Beatles. Three months later they put out their follow-up, a cover of Love's 7 And 7 Is. It was doing well locally when Bell Records' president happened to be in town, heard it, and signed the band up for the single with an option of more if it sold well. It did do well in several places but not enough to dent the national charts, so the option was dropped.

As the band prepared for the next single, its members started to leave. In the end it was back to the duo of Hampers and Boughner. Time for a change - they recruited new members and became Phlegethon, who released two singles on the Pre-Heat label. A third world loan is required to obtain any of their original vinyl! Luckily Aris has combed the archives of both bands and released the CDs listed above, accompanied by a hefty booklet detailing the bands' histories and material.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Hey Joe on Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP) and Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); Seven And Seven Is on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD), Relics, Vol. 1 (LP), Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Sixties Archive, Vol. 7 (CD), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & CD) and Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD); House Of The Rising Sun on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 11 (LP) and Battle Of The Bands (LP); and Hey Joe, I Can't Believe In Love, 7 And 7 Is and Petals all figure on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). Hey Joe also turned up on a sixties radio station EP, WLAV Memory Pack Vol. 1. The Souldiers (?FL)

45: Lemon Sun/Would You Kiss Me (Boss 007) 1967

The Souldiers are thought to be from the Tampa/St.Petersburg area of Florida. Jeff Lemlich, author of the indispensable Florida tome 'Savage Lost', has a possible clue in the form of a band business card where the name "The Blues Syndicate" has been amended to "The Soul Jers". The contact name is Bob Conn; can anyone shed any light on this?

Would You Kiss Me, a Lewis/Swilley composition with lilting lead guitar and Four Season harmonies, can be found on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD).

For more on the sixties Florida scene, pick up Jeff Lemlich's 1992 book 'Savage Lost' (Distinctive Publishing, ISBN 0-942963-12-1). (MW)

This Biloxi, Mississippi outfit featured Craig Ferguson, who was later in Flower Power.

Both sides of this atmospheric garage-psych single also appear on Psychedelic States: Mississippi (CD). (MW)

45: I Can't See You/Big Boss Man (Dater DT-1301) 1966

From Reading, Pennsylvania this band was originally known as The Starlites with two singles on Barclay. At the suggestion of their producer they changed name to The Soul Generation for their third single and recorded a different version of I Can't See You (which has been The Starlites' second single and a local hit). This later version, notable for its piercing organ 'wall of sound', can also be heard on the Crude PA, Vol. 1 (LP) compilation. After this they changed name again to Beatin' Path recording the classic Original Nothing People single. (VJ)

NB: α was put out by the Southern Star Meat Co. and the 45 was redeemable via coupons in packets of their Southern Star Weiners.

Probably because of their moniker, this excellent Louisville, Kentucky outfit has been criminally overlooked - we'll try to set the record straight. Although the first single features the depressing brassy ballad Don't You Go, flip it over for a wild'n'raucous frat dance number with strangely distorted vocals, scorching guitar and a drum solo, later covered by Us Four and The Dawnbreakers. Changes were in the wind and the second line-up came to force in 1966. Despite the tendency for vocals with a soulful tinge they would produce some sounds worthy of your attention. Stronger Than Dirt is a moody punk version with fuzz and backward guitar effects, whilst the flip 60 Miles High is a mid-tempo folk-punker with a laid-back but rough-edged feel. Love Me When I'm Down is a tough belter with commercial potential but still it retains garagy sensibilities with raw guitar interludes. Frank Bugbee's I Belong To Nobody is a softer melodic pop ballad which signalled the end of their peak (so far as this book is concerned), although it was a regional hit that year, and led to them touring with the "Dick Clark Caravan of Stars". Bugbee would later depart with Maxwell and Settle to form the Elysian Field and he was subsequently in a studio outfit Friendly Room.

Although Soul Inc. had temporarily petered out by the end of the decade, some members are still going strong performing and recording to this day as the Shufflin' Grandads including a CD Southern Fried.

Compilation appearances have so far included: The Leaves Of Grass on Destination Frantic! (CD); 60 Miles High on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP) and Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); Stronger Than Dirt on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD); Love Me When I'm Down on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP); and I Belong To Nobody on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD).

45: Ode To A Girl/Work It On Out (Trepur 1019) 1966

This quartet from Pine Mountain and West Point, Georgia had formed in 1962 as The Continentals. They switched name circa 1965 to reflect their predilection for soul and R&B sounds. Recorded at Lefevre Studios in Atlanta, Ode To A Girl is a reedy garage ballad with sultry harmonies and appears on the compilation Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD).

Prior to their dissolution in the summer of 1966 they were known briefly as The Buckinghams, before the Chicago act came to prominence. Larry Bowie was later in The Rock Garden and would eventually become a producer, songwriter and publisher in Atlanta. (MW/RM)

ALBUM: 1 AT THE CELLAR (Emblem) 1967 R2

Out of South Carolina on a tiny private press label came this white group with a great soul sound and a strong Northern soul dancer influence. From Little Rock, Arkansas this single is highly prized since Psychedelic Cycle reappeared on Sixties Rebellion Vol. 11: Hydrogen Atom (LP & CD), Brain Shadows II (LP) and Lost Souls Volume 1 (CD). The liners on the latter and the CD cover photo inform us that the band was actually The Sole Society but they suffered the indignity of being mis-spelt on their single. (MW)

This New Orleans outfit was clearly fans of Arthur Lee's Love. Their version of 7 And 7 Is from November 1967 is certainly different from Love's, much more aggressive and punkish. The flip side is Lee's Signed D.C., which the band have put to different lyrics and claimed the credit for. Actually it's pretty stunning stuff, very laid-back and trippy with some lovely flute.

Can't Go On and 7 And 7 Is can also be found on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 8: Love Covers (LP & CD), Louisiana Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archive Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/AB)

Vocalists Kenneth Jeremiah, Richard Ingui and Charles Ingui were a New York-based singing group, the Dedications, prior to adding backing musicians Paul Venturini (organ), Edward Leonetti (guitar) and Joey Forgione (drums). The sextet took the name the Soul Survivors in 1966 and enjoyed a US Top 5 hit the following year with Expressway To Your Heart. This all-white group was produced by the emergent Gamble And Huff team, but subsequent releases, including the similar-sounding Explosion In Your Soul, were less successful and they split up.

Their second album was recorded partly in Alabama in the Fame Studios and co-produced by Rick Hall. There have been rumours that Duane Allman played on it but Rick Hall denied them. The other tracks were produced by the Philly Soul specialists Gamble and Huff. Housed in a nice cover, it's quite patchy and the horn arrangements definitely belong to soul music. Their third album was totally soul-oriented.

The Ingui brothers resurrected the name during the seventies, but despite signing to their former mentor's TSOP label, were unable to rekindle their former profile. Kenny Jeremiah later played with Scorpion and then joined Shirley Goodman in Shirley & Company. Chuck Trois formed his own group and went on to play for Amazing Maze, Great Train Robbery and 1910 Fruitgum Co., and both Venturini and Leonetti went on to form Privilege in 1973. Charles Ingui is still touring and recording. (VJ/SB/SR/BR/PC/MW)

45:	Devil With A Blue Dress On/ Shakin' With Linda	(Decca 32080) 1966

This Soul Survivors was from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Their Shakin' With Linda was a fine dance number and was also reputedly a 'cold turkey' report.

	Hung Up On Losing/Snow Man	(Dot 16830) 1966

These singles were the work of a different outfit from Denver. Bob Webber went on to join The Moonrakers, Kemp and Shanahan headed for L.A. in 1966 where together with Randy Meisner and Randy Naylor they formed The Poor and produced four fine singles between 1966 and 1968. Naylor later got into country and western and Meisner joined The Eagles. Kemp and Shanahan went on to become part of Rick Nelson's Stone Canyon Band.

Compilation appearances include: Can't Stand To Be In Love With You on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 3 (LP & CD); and Can't Stand To Be In Love With You, Look At Me, Hung Up On Losin' and Snow Man on Poor 'The Poor' (CD). (VJ/MW)

45s:	Baby I Don't Know/Rain Down Soul	(Bay Town BT005/6) 1968

For some reason this Hayward, California band are billed as The SoultAns on Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), which features their funereal punk ballad Rain Down Soul. The compilers make amends by nailing the perfect description to it - the Animals' House Of The Rising Sun meets Love's Signed D.C. Rain Down Soul can also be heard on Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD). (MW)

45:	King Bee/Girl Of Mine	(Providence 415) 1966

From Tampa, Florida The Soul Trippers were previously known as The Outsiders, but when they changed labels to Laurie subsidiary Providence, they were persuaded to change their name in order to avoid confusion with the Outsiders from Ohio.

Their rootsy blues-punk take of James Moore's (I'm A) King Bee is so cool and convincing that it shifted 20,000 copies before it was discovered they were a white band, which resulted in it getting pulled from local radio station playlists. So how good was it? Judge for yourself - it has reappeared on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD).

The band would evolve into Noah's Ark. Buddy Richardson would form White Witch who released several singles and two albums on Capricorn in the early seventies.

John DeLise also played in Those Five and The Rovin' Flames. (GGI/MW/SR/JLh/RM)

45:	Respect/Exit	(Head 1001) 196?

45:	One (Dream On)/Travel Agent Man	(Black & Blue BB-901) 1969

Travel Agent Man is excellent, hard fuzz-rock and has proved enduringly popular with compilers on The Essential Pebbles Collection Volume Two (2-CD), A Fistful Of Fuzz (CD) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD).

Produced and written by Lemuel Harris and Rick Dee, it was the flip side of their May 1969 release on a Camden, New Jersey label. According to Mike Markesich the band played a couple of gigs with Mandrake Memorial. (MW)

	I Can't Explain/Greasy Heart (PS)	(United Audio 904111) 1969

Salem, Ohio's (My) Baby's Gone has an unusual fuzztone intro but then degenerates into a routine, if rather meaty, punker. The flip is a pounding frat rocker with a continuous Strangeloves' style beat throughout. The best thing about this quintet's second effort was the picture sleeve it came in picturing the band in paisley-style mod outfits. The vinyl consisted of disappointing covers of The Who's I Can't Explain and Jefferson Airplane's Greasy Heart.

Compilation appearances include: Hey Hey on Off The Wall Vol. II - Skeletons In The Closet (LP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 10 (LP & CD) and Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP); and (My) Baby's Gone on Pebbles Vol. 8 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 5 (CD) and Garage Monsters (LP). (VJ/MW/GGI)

Ear-Piercing Punk (LP & CD) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD) include I Feel Like Crying. (GG/MW)

45: Magic Carpet Ride/Morning Dew (Smobro 401) 1969

This multi-racial pop-rock sextet with a horn section is notable for the long instrumental Soul Foundation but also for bubblegum covers of Steppenwolf and Bonnie Dobson songs.

Smobro was a short-lived label set up by The Smothers Brothers, which was distributed by Buddah. Their only other release seems to have been the Two Brothers' single. They were later known as Rockin' Horse. (SR)

45: Gotta Ease My Mind/Spanish Flash (Canterbury C 511) 1967

A Los Angeles combo Sound Machine included ex-Rising Sons member Gary Marker. Their sole single has a cool jazzy vibe that permeates throughout, making them sound not too dissimilar to Ed Cassidy's Spirit in their more laid-back jazzy moments. It's neither garage nor psych, just a cool West Coast breeze.

Gary Marker recalls working with Sound Machine on and off for about a year, but was surprised to learn that anything had been released... Marker has also confirmed that Ed Cassidy (also with the Rising Sons) was a member of this band at one point.

Bill Wolff later joined the Peanut Butter Conspiracy for their second album The Great Conspiracy, and went on to Fusion with Gary Marker. In 1972 Wolff turned up again with Jesse, Wolff and Whings. (MW/SR)

Sound Machine (MA)

45: In The Night/Backroads Of Your Mind (Fleetwood FL 4599) 1968

On the other coast another Sound Machine was active in Revere, Massachusetts. Like their Californian cousins they produced just one single. In The Night is their own unique take ("take one" if the count-in is to be believed) of the Strangeloves' Night Time with chugging rhythm guitar behind a muted lead but with liberal use of wah-wah. The flip is odd - a volcanic explosion followed by an off-kilter, environmentally-fuelled folk-rocker which sounds familiar, so is probably another "rework". (MW)

NB: both sides taken from the album.

Another project of Paul Beaver (from Beaver and Krause) from Los Angeles, Sound Of Feeling features electronic sounds, moog and harmonious female/male vocals. The recordings encompass radical interpretations of standards by artists such as Donovan (Hurdy Gurdy Man) and Paul Simon (The Sound Of Silence), as well as some fine self-penned numbers (like Hex and Up Into Silence) and settings of well known poems. This demanding avant-garde vocal pop album that also touched on jazz and psychedelia should appeal to fans of experimental music and pop, but will be considered an acquired taste by many.

Up Into Silence compiles their complete works. This CD release on Sunbeam comes complete with a booklet featuring rare photographs, detailed notes by Gary David and five previously unheard bonus tracks from 1971. (SR/SBn/VJ)

From the LaSalle/Peru area of Illinois, this band's sound doesn't live up to their name. They don't appear to have released any singles but contributed two cuts to the 1968 Illinois sampler A Psychedelic Six-Pack Of Sound (LP). I Don't Need You and I Can't See You are fragile folk-rockers which look back to the 1965 sound of the Searchers and Beau Brummels.

A New York City outfit whose Strawberry Pie Lounge is a catchy slice of bubblegum with nonsensical lyrics, elevated into psych territory by some reverb-fuzz'n'effects, and served up on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). The flip is a laboured harmony-pop ballad. (MW)

The Sound Sandwich (CA)

45s:	Apothecary Dream/Zig Zag News	(Viva 615) 1967
	Tow Away/Mister Sunshine Man	(Viva 625) 1968

The Sound Sandwich was a psychedelic outfit from Los Angeles. Apothecary Dream, is a well-produced slice of psychedelia with some fine fuzztone guitar, a hypnotic two note organ sound and crystal clear vocals which implore the audience to 'escape into a dream...'. Zig Zag News is a punky popper that starts slowly, accelerates to double-quick time for a rousing chorus with a crescendo of pizzicato guitar, then repeats the formula once more. Tow Away is rather messy pop with too many time changes but has a good chaotic guitar break; Mister Sunshine Man is a sentimental harmony-pop ballad. All four cuts were written by Johnny Cole and produced by Cole and Gil Garfield for Snuff Garrett Productions.

Compilation appearances include: Apothecary Dream on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (2 x 7"), 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Zig Zag News on The Lost Generation 3 (LP); and Apothecary Dream, Ain't It Hard and Tow Away on Ain't It Hard (CD). ALBUM: 1(B)	SHOUT	(Phalanx PH-001) 1966 R2

NB: (1) limited to 1,000 copies. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-170) 2001, with 15 bonus tracks by The Ramrods.

Kalamazoo, Michigan's Soundsations were formed at the start of 1966 by the mass exodus of Stevens, Hey, Boggs and Clelland from The Ramrods. They'd just started a long-term residency at the Colony Room in Kalamazoo when Bob Hey got his draft notice - his replacement was Dexter Bell. The local Phalanx label approached the band to do a live party album featuring favourite covers (Unchained Melody, Johnny B.Goode, Shout, Midnight Hour...) and a Boggs original Moody Love. The final cut is a five-minute handclappin' rave-up version of Shout which soon breaks into a rampaging drum solo/party accompanied by screams and squeals. 1,000 copies were pressed up and sold by the band at gigs who continued on the club circuit, with no further releases, until it all ended in a bust-up between Boggs and Cordle in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Boggs recorded several country CDs and is occasionally joined in performances by Patsy Stevens. Clelland played drums full-time until the mid-nineties. Bob Hey returned from Vietnam and moved to Goshen, Indiana. Dexter Bell also got the call but did not make it back; the Gear Fab CD is dedicated to his memory. (MW/RM/CF)

Fronted by Philip Jackson this teen band was based in St. Joseph, Missouri. Jackson wrote Slimy Sue, a crudely recorded teen ditty, which can be heard on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. IV (LP). However, arguably he went on to better things as a member of the Jefferson Airplane-influenced White Eyes and the country-rockers White Rock Prairie Band. He also performed in a duo with his wife and as a solo folkie. (VJ/MW)

This Chicago-based soul-pop band featured Joey Stec, prior to his move to L.A. The first single is pleasant L.A. harmony pop - the later ones go into a soulful ballad direction. Walkin' Out On You was written by Joey Stec, who'd team up with Curt Boettcher and ex-Music Machine members in super harmony pop-psych outfit Millennium. Mainly soulful beat or ballads, some described as "Gulf sound", he occasionally poked his head into garage territory....

45:	To Understand Mankind/Sold-Out Show	(Bow Mar 1001) 1969

This obscure band recorded a great single in August 1969. Written by V. Collins and M. Bowden, To Understand Mankind is an anti-war protest song with Byrds-like harmony vocals on the chorus, phased acid lead guitar and wild rolling drumming. The flip is mid-tempo, mostly notable for the active drumming. It was produced by M. Collins and Bowie Martin, the owner of this small label based in Wilson, North Carolina.

You'll also find To Understand Mankind on Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD). (VJ/SR/RD/MW)

Sounds Of Us was a clubby band from the Ottawa/Marseilles area of Illinois. All they left behind are two cuts on the 1968 Illinois sampler A Psychedelic Six-Pack of Sound (LP), which features five other local outfits doing two tracks each - Coming Generation, Eighth Day, Mavricks, Rising Tides and Sound Of Fury.

Despite the title, most of the material featured is in no way psychedelic or even garagy - this bunch's True is a very pedestrian sax-led lounge instrumental, whilst What Would You Say is tame beat-pop. (MW)

45:	Babylon/Tensions	(Wall Productions 2043) c1969

What was it about Michigan from 1967 and into the early seventies? Some strange heady chemical fumes permeating the atmosphere up there? There seems to have been more heavy bands per square mile than anywhere else, blasting out mind-numbingly hard, wasted, fuzzed-out acid-rock. This has spawned a coterie of super-specialised collectors (in addition to the Fenton fanatics) who don't even blink when shelling out hundreds of bucks for one hitherto-unknown single, while mere-mortal collectors can only drool or pick their jaws up off the floor. Here's another such single, from an unheralded Flint outfit. Their barnstorming rendition of Blue Cheer's classic cruncher, Babylon, has been unearthed on For A Few Fuzz Guitars More (CD). Tensions has more of a Hendrix vibe, and had already graced the preceding volume, A Fistfull Of Fuzz (CD). EP: 1 SOUNDS '66 (Sundazed SEP 104) 1992

NB: (1) contains She, You Did It Before, Gotta Get Away and Our Love Is Gone, which were recorded in 1966 before they signed with Dunwich.

45: Little Brother/A Girl As Sweet As You (Dunwich 157) 1967

This was a different outfit which formed in Indiana in 1966 but relocated up to Chicago the same year. Their music and stage act were strongly Anglophile - they regularly smashed their instruments! However, the flip to their Dunwich single was in the Harpers Bizarre style, and this can also be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP). An excellent unreleased version of Blues Magoos' Gotta Get Away has lately appeared on the compilation Oh Yeah! The Best Of Dunwich Records (CD), as well as A Girl As Sweet As You. Gotta Get Away was part of a session arranged at Philadelphia's Cameo-Parkway Studios by Columbia-Screen Gems intended as an audition for 'The Monkees' by line-up 'A'. Several months later Terry Talbot replaced Brandt when he was injured in a motorcycle accident and John Talbot came in for Mahlke who quit for college. Steve Foster switched to bass in this line-up (B), which recorded the Dunwich single. They evolved into Mason Proffit in 1969 and proceeded to release half a dozen albums and a similar number of singles in the seventies.

The Sundazed retrospective EP contains material they recorded prior to signing to Dunwich, of which only She was previously released. Another unreleased cut You're Gonna Lose That Girl has also resurfaced on If You're Ready - The Best Of Dunwich... Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ)

The catchy Borkan-composed pop-punker Nobody But You is to be found on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD) and on Gravel Volume 2 (CD). Why Doesn't She Believe Me has also turned up on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP) and Grains Of Time (CD).

45: Take A Look At Yourself/Serenade (Romat PSS No.1001) 1967

Obscure combo Sound System recorded this single in Greenville, North Carolina. Take A Look At Yourself is typical garage psychedelia with lots of fuzz and organ.

Some members went to school with Ed Truman (from Raleigh's Marke V), and later played in a group with Lynn Jenkins.

You can also hear Take A Look At Yourself on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP) and A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD).

There's another Sound System single, with two purty good soul-garage covers, which may or may not be by this band - Love Is A Beautiful Thing/You Don't Know (Worldwide 6767), from circa 1967. Unfortunately the labels yield no clues or credits. (MW/ET)

45s: Mister Sun/In Paradise (Liquid Stereo LS-25) c1967
It's Snowing/She Knows (Ridon 857) 1968

Portland, Oregon's Sound Vendor was formed in 1967 when Mr. Lucky and The Gamblers fragmented - all five had been in that outfit. Maitland and Gunter had originally been in the Stingrays, and with Graziano in the Rogues, before merging with the Gamblers. Jim Dunlap was previously with Gentleman Jim and The Horsemen.

Mister Sun is a wonderfully weird and brash Anglophile psychedelic ditty. Imagine a cross between psych-era Who and The Move and stick a minute of glorious effects on the end - modern psych-popsters Kula Shaker ought to have had a crack at this.

The flip is laid-back and a square affair by comparison. (MW)

45: Freak Out Part 1/
Freak Out Part 2 (Crown Psychedel*Lite no#) 1967

Sounding more like The Ventures' Super Psychedelics, this exploito-psych instrumental single is pleasantly trippy with lots of echo, reverb and effects to tickle one's grey matter. Sponsored and released by the Crown Lamp Co. out of Greensburg, Pennsylvania, I guess this was one mind excursion that they recommended you experience with all the lights ON!

NB: (1) originally issued in a plain brown chipboard cover with a loose paper slick. (1) counterfeited on vinyl (Arf Arm Artists 1) 199?, the counterfeit can be identified by the measurement of the trail-off on side one. It measures 7.5 mm, while the trail-off on the original pressing measures 15mm. (1) reissued on vinyl as a 2-LP set (Gear Fab/Comet GFC 403) 2001, this adds their single and many tracks recorded by their previous incarnation Private Property Of Digil. This set also appeared on CD (Gear Fab GF-144) 2000.

45: Big Boss Man/Veronica (Target T 1005) 1969

A local Appleton, Wisconsin band, formed after the demise of the Private Property Of Digil in 1968. Their first album was a privately pressed affair issued in a plain cover with a yellow insert sheet. One side has five studio tracks, the other a long live jam.

Their later album, which included Jim Peterman (from the Steve Miller Band) was recorded at Brunswick Recording Studio and engineered by Bruce Swedien. All the tracks were composed by Doug Yankus and the album is an excellent mix of psychedelia, blues and hard-rock, with some jazz and country-rock influences. The best tracks are Dance Magic Woman, Black Cadillac and Many Dancers Dance Inside Your Head. Three of the 10 tracks are over six minutes, leaving plenty of time for Doug Yankus to show off his guitar skills.

The single includes a rockin' late sixties version of Big Boss Man with some nimble guitar licks, while the flip is a yearning romantic paean.

Doug Yankus also guested on the second album by the Nashville-based band White Duck, whose line-up included songwriter John Hiatt. He also played on Hiatt's first solo album, Hangin' Around The Observatory (1974), and later on Slug Line (1979). After Soup split, Doug went on to form Soft Touch and the Doug Yankus Band. He passed away in 1982 due to complications arising from diabetes. The Gear Fab reissues are dedicated to his memory with proceeds going to the Diabetic Foundation. Rob Griffiths had also died a few years earlier.

SOUP - Self Titled (Arf Arm Artists) LP.

The Gear Fab reissues include a number of pre-Soup tracks by Private Property Of Digil and come with detailed liner notes, which state that in 2000 Dave Faas was playing in a country band in Madison, Wisconsin. (CF/MW/SR/CD/RM/SY)

45: Like A Rolling Stone/That's Too Bad (Golden Rule 5000) 1965

NB: Amazingly this also got a UK release (Stateside SS 457) in May 1966.

An obscure sixties punk band The Soup Greens came from Brooklyn, New York. Their cover of Dylan's classic number Like A Rolling Stone attracted some attention when it was included on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP) and it resurfaced again later on the Pebbles Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD). That's Too Bad is also on Psychotic Reactions (LP), but is nothing special.

The Misty Lane CD compiles material from original acetates and comes with an eight-page booklet that is full of pictures, information and liner notes. (VJ)

This Connecticut artist's albums have a West Coast vibe with close harmonies and decent guitar work. The first album with a folk-rock feel, lots of pleasant harmonies and guitar hooks is the better of the two. His vocals are supplemented by flute and female harmonies on many tracks. His second album still retains the folk-rock feel but is blander and in a melodic singer/songwriter style which is generally less interesting. Still, the reissue has brought an otherwise obscure album to a wider audience. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 INTROSPECT (Capitol ST-108) 1968

This southern singer, songwriter, guitarist and producer deserves to be mentioned here for his Introspect album (whose cover could have been used for a West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band album!). It offers a very decent mix of mainstream pop, rock and folk with some psychy touches. Several of his songs were recorded by other groups including: Hush (Deep Purple, Five By Five), Down In The Boondocks, Games People Play, I Never Promised You A Rose Garden, Walk A Mile In My Shoes... Working in Atlanta and Nashville, Joe South also co-produced Friend and Lover's album and later became a successful country-pop singer. (SR)

Southbound Freeway (Roulette 4739) 1967

NB: α also released in Canada (Quality 1852) in 1966.

Southbound Freeway was a Detroit, Michigan act. Marc Chover recalls: "We were one of the earliest psychedelic bands. However, our producer (Fred "Saxon") wouldn't record our psychedelia because he thought it was on the way out. This was around the time of Jimi Hendrix' Are You Experienced release in the U.S..."

"For the record we may have appeared on the same bill with The Spike Drivers a couple of times, however, we were all close friends and played many of the same venues. Ted, Sid Brown, and I all taught music at Fava studios. The band also got to open for Bob Seger at the Roseville Theater."

Psychedelic Used Car Lot Blues has since resurfaced on Michigan Brand Nuggets (2-LP) and Michigan Nuggets (CD), but it's more novelty than psychedelic! The band later moved to California where they split. Today, Marc Chover is still writing/playing and is an independent manufacturer's sales rep in the Pro Audio business. Lenny Somberg, who formed the band with Marc sadly died in the early seventies, whilst Marty Somberg has a graphics firm in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Jim Wiejecha later changed his surname to Surell and was Paul Anka's staff music copyist for many years - he currently works at Warner Bros. as a copyist.

SOUTHERN COMFORT - Self Titled (Sire-London) LP.

Marc Chover has just released his first solo CD entitled Geezerphoelia by his virtual band Sleazy Geezer: - "It includes one tune I wrote with Ted when we were partners in The Horny Toads (never recorded) from 1969 to 1971. Marty Somberg did the graphic design and Jim Surell wrote the horn arrangements." The Horny Toads were regulars at the Unitarian Church and got to open for Crosby and Nash at a 'Winter Soldier Investigation' benefit concert held at University of Detroit stadium. It was their only 'major' gig.

It's worth noting that Larry Miller, who was an early member of Southbound Freeway was primarily a DJ in Detroit, with WDTM, a Fine Arts/Classical station. His "Promenade" show based on thematic programming of folk, cabaret, spoken word and miscellaneous stuff, is regarded as a precursor of sixties FM format. Miller later created the all night show on KMPX in San Francisco in February of 1967, as an electrified extension of Promenade.

There was a later and unconnected Canadian act of this name whose sole single was also released in the US: Roll With It/Don't Go Cryin' (Atco 6690) in 1969.

Psychedelic Used Car Lot Blues can also be heard on Michigan Nuggets (CD); and Southbound Freeway figures on Who Needs Tomorrow Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/RR/MC)

ALBUM: 1(A) SOUTHERN COMFORT (Columbia CS 1011) 1970

NB: (1) also released in Holland (CBS S64125) 1970.

Not to be confused with the British band Ian Matthews' Southern Comfort, nor Martin Stone's Southern Comfort, this group was created by San Francisco musicians working with Mike Bloomfield and Nick Gravenites (who produced their only album). Musically, it tries to explore the same territory as The Electric Flag: a combination of soul, blues and Bay Area sound, with a brass section and some good guitar parts. All the songs are original except for a cover of the Beatles' Get Back and Arthur Conley's Love Got Me.

Bob Jones was previously in We Five, John Wilmeth played bass with The Fourth Way, Steve Funk was in Wayne Nitro and the Whispering Shadows and also with the Debonairs. Ron Stallings was in Mother Earth and with The Mystic Knights Of The Sea. In 1972, Bob Jones and Steve Funk were in Snake, the backing group of Alice Stuart. Most of these musicians kept on working with Nick Gravenites and can be found on many of his solo records and productions (Otis Rush, Brewer and Shipley). (SR)

45s:	The Penny Song/Good Lovin'	(Metrobeat 4450) 1967
	I Want Sunshine/Goin' Someplace Else	(Metrobeat 4457) 1967

Recorded live at the Someplace Else Club in Minneapolis, this competent psych garage group's album contained such rock standards as Fire, Get Out Of My Life Woman, You Keep Me Hangin' On and 99 ½ as well as several strong originals such as What's Happenin'?, I Want Sunshine, If No Love and Goin' Someplace Else. The group effectively combined soul music, R & B and straight-ahead rock & roll. South 40 never received a lot of local airplay, but they attracted some recognition in the outlying areas like Fargo, North Dakota and Duluth, Minnesota.

Harry Nehls was later replaced by Denny Casswell and South 40 later relocated to Chicago and became Crow. Dave Waggoner had earlier been in The Aardvarks and Larry Wiegand The Rave-Ons.

Dallas outfit Southwest F.O.B. was originally called Theze Few and included England Dan and John Ford Coley, who went on to achieve considerable success as a duo. The "F.O.B." apparently stood for "Freight On Board". In 1967, they played a gig in Dallas with visiting L.A. outfit, the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band. Impressed by the latter's tune, Smell Of Incense, they decided to record it, shortening it for AM radio consumption and adding superbly-executed five-part harmonies. The result was a hit single which reached No. 56 in the Billboard chart.

Their pleasant soft-rock album was recorded at Robin Hood Brians studios in Tyler, Texas on 25/27th October 1968, and has some psychedelic influences as well as a risque (for 1968) cover shot of four naked women enclosed in a plexiglass box (calling Dr. Freud!). And Another Thing is an interesting extended track, much in the In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida mould, with echoing drums rolling back and forth across the stereo mix over a bass ostinato. There are also good versions of Buffalo Springfield's Rock 'N' Roll Woman and Chuck Berry's Nadine as well as a few harbingers of England Dan and John Ford Coley's somewhat bland future sound.

Southwest F.O.B was apparently a killer live act to the extent that they reportedly upstaged Led Zeppelin in August 1969 (a gig which culminated in Zeke setting his cymbals on fire and throwing his drumkit all over the stage). They generally opened with a set of soul covers then, after a costume change, did a set of Cream-like hard-rock and finished with a set of original material. They were also known for their attire (powder blue double-breasted suits with high collars) which was designed by their guitarist, Ovid.

After Woolbridge and Bates left the band, ennui set in and sessions for a proposed second album were aborted (in Coley's words, "Everyone was pretty disorganised; people were drunk and passed out.") Soon after, Seals and Coley left and the remaining quartet settled into playing a southern blues-styled music but the group fell apart a year later when Zeke got married and pulled out of a tour.

On the Big Beat release And Another Thing was edited down to just over two minutes. This release also substitutes the weaker album cuts with the singles and three otherwise unreleased tracks You're Looking So Fine, Monday's World and I'm Coming. These seem to date from late in the group's career. Curiously the Sundazed CD omits these three tracks but includes all the rest of their output including Mercy, Mercy, Mercy from the Soul Explosion album and both sides of the Theze Few single.

The Smell Of Incense has also resurfaced on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (CD) and on Garage Beat '66 3 (CD). The non-album flip, Green Skies, has resurfaced on, Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/JMe/LP)

Anderson, Gies, and Storm had been in Eddie and The Showmen, one of L.A.'s most popular surf bands, who'd split in the wake of the English Invasion. In the mid-sixties Eddie And The Showmen regrouped as The Plunkers. In the late sixties they changed their name to Space augmented by drummer Terry Rae (formerly of Sweet Wine and Palace Guard, later in Jamme). Space lasted only about a year before the original trio relocated to Santa Cruz. Their single was released in October 1968. By 1976 they were known as The Mysterious People, and in 1979 they became The Humans.

Jack In The Box is disposable toytown-pop. Radio Song is the nugget here - droning soft-psych with a stoned vibe and stream-of-consciousness lyrics. (MW)

Although they recorded their album in Toronto, Canada and Hollywood and are frequently quoted as Canadians, Space Opera originated from Texas, and relocated in 1971 to Williamsville, New York, which remained their home-base. Bullock and Fraser had earlier played with Whistler, Chaucer, Detroit and Greenhill, a well-known sixties Texas outfit. The Country Max single is a great drug-influenced song and at its best their album featured some superb twin guitar work, but sadly it wasn't all of a high standard. Both the single cuts were from the album.

	Hipsville 29 B.C./I Want To Be Free	(Hickory 1474) 1967

This was a very popular combo in West Texas between 1957 and 1972. Forming in Levelland in 1957, line-up 'A' did some recording at Norman Petty's studios in 1958 but nothing made it onto vinyl. They broke up for a while but later reformed with line-up 'B' and an unknown bassist. They underwent several further personnel changes. When Charlie Hatchet relocated to Lubbock to start a new outfit The Raiders he took Gary Blakey with him and a new line-up ('C') resulted. For a while in 1965 (line-up 'D') used two drummers, although Lucky Floyd was also used as a vocalist too.

Their first single really predates this book. U.T. stood for 'untitled' and was recorded in a garage in Clovis, New Mexico. Later in 1962 they signed for Hickory and Larry Parks, a drummer for Roy Orbison became their producer. They enjoyed some success with the resulting singles, particularly The Hip.

When Louie Holt and Gary P. Nunn left the band, Bobby Smith and Lucky Floyd headed to California changing the band's name to The Pearly Gate. This was around 1968. In fact they were scheduled to play a benefit for

Robert F. Kennedy at the Americana Hotel the night he was shot. The band were involved with Al Perkins at this time and did a TV show called 'Judge For The Defense'. They later returned to Austin reverting back to The Sparkles and around 1970/71 Steve Weissberg, who had played lead guitar for John Denver, was in the band.

In 1972, Lucky Floyd was invited back to California to join Red Wilder Blue. The Sparkles disintegrated soon afterwards. An early sixties line-up played some reunion gigs in West Texas early in 1985.

The band frequently crop up on compilations. Check out any of these below:- The U.T. on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 17 (LP); Hipsville 29 B.C. (I Need Help) on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP) and Garage Beat '66 1 (CD); No Friend Of Mine on Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP and CD), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 1 (7"), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Ear-Piercing Punk (LP), Garage Beat '66 1 (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); and I Want To Be Free on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 & 2 (2-CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 1 (2-LP).

Their excellent No Friend Of Mine (credited to 'Roy Junior') was covered in 1967 by Pittsburgh's legendary Swamp Rats and has been revitalised by The Fuzztones on Leave Your Mind At Home (1984) and The Cynics Blue Train Station (1988). (VJ/MW)

This band from Garden Grove, California started out playing early sixties rock'n'roll, saxy frat-rock and RnB, as on their album and their first three singles, with the expected batch of covers - Bony Moronie, Long Tall Texan, Let The Good Times Roll, and Nadine. Their later releases moved into garagy territory and are of interest here, confirmed by their inclusion on several garage compilations.

Ronnie Johnson was not the same guy as the Ron Johnson from Kaleidoscope. Their most successful song commercially was Gator Tails And Monkey Ribs, which spent a week at No. 96.

This was the sole single from this Cranston, Rhode Island band. Confetti is a wistful jangly folk-rocker whilst the flip is a subdued Zombies-style ballad. If you were lucky enough to subscribe to Dave Bass' "King's Ransom" 'zine, he uncovered a box of them and they were on offer in issue #1 at $3 a throw. That was in '81 and the single is just a shade more expensive now (add a zero!).

I Was A Fool has appeared on Tymes Gone By (LP), and Confetti was thrown onto Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD). In 2000 the compilation Leaving It All Behind (LP) featured Confetti and reported that the band was really from Cranston, Rhode Island. (MW/MM)

45: Hulu Hoop/Walking Fast (Speck 6-6129) 1966

Another Justice label rarity exhumed for collectors to pick over the bones. You'll either love it or cringe to it. The usual bag of soul, R&B and ballads also covered by several of the other local acts on this North Carolina label, they range from quite good (House of The Rising Sun) to downright sloppy and embarrassing (Try Me, Midnight Hour). The empty gym sound of the recording doesn't help nor do some very weak vocals - the band deciding to give everyone bar Tony Myers the chance to perform lead - their inadequacies are evident on the soul numbers and ballads. Wipe-Out comes as a welcome relief for that reason and is a most spirited rendition with clean ringing guitar.

The non-album Hulu Hoop, featured on The Big Itch, Vol. 6 (LP), was recorded at Arthur Smith Studios in Charlotte, North Carolina - the same venue used by the Voxmen. (MW/MDo)

45:	All My Life/Land Of The Sun	(Sundazed S 153) 2000

NB: recorded in 1966/1972.

Born on the 18th April 1946 in Windsor, Ontario Alexander "Skip" Spence moved to the Bay Area with his parents in 1959. The story goes that he was on his way to an audition for the band that became Quicksilver Messenger Service when he was spotted by Marty Balin of the nascent Jefferson Airplane. Balin decided just from his appearance that Spence was the drummer he wanted and although he had never played the drums before, Spence joined the 'Airplane in 1966 and wrote some of their early songs.

Some months later as a singer/guitarist he joined the fledgling Moby Grape, who released their debut album in June 1967. During recording sessions in July 1968, suffering from various personal problems, Spence tried to attack other members of the band with a fire axe. He was jailed at the Tombs and then committed to Bellevue Hospital. At the end of 1968, he was discharged and went to Nashville on a motorbike. There, in December 1968, he recorded Oar, on which he played all the instruments. The result is extremely strange and very raw album. Tracks like Grey/Afro, War In Peace and Lawrence Of Euphoria are among the more interesting moments. Ignored at the time (and one of Columbia's worst sellers), Oar has since gained a cult following and is now recognised as a kind of masterpiece, in the same special category as Syd Barrett's albums.

After this solo album, Spence rejoined Moby Grape on various occasions, as well as helping the Doobie Brothers (he got special thanks on their first album). Unfortunately, due to persistent personal problems, he also spent long periods of time in various California social institutions.

Spence died in April 1999 of advanced lung cancer. Quite ironically, at the same time, a tribute album More Oar was released with cover songs from Oar by Robert Plant, Beck, Tom Waits, Mudhoney and others.

War In Peace can also be found on Psychedelic Frequencies (CD). (SR)

ALEXANDER SPENCE

ALEXANDER SPENCE - Oar LP.

Well respected songwriter/musician/producer/studio owner Jim Spencer is probably best known to readers of this book as the man who recorded the Indiana group Anonymous in his Milwaukee, Wisconsin studio in 1976. His own records are also rare, and good in a straight electric/acoustic folk direction. He recorded a third album in 1976 as Major Arcana. Tragically, Spencer died of heart failure in 1983 at the age of 39. His death was a great loss to the local scene. It's obvious by the large number of musicians on his records that he was a magnet for Milwaukee talent. (CF)

Long-haired singer with hippie values, Jimmie Spheeris was of Greek descent. He was the brother of film director and producer Penelope Spheeris. Born in Phenix City, Alabama he moved with his family to Venice, California after his father was murdered. He later moved to New York City in the later sixties to develop a songwriting career. His records sold quite well and are mainly of interest for the interventions of Geoff Levin, the guitarist of People and Elephant. The third album was produced by Felix Cavaliere, the former leader of The Rascals and is rather mellow. Jackson Browne, a long-time friend of his, contributed backing vocals on Ports Of The Heart.

After The Ports Of The Heart appeared he found himself without a recording contract and apart from a 1980 single, Hold Tight, he released no new music for close to a decade. Finally, in 1984, Spheeris returned to the studio to begin work on a comeback album. Tragically he was killed by a drunk driver on the morning of 4 July 1984, shortly after the record's completion. The album, simply titled Spheeris, was privately issued later that same year. Spider & The Crabs

ALBUM:	1	SPIDER & THE CRABS	(Audio House AH12267) 1967

Here's a recently discovered small custom pressing by a popular Kansas showband in the late sixties who utilised lots of horns on their rather insipid covers of material like It's Not Unusual, You Are My Sunshine and Tracks Of My Tears. The eight-track album may be of most interest to readers for fast-paced guitar on Think, a band original and the reasonable cover of The Monkees' I'm Not You Steppin' Stone. (VJ)

45s:		Why Don't You Love Me/Hitch Hike	(Mascot 112) 1965
		Don't Blow Your Mind/ No Price Tag	(Santa Cruz SCR 003) 1966

From Phoenix, Arizona and originally known as the Earwigs, this band would later become the Nazz before a final name-change and global success as Alice Cooper. Consequently these pre-stardom singles have become extremely sought-after, and not just by rabid fans of Alice - they're damn good too.

Compilation coverage has included: Don't Blow Your Mind on Garagelands, Vol. 1 (LP) and Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD) and there's an alternative and previously unreleased version on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD); both Don't Blow Your Mind and No Price Tag also appear on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (CD). Both sides of the Santa Cruz single are also compiled with the Nazz single tracks on an EP The Spiders Vs. The Nazz put out by Blitz magazine in 1980.

The Sundazed retrospective EP features both sides of the Mascot single, an unreleased instrumental take of Why Don't You Love Me and an unreleased version of Don't Blow Your Mind, featuring Michael Bruce previously of the Wildflowers.

	2(B)	68 - THE U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY	(No label # R 12597) 1968 R2

Made up of midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, The Spiffys were formed in 1958 and kept going thanks to the annual rotation of inductees, like some of those 'prep-rock' bands (e.g. Mt. Hermon's Knights). They also got into the habit of releasing an annual end-of-term/year vanity pressing, which provided a snapshot of the current scene, given that almost all the material was covers of contemporary hits.

So it isn't garage-rock, rather it's a couple of examples of "barrack-rock". The 1967 album contains just one original, No Pain; the rest are popular covers (Gloria, Knock On Wood, Satisfaction, Along Comes Mary) done competently in a clubby style with a little bit of soul'n'brass. The 1968 album retains five members from the previous year and is much better, due to the almost total absence of brass. The only original is Larry Purdy's Dreams, a garagy folk-rocker good enough to feature on Oil Stains Vol. 2 (LP); the 10 covers include Kind Of A Drag, Light My Fire, Spooky, Whiter Shade Of Pale and The Letter. The second album is presented in a particularly nice cover. (MW/CF/SR)

	High Time/Baby Won't You Let Me Tell You How I Lost My Mind	(Reprise 0535) 1966
	Strange Mysterious Sounds/ Break Out The Wine	(Reprise 0558) 1967

Four groovy guys and a gal made up this outfit who hailed from Detroit, Michigan. Their material is in the soft psychedelic folk-rock mould - very hip, very San Francisco and they were produced by the Koppelman-Rubin team on Break Out The Wine and Jerry Ragovoy on the other Reprise tracks.

The band was also featured prominently on WDTM-FM's folk/eclectic show, "Promenade", hosted by Larry Miller, who is to be given some credence as one of the founders of sixties FM format (Miller created the San Francisco KMPX all night show in February 1967, as an "electrified extension" of thematic "Promenade").

The Spike Drivers were semi-regulars at the Chessmate Coffee House in Detroit, a mostly folk venue that also hosted bands like Southbound Freeway, Siegel-Schwall Blues Band and Blues Magoos. They also got to open for The Animals in New York's Central Park in 1966.

After they signed with New York Manager Leonard Stogel, he decided that the two songwriters, Keelan and Lucas were where the money lay, so they split from the rest of the group and released a single as Misty Wizards.

Keelan then split for Canada (draft troubles) and formed Perth County Conspiracy. Lucas formed a band called the Horny Toads with Marc Chover (ex-Southbound Freeway), and later released a solo album back in Michigan in 1975. Sid Brown, departed for Berkeley California, before settling in Vancouver, Washington. He later led Peace, Bread and Land Band and Modality Stew and nowadays directs and produces a cable TV show called "PrimeTimers" which gives voice and inspiration to older adults.

The retrospective compilation, Folkrocking Psychedelic Innovation From The Motor City has been issued on vinyl housed in a super thick card sleeve with large detailed booklet and also on CD with four bonus tracks and a 16-page booklet.

Compilation appearances have included: Baby Won't You Let Me Tell You How I Lost My Mind on Mind Blowers (LP); High Time on Sixties Archive, Vol. 7 (CD); Strange Mysterious Sound on Come Fly With Us.. (LP); and Break Out The Wine on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 2 (CD). NB: α was not released.

From Bremerton, Washington this band was basically folk-rockers with some psychedelic pretensions. Their finest moment however, was probably Little Lies, an uplifting slice of folky-harmony-pop with a San Francisco hippie vibe. The flip, Til The End Of Time, is a chiming melodious ballad with ringing Spanish guitar runs. This single was produced by Gil Bateman.

Compilation appearances have included: Little Lies on The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (CD); and That's The Time on The History Of Northwest Rock Vol. 6, a 1984 cassette-only release. (VJ/MW)

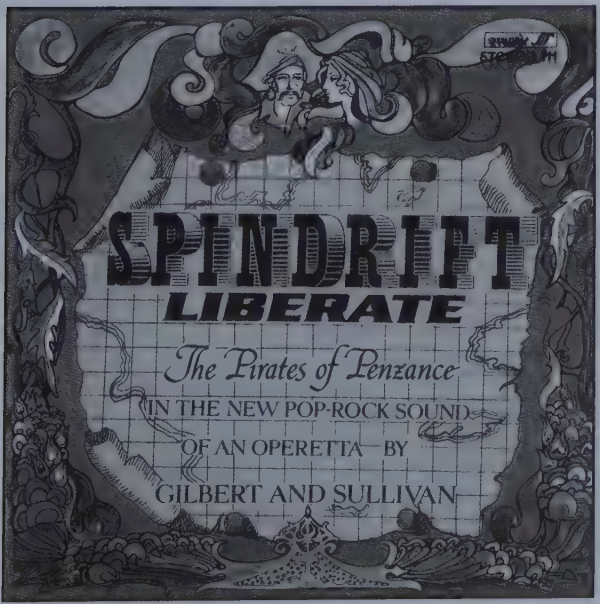
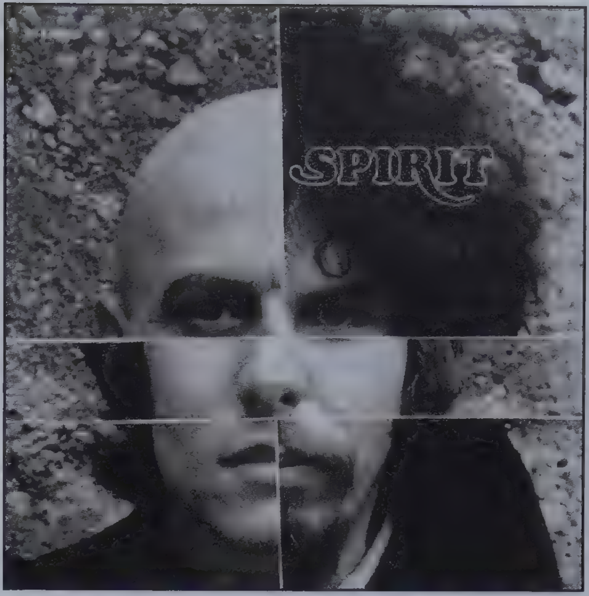
This outfit originally evolved out of a four-piece instrumental group The Fydallions in Sacramento, California in 1964. Columbia signed the band, but insisted that they changed their name. So the band was renamed after the movie 'The Spiral Staircase', but with a deliberate misspelling.

Their first two singles were produced by Gary Usher and had success in some regions. Sonny Knight produced their first album and Usher encouraged Upton to write original material for the group. Upton penned More Today Than Yesterday, while the band was working in Las Vegas. It gave them a hit, but the band disbanded 18 months after its release due to financial disputes and poor management.



SPINDRIFT - Liberate The Pirates Of Penzance LP.



SPIRIT - Self Titled LP.

Pat Upton returned to L.A. to work as a session musician, and eventually worked with Ricky Nelson. Harvey Kaye returned to Las Vegas where he re-formed the band, which toured extensively across the US, Canada and Mexico through until the mid-eighties with a full horn section and two back-up girl singers. They don't appear to have released further vinyl, though.

Bobby Raymond passed away in 1984. Harvey Kaye later ran a management company in Las Vegas with his wife Candy, but died on 18 August 2008. Vinnie Parello is retired in southern California, but Pat Upton is still active on the music scene.

Their most successful record was clearly More Today Than Yesterday but one of their best was Baby What I Mean, which you can check out on Nuggets, Vol. 3: Pop (LP). It's a kind of Rascals-influenced soul-pop rendition. (VJ/MW)

SPIRIT - The Family That Plays Together LP.

Hearing Spirit's records now, it seems surprising that they did not achieve greater success back in the late sixties. Certainly they have stood the test of time well.

Evolving out of an earlier Los Angeles band, The Red Roosters, Spirit was formed in 1967. They were one of the first bands to successfully combine rock and jazz, undoubtedly due to the jazz roots of their personnel. Drummer Ed Cassidy had been a modern jazz player in the fifties with the likes of Gerry Mulligan, Cannonball Adderley and Thelonious Monk. He married in the late sixties a lady whose son was Randy California. Randy was playing in a high school band, The Red Roosters. Jay Ferguson and Mark Andes also played in this band, Eventually Ed Cassidy joined his stepson and the other ex-Red Roosters, with the addition of jazz-influenced keyboard player, John Locke, to form Spirits Rebellious in early 1967, the name taken from the book of the same name by Kahlil Gibran.

Between the time of The Red Roosters and the formation of Spirit, Randy California spent some time in New York as part of a band called The Blue Flames, whose leader was Jimi Hendrix. Hendrix of course, was to be spotted by ex-Animal Chas Chandler, who bought him to Britain and, as his manager, produced a string of hits. Meanwhile, Mark Andes had been playing in an earlier version of what would later become another fairly successful L.A. rock-blues group, Canned Heat.

Spirit got a residency at The Ash Grove Club in Los Angeles, during 1967, where Cassidy had earlier played with The Rising Sons. The same year they recorded a demo tape comprised of such tunes as Elijah, Hey Joe, Darlin' and others which they sent, without much success, to several record companies.

They were on the point of folding when Lou Adler signed them to his Ode Records label, which had a distribution deal with CBS. Their debut album contained a number of fine tracks which displayed their flair for combining jazz and rock. Fresh Garbage, Elijah and Gramophone Man consisted of vocal numbers sandwiching piano pieces, while their first single, Mechanical World issued in 1968, was particularly interesting, but too uncommercial to become a hit.

Their second album The Family That Plays Together was released in December 1968 and did even better than their debut. One track, the more commercial rock number I Got A Line On You was issued as a single with She Smiled on the flip, and became a smash hit in the States. This marked a surge in their popularity, which progressed with each album they made.

CLEAR SPIRIT

SPIRIT
OF DR SARDONICUS

SPIRIT - Twelve Dreams Of Dr. Sardonicus LP.

The album was also notable for three particularly melodic Jay Ferguson compositions, Silky Sam, The Drunkard and Dream Within A Dream.

Prior to the issue of their third album Clear, they had worked on an abortive movie project "The Model Shop" with French film producer, Jacques Demy. Although the soundtrack album never materialised two tracks from the film, Ice and Clear were released on their third album. A single Dark Eyed Woman was released from this album, but did not chart. Many years later this album was released on vinyl and CD by Sundazed.

A further single 1984 was issued prior to their next album. This initially attracted considerable airplay but, shortly after its release, radio stations were urged not to play it as it was 'too politically oriented'. Consequently, it did not chart and has become one of their most collectable items, although the 'A' side is also featured on their Greatest Hits album.

Also around this time there was considerable friction between California and Ferguson about the direction of the band. The former favoured a loose improvisational format; the latter, a more commercial rock approach. Lou Adler also switched the Ode label from Columbia to A&M and, as part of the deal, gave Spirit to Epic. Despite all this, their fourth album, The Twelve Dreams Of Dr. Sardonicus, is generally considered their finest work. Far more commercial than their earlier albums, it contains a number of finely-structured rock songs like Nature's Way, Animal Zoo, Mr. Skin and Morning Will Come. Side two also contained some less structured but more ambitious numbers, such as When I Touch You and Life Has Just Begun, together with a jazzy instrumental, Space Child. However, the band split after the recording of this album, which was subsequently pieced together by producer David Briggs. The album did not sell at all at first, but gradually became more successful and went gold four years after the band had split. Ironically, had it sold better, the band might have stayed together longer.

A series of singles issued from the album - Animal Zoo, Nature's Way and Mr. Skin - all flopped. The first of these singles has become extremely collectable, as few were pressed and the flip has never appeared on any of their albums.

Andes and Ferguson went on to form Jo Jo Gunne, while California convalesced after a riding accident. The remaining members, Locke and Cassidy continued; adding twins Al and Christian Staehely (The Staehely Brothers). The line-up produced the disappointing Feedback after which the two original members left. The band was later revived more successfully by Cassidy and California in 1974, and has subsequently produced a string of successful albums, which are less relevant to this book.

Returning to 1972, for a while though - California back in L.A., having recovered from his riding accident, formed a new band and released a Hendrix style album called Kapt. Kopter and The (Fabulous) Twirlybirds. This group included Larry Knight (bs) and Tim McGovern (drms) when they played live. However, Noel Redding played on the album under the pseudonym Clit McTorius and Ed Cassidy also played on a couple of cuts. This outfit also recorded an extremely rare non-album single, Walkin' The Dog/Live For The Day (Epic 5-10927), which was only issued as a promo for radio stations. They also recorded the Potatoland album, which was not released until 1981 by Rhino (RNSP 303). Epic refused to release it at the time.

Spirit Of '76 was a 26-song 2-LP set that included a cover of Hey Joe and a vocal version of the Star Spangled Banner. Throughout the album Randy's acoustic guitar and various effects on his electric guitar helped make this a significant space-rock offering with soothing, spacey sounds throughout. Son Of Spirit also from 1975, contained strong numbers like Holy Man and Yesterday.

Farther Along was an unexceptional album, but it included the four original members (except Ferguson) so it was a reunion album of sorts. The band started touring again and on 28 August 1976 played a concert at Santa Monica. It ended disastrously when Mark Andes invited Neil Young to jam with them and Randy California, feeling he should have been consulted and considering Neil Young to be out of tune, tried to push him off the stage. It ended with the whole band walking off stage and Locke vowing that he'd never play with California again! Still, the group did continue as a trio (California, Cassidy and Larry Knight) although Locke did return for a short tour only to leave again later.

Future Games is practically a Randy California solo effort as he did most of the writing and played most of the instruments on the album. The sound quality is not great and many people find the album boring, although others appreciate its humour.

Live Spirit has a great cover photo of Ed Cassidy and his drumsticks frozen in time. The band is much heavier here than on the Spirit of '76 album. These recordings appear to be from 1977. The album jacket claims that some were taped in London, England and others in Tampa and Miami, Florida. One cut, These Are Words, sounds like a studio recording that has audience applause overdubbed. This recording is pristine compared to some of the others, and features piano, conga drums, additional guitars, backing vocals, and annoying applause tracks that really don't sound like they are part of the goings on. The Hollywood Dream on this album is a Randy California original, not the Thunderclap Newman song. The material on this disc was also released on Illegal Records in 1977, and again under the name Live Made in Germany.

Time Circle (1968-1972) compiles the better tracks from their first four albums on one CD. It is a good introduction to their music and also includes three tracks recorded for the Jacques Demy film 'The Model Shop'.

Chronicles 1967-1992 came hot on the heels of the Sony/Legacy Time Circle album. It featured tapes that Randy California had been stockpiling since the band's inception in 1967. There are five tracks that comprise the band's original demo, but also several live and studio performances that feature California and the remains of Spirit in various seventies/eighties incarnations. While Time Circle was the best collection of Spirit's work at the time of its release, Chronicles is a necessary album for any Spirit fanatic

SUNDAZED

SPIRIT - Eventide LP.

Spirit continued to record well beyond the time-frame of this book, although their finest moments were passed. Tragically Randy California drowned on January 2nd 1997 after he and his son were hit by a freak wave in Hawaii.

The band's music has aged well and is well worth listening to. Ed Cassidy still plays with Merrell Fankhauser in the Fankhauser-Cassidy band. They have a new album Further On Up the Road (Akarma AK 099/2) (2-LP & 2-CD) 2000.

In 2001, Sundazed released two compilations of outtakes on vinyl, Now Or Anywhere comprises cuts from the 1967 album Spirit and the 1969 album The Family That Plays Together, but it does contain some lengthy instrumental tracks. Eventide comprises outtakes from Clear and The Twelve Dreams Of Dr. Sardonicus, three cuts written for the 1968 movie 'The Model Shop' (which are all mellow jazzy instrumentals) and two singles.

Compilation appearances have included: Dream Within A Dream and Topanga Windows on Psychedelic Dream: A Collection of '60s Euphoria (CD); I Got A Line On You on Pop Revolution From The Underground (LP); Dream Within A Dream on Psychedelic Visions (CD); Cages, a previously unreleased cut, on Succour - The P.T. Benefit (2-CD); and Girl In Your Eye on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/RS)

ALBUM: 1(A) SPIRIT IN FLESH (Metromedia MD 1041) 1971

Very much a hippie outfit, their album was produced by Peter K. Siegel and Susan Leonard and all the selections were written by M. Metelica, T. Howes and A. Hinx.

Their rarely seen album contains some good guitar, organ and bass parts, but the vocals (especially the female vocalists) are the weakest aspect. Lyrically there's a Christian influence on some tracks: Blind Leading The Blind and The Meek Shall Inherit The Earth, whilst the sleeve shows what looks like members of a rural commune, all posing in front of a building covered with snow. 45: Fanny Firecracker/You And I Together (A&M 1104) 1969

This New York City outfit's album is well worth searching out. Adrianne Maurici's powerful vocals are certainly an asset and although brass makes an occasional and unwelcome intrusion on the album it contains some fine guitar work, which on the title cut and Sunny Please Hold Me becomes quite psychedelic. Other highs include You And I Together and the final cut, She's So Good. Recommended. Both single tracks feature on the album, which was recorded at Ultra-Sonic Studios in Long Island, New York. NB: (1) reissued in 1995 by Spindle with picture sleeves on both black (101-7) and coloured (102-7) vinyl.

This band was from Tampa, Florida and their Rich With Nothin' is catchy garage punk at its best.

Formed by Dan Eliassen and Jim O'Brock in 1962, they were initially known as The Kingsmen. When Louie Louie became a hit for the more well known Kingsmen, they changed names to The Allusions, playing high school dances and teen centres. However, they did not record.

In 1966, they changed name again to The Split Ends to reflect the changing times. Jim: "We started writing more and recorded Rich With Nothin' and Endless Sea. The single was a moderate local (Tampa Bay area) success and we began playing larger venues and travelling across Florida. In 1967, we opened for a Dick Clark tour and were picked up to finish the tour 'Happening '67'. The next year we were invited to Los Angeles to play on Dick Clark's nationwide band contest T.V. show: 'Happening '68'. We lost, but while in L.A. we played a couple of local gigs with Steppenwolf and Iron Butterfly".

"In 1969 we changed name again to Boot, an acronym for 'Blues Of Our Time', and released two albums in the seventies".

Rich With Nothin' can also be heard on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 1 (2 x 7"), I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD). 	Hangin' Out/Right Track	(Dot 17085) 1968
	Can't Complain/Love To Love You	(Dot 17142) 1968

From New York City, this very lightweight 'pop-psych' group was actually more folk-pop than psych, with male/female vocals and occasional use of electric sitar and flute. The title of the record is apt: sweet sunny rock with strings and smoothness alternate with far more adventurous tracks. Clearly there are interests in classical music, which make themselves evident in the application of advanced choral composition techniques. Tracks like You Can't Go and Equipment (with sitar) sound strongly like Peanut Butter Conspiracy, though, and include fine flutes and strong harmonies. These are evidently the highlights of this album. An odd Japanese flavour is added to Looking At The Rose Through World Colored Glasses. The rest is enjoyable enough, but a bit bland too. Overall, it's a strange and schizophrenic record.

Looking At The Rose Through World Colored Glasses can also be heard on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). (MK/SR/MW)

45:	Walking Around Town/Corinna	(Folkways F45001) 1964

NB: shown as by Two Time Mark.

In the sixties blues-folk movement, Mark Spoelstra was known as having done alternative service time as a conscientious objector long before the Vietnam War. A talented white blues-folk singer and 12-string guitar player, he is typical of these folkies that had many skills but somehow failed when folk became electrified under Dylan's influence. Spoelstra moved to New York in the early sixties and began singing in the Greenwich Village folk scene with Bob Dylan and was finally booked by Gerde's Folk House. He took an active part in the burgeoning Urban Blues Scene and recorded two tracks on the seminal Blues Project album, an Elektra project aiming at presenting these new musicians (others were Geoff Muldaur, Eric Von Schmidt, Danny Kalb, John B. Sebastian and Bob Landy (better known as Dylan!).

Spoelstra then secured a recording deal with Folkways and released two albums of folk-blues, which are too traditional to retain attention. After that, he got signed to Elektra for two records which are supposedly his best work but we have been unable to hear them. Spoelstra then moved to California and signed a management contract with Jim Guercio (Buckinghams, Chicago). Produced by Guercio, the 1969 Columbia album benefited from the help of Roy Blumenfeld (Blues Project/Seatrain), Harvey Brooks (Electric Flag) and various L.A. sessionmen (Knechtel, Jim Gordon, Mike Deasy, James Burton), but the result is not really convincing. Spoelstra also appeared on the soundtrack of another Guercio project, Electra Glide In Blue.

In 1971, he signed to Fantasy and This House was produced by Doug Clifford of Creedence, with the help of Steve Miller (Lynn County), Stu Cook and Duck Dunn (Booker T and The MGs). The album offers a pleasant but lightweight choice of original electrified bluesy folk numbers, the best one being Dirty Movie Show.

Spoelstra then apparently vanished from the music scene, but France Blues has resurfaced on Follow The Music (CD) that appears in the Elektra book. (SR/VJ)

A very small number of these vinyl albums were issued in an embossed red velvet sleeve. The regular printed cover edition was limited to 450 copies. (1) - (4) reissued on CD as The Spoils Of War (Shadoks Music 001) 1999. The Spoils Of War II (2-LP) (Shadoks Music 033) 2005 contains 25 previously unreleased tracks and is presented in an extra heavy gatefold, silver foil embossed sleeve and limited to 450 numbered copies and is also available as a 17-track CD.

These weird'n'wonderful sounds emanated from Urbana, Illinois in 1968 and 1969, thanks to this previously unheralded assemblage. The reissues reveal a mixed bag of cerebral sounds - electronic collages interspersed or combined with jazzy vibes, acid-rock, and dreamy folk-rock. Some highlights: - Walk In, Walk Out opens with an electronic barrage before turning to more standard fuzz-psych with (for a change) good use of brass; the astounding E-Thing could be a soundtrack to 'Apocalypse Now' - a backdrop of whining, pulsing helicopter-like effects onto which is etched a heavy acid jam; Rit Yellow Of The Sun builds to a delicious Spanish-flavoured guitar freak-out then degenerates into fuzz and electronic mayhem.

This should appeal especially to fans of experimental or electronic psychedelia by the likes of Fifty Foot Hose and the United States Of America.

The Spoils Of War II (2-LP) contains 25 previously unreleased tracks from the late sixties and is also available as a 17-track CD. The sound is a bit lighter than the band's 1970 album and has a whimsical edge but there are some great trippy jams full of wah-wah guitar and swirling keyboards. One album features studio recordings and the other has live recordings from 1967/68. Due to pending complications with the Vietnam draft, some members moved to France and became folk-psych outfit Mormos.

Roger Francisco was previously with The Prodigies. (MW/CF/VJ)

In 1965 people were into happiness and hair, so when Barry McGuire's Eve Of Destruction came out, it was regarded as something of a party-pooper and generated a lot of debate over its 'message' and mood. Apart from ensuring that this backlash against the protest folk-rock (sic) scene improved its sales somewhat, other groups responded with reply-songs, piss-takes, etc. The Jay Hawkers' Dawn Of Instruction could be put into the latter category whilst this outfit's debut The Dawn Of Correction is in the former. Better Days Are Yet To Come continues this optimistic viewpoint whilst Have Courage, Be Careful touches on fighting abroad without either condoning or condemning it. All done in a tame folk-rock-pop mode including the chunky up-tempo Mary Jane also featured on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound (LP) which, despite the title, has no druggy connotations.

Session guitarist Vinnie Bell was responsible for inventing the electric sitar, on the back of which he released an album. The band was possibly Philadelphia-based. (MW/ET)

45: Up In My Mind/Pictures Of Lily (Fevre 8680) 1968

Formed in 1966, this high school quintet from Atlanta played the local clubs frequently, opening for the likes of Paul Revere and The Raiders and The Electric Prunes, and included the latter's I Had Too Much To Dream Last Night in their repertoire. Indeed, it was one of the 'Prunes who encouraged Kindall's father to get them into one of the area's better studios, LeFevre, hence the label-name of their sole single that was recorded there in late 1968.

Up In My Mind is an excellent opener on Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD) - heavy garage-psych with pulsing washes of fuzz and some wah-wah. You can also find it on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD) and Beyond The Calico Wall (LP & CD). The flip is a cover of The Who's hit given a Litter-esque treatment.

The single made waves locally but the end of their tenure at high school sent them off in separate directions. Kindall remained in the music biz and was still playing professionally in 2002. (VJ/CW/MW)

SPRUCE - Self Titled LP.

Seattle, Washington was their home and they evolved out of The Dynamics (the Afdem brothers and Harry Wilson had all been members). Their most successful single was That's All I Really Need, a soft-rocker. Upon their demise Jeff Afdem formed a jazz group called The Springfield Flute, who recorded an album for Seattle's First American Records, but it flopped.

Will You Love Me Tomorrow was a cover of the old Shirelles' hit.

NB: (1) has been counterfeited on vinyl (Cinema CSLP 1500) 199?. The reissue has a white label, the original is green.

Here's a quite appalling album which some books and dealers erroneously describe as 'psychedelic'. Beware, it's crap, full of badly done 30 second rehashes of rock'n'roll classics and country music. Apparently originals change hands for quite a lot of money. God help the people buying them. Things do improve a little on side two which includes three tracks which are half decent:- Why Girl No 2, Mind Odyssey, and Modern Error, but then concludes with a pitiful cover version of River Deep Mountain High.

The band had evolved out of St. Louis, Missouri's Unknowns, who had released three singles on Ron "Uncle Buck" Stipe's Marlo and Cinema labels. They relocated to St. Claire County, Illinois and also provided the musical backdrop to a spoken word religious album by Father Pat Berkery.

This Miami quintet had some local success with their self-released debut single. Bitter End, a bouncy garage-pop ditty penned by Jim Oliver, can also be heard on Every Groovy Day (LP). They continued as a four-some after Torano left. In 1969, after releasing a second single as The Squiremen and restored to five with guitarist Jack Vino, they became The Heroes Of Cranberry Farm and released at least seven singles over the next two years.

Who In The World is a wonderful piece of piano-led melodrama where soft harmonious verses alternate with hard fuzz work-outs. Be sure to check this out on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). (MW/JLh)

45:	Going All The Way/Go Ahead	(Atco 6442) 1966

This outfit came from Bristol, Connecticut and were earlier known as The Rogues. Their single has become something of a punk classic by virtue of the inclusion of Going All The Way on Pebbles, Vol. 1 and it has subsequently been heavily compiled. The Crypt album is a retrospective collection of their material. Both sides of the single were recently covered on the Remayns EP (Bam-Caruso 029).

Compilation appearances include: Going All The Way on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2 x 7"), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Excerpts From Nuggets (CD) and Like Nothing Your Ears Have Ever Heard 5 (CD); Go Ahead on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP); and a previously unreleased demo I Can't Do It on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box). This Squires, from Youngstown, Ohio was clearly influenced by The Beatles. Batmobile is an uncharacteristic spacey instrumental which later resurfaced on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 9 - Ohio (LP). Phil Keaggy later played in Volume IV, who later became New Hudson Exit and went on to front Glass Harp before becoming a Christian music star.

The Squires also recorded several acetate recordings that feature Phil Keaggy's early attempts to write Beatles-style garage-pop. (VJ/GGI/MW)

The Squires (CA)

From Sacramento, The Squires evolved out of a surf band The Railriders. Their two unreleased tracks recorded in November 1966 - Anyhow Anwhere and It Must Be Love are described as "killer punk" and 'jangly folk-pop" respectively by Alec Palao, who unearthed them on Big Beat's compilation The Scorpio Records Story (CD). Two further cuts, the previously unreleased I Want You and You Don't Have To Bring Your Toys are compiled on So Cold!!! (CD), which tells their story. (MW)

SRC (short for Scott Richard Case) were part of the wave of Detroit-based heavy rock groups which emerged in the late sixties and included bands like The Amboy Dukes and The MC5.

Originally from Birmingham, they started out as the Tremelos and later The Fugitives and issued four singles (two on D-Town and two on Westchester) and an album, The Fugitives At Dave's Hideout (Hideout HLP-1001) 1965. Three of their tracks are on the sixties compilation, Friday At The Cage A Go Go (Westchester 1005) 1965. Friday At The Cage A Go Go has been reissued under its alternate title Long Hot Summer on Hide The Sausage (HTS-001) 1989. As The Fugitives they have cuts on Oil Stains (LP) (Said Goodbye) and Glimpses 3 (LP) (On Trial). The Fugitives tracks on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP) and Back From The Grave, 3 (LP) are by a different band.

SRC's debut album contained one stand-out track, Black Sheep, on which Glen Quackenbush's organ playing gave the band a similar sound to The Doors' Light My Fire. The track received considerable airplay from John Peel in England. However, the band failed to capture the interest of the American public at large and disbanded after two further good albums. Their musical format on these albums was mostly twin lead guitars and Hammond organ, with layered vocal harmonies.

Black Sheep (CD) compiles material from their three albums and naturally includes both versions of their title track.

Compilation appearances have included: Black Sheep on Rock A Delics (LP); Badazz Shuffle on Echoes In Time, Vol. 2 (LP), Echoes In Time, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Gathering Of The Tribe (CD); I'm So Glad on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD) and Michigan Rocks, Vol. 1 (LP); Born To Love on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); Up All Night on Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD) and Up All Night (CD); I'm So Glad, Who Is That Girl, Get The Picture and previously unreleased versions of Midnight To Six Man and Cobwebs And Strange on A2 (Of Course) (CD); and Marionette from their first album can also be heard on Illusions From The Crackling Void (LP). As Scot Richard Case you can find their competent, snarly version of Get The Picture on Michigan Mayhem, Vol. 1 (CD), Sixties Archives, Vol. 7 (CD) and Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP); I'm So Glad, Get The Picture, Midnight To Six Man, Who Is That Girl, Cobwebs And Strange also feature on A-Square (Of Course) (CD).

They also recorded a single in 1972 as Blue Scepter (Out In The Night/Gypsy Eyes) (Rare Earth 5040) - the flip side is on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). (VJ)

Stack was a figurehead group in a busy hard-rock scene exploding out of the Los Angeles area in the late sixties. Formed from the ashes of a surf band called The Vandells (which included Gould) and Wabash Spencer (with Ellis and Sheppard) in 1967, Stack enjoyed a prolific concert itinerary for over two years, playing with such notables as Buffalo Springfield, Fields, Hook, Things To Come, Rockin' Foo, Iron Butterfly, Illinois Speed Press, Three Dog Night, Frank Zappa and Alice Cooper. During 1968, they signed a long-term contract with Mike Curb's Sidewalk Productions and recorded an album in off-hours at local studios.

Above All is a brutal hard-rock album with a distinct British influence in several of the better tracks. Cars and Only Forever are remarkably effective showcases for Ellis' propulsive drumming style, which sounds like a cross between Paul Whaley (of Blue Cheer) and Keith Moon. There are a couple of tracks on the album that sound merely pedestrian by comparison; a lengthy blues Da Blues, and a cover of Poison Ivy that was rather unfortunately chosen as the opening cut on side one, but overall it's a killer and highly recommended to hard-rock fans. The album has been extensively reissued in recent years and the Akarma issues have markedly superior sound.

For reasons unknown to the band, Above All was never marketed and very few copies of the finished album escaped from Sidewalk. Producer Clancy Grass abandoned musical pursuits proper for film work over the next couple of years, beginning with "The Velvet Vampire" (see Born Again entry). Stack was mystified as to their stalled momentum, but lacked the financial wherewithal to escape their eight-year exclusive contract, eventually breaking up and pursuing non-musical careers.

Drummer Bob Ellis was previously with Wabash Spencer, who issued a single and recorded an unreleased demo in 1967. He was also in The Fabs, along with Clark and Sheppard, and plays on their rare Cotton Ball single from 1966. Bob passed away in January 1999.

Only Forever is featured on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (CF)

The Staehely Brothers were in Spirit for the Feedback album. Afterwards they went solo and recorded this decent hard-rock album. John Locke from Spirit also played on it and wrote some songs and Ed Cassidy also plays, but uncredited (he may be "Stoop Hairy"). An underrated album, several tracks deserve to be heard: Captain Zombie Meet Unfellini, Rockin In The Bush, Future Shock... The album was produced by Alex Kazanegras and came housed in a superb sleeve with drawings of skeletons.

In 1982, Al Staehely released a solo album Stahaley's Comet (Ranger Records). He also went on to play with John Cipollina and Nick Gravenites in the early eighties under the names Thunder & Lightning and the Gravenites-Cipollina Band. He is now an attorney in Houston, Texas. (SR)

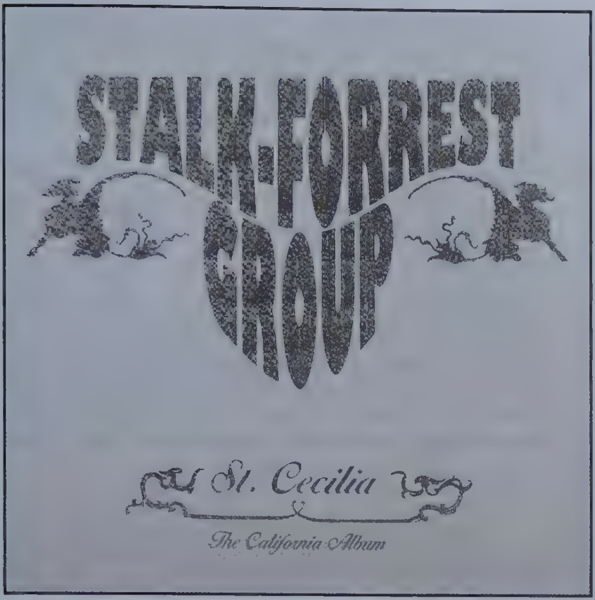
STAINED GLASS
CRAZY HORSE ROADS
STAINED GLASS - Crazy Horse Roads LP.



STALK-FORREST GROUP - St. Cecilia The California Album LP.

More of a folk-rock band than a psychedelic band Stained Glass started out in 1966 playing Beatles cover versions. They performed in and around their native San Jose until an A & R man from RCA signed them to the label later that year. They recorded a series of singles for RCA. The first two, which were a mixture of folk and Merseybeat, met with some local success. The best was We Got A Long Way To Go, a driving rock song with immediate appeal, which was a big hit in San Jose during April 1967.

They moved to Capitol in the spring of 1968, issuing three singles and two albums. Of the six single sides on Capitol only Lady In Lace is non-album. Their albums were slightly darker than their earlier singles, combining pop hooks with hippie-rock. Beatles-tinged pop-psych meets Cream-esque bluesy rock. Both albums were quite highly-rated, but failed to make much impact and the band disbanded in November 1969. Jim McPherson went on to play with Copperhead.

Either of their albums is worth a listen if you can acquire them cheaply. The first was reissued by Capitol in Greece and has more recently been reissued on CD by Fallout. The second was reissued by Radioactive, but is now deleted.

Compilation appearances include: My Buddy Sin and We Got A Long Way To Go on Mindrocker, Vol. 9 (LP); My Buddy Sin on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book); and A Scene In Between on Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD), Acid Dreams, Volume Three (LP), Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD). NB: promo-only. At least two counterfeit editions exist - the original has a rather glossy black and white label and all printing is clear. One counterfeit has matte labels; the other looks more convincing but the disc has a bit of "invisible" surface noise.

Stalk-Forrest Group (aka Oaxaca; previously known as The Soft White Underbelly) recorded material in 1969 and again in 1970 for Elektra Records. An album's worth of recordings was assembled by the label from these sessions, but never commercially released. However, it has long been rumoured, and is still possible, that acetates of the album exist. At this point, only the single listed above is confirmed to have been issued at the time.

Most of the music recorded by the band for Elektra has been circulating on cassette since the late seventies - in varying degrees of fidelity. In 1998, a vinyl album appeared that contained some of the Elektra recordings, bringing it to the attention of a much wider audience. This likely inspired Rhino to assemble their deluxe Handmade CD, a comprehensive collection of recordings made by the band over the course of two incarnations: as The Stalk-Forrest Group (Los Angeles recordings, early 1970) and as Oaxaca (New York recordings, 1969), all of which were languishing in Elektra's vaults.

This material possesses both the sophistication of their highly-regarded seventies work as The Blue Oyster Cult and the ethereal, druggy late sixties sound associated with West Coast bands like Tripsichord Music Box and Quicksilver Messenger Service, it's no stretch to say that The Stalk-Forrest Group will find wide acceptance with readers of this book.

Arthur Comics has been compiled on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP). (CF)

Formed in Los Angeles in 1962 by Larry Tamblyn and Tony Valentino, they started life as a twist type discotheque group called Larry Tamblyn and The Standells, but soon became an archetypal punk band. Ed Cobb wrote much of their classic material and ensured that their lyrics articulated the resentments of America's youth against their parents and society. They are perhaps best known for the classic punk-rock single Dirty Water, their first single for Tower, which Cobb had written about the Charles River in Boston.

Larry Tamblyn recalls: - "Although Ed Cobb did write much of the material, a few of the more memorable songs were written by members of the band such as Mr. Nobody (Larry Tamblyn), Riot On Sunset Strip (Tony Valentino/John Fleck) and Why Did You Hurt Me (Tony Valentino). The Standells had written and recorded material similar to Dirty Water before Ed Cobb (e.g. Help Yourself from the Live At P.J.s album and Big Boss Man from the VJ recording). When Ed Cobb presented Dirty Water to us, it was not much more than an R&B song. He asked us to record it with the agreement we could arrange it. Tony V. came up with the famous guitar riff. Dick D. created the chant in the beginning "I'm going to tell you a story..." so it was more like a combined effort. Later, Mr. Cobb took over more and more control, until we no longer sounded like The Standells. Eventually, we were not even allowed to play on our own songs. He was trying to take us in a direction of a white soul sound (evident in the departure of our sound on Can't Help But Love You). It was for this reason, we decided to part company with Cobb."

Prior to their association with Cobb, the band had recorded a single on Linda in 1964 as Larry Tamblyn and The Standells, three singles and an album for Liberty and a single for MGM who also included two tracks from their first album on the soundtrack to Get Yourself A College Girl (MGM SE 4273) in 1965.

After two singles for Vee Jay, produced by Sonny Bono (The Boy Next Door and Don't Say Goodbye) the band met Cobb. He was sufficiently impressed with them to have them signed to Tower and Dirty Water, released in November 1965, became a smash hit. Curiously, Dewey Martin substituted for Dick Dodd at this time, for four months after Dirty Water was recorded, but before it became a hit.

The Dirty Water album was also strong, providing another hit single, Sometimes Good Guys Don't Wear White, which was issued in June 1966. It was full of strong tracks like Medication, There Is A Storm Comin' and some good covers such as Hey Joe and 19th Nervous Breakdown.

The Standells never equalled this commercial success again. The Why Pick On Me album sold quite well and included a track Have You Ever Spent The Night In Jail? which was apparently written from Cobb's experience whilst in Texas.

The Hot Ones! is best avoided, consisting as it does of cover versions of other artists' classic hits like Sunny Afternoon, Wild Thing and Eleanor Rigby. It flopped badly when it was released in November 1966, and according to the band was recorded only because of Cobb's and Greengrass Production's insistence that they do so.

Later, in 1967, they attracted more attention when Try It was banned because it was alleged to have disgusting lyrics. This was a real injustice because a cover version of the song by Ohio Express in 1968 wasn't. Yet, despite this, the release of their next single Don't Tell Me What To Do with their name spelt backwards as a publicity-seeking gimmick and the inclusion of two tracks, Riot On Sunset Strip and Get Away From Her, on the soundtrack to Riot On Sunset Strip (LP), they never quite achieved their early promise.

Larry: - "Try It we loved and considered closer to the true Standells sound. Can't Help Love You was our next release, which saw Cobb trying to move the sound more towards white soul. Don't Tell Me What To Do, Riot On Sunset Strip and Get Away From Here (from the movie Riot On Sunset Strip) were all recorded and released earlier."

Keen to write and perform their own material, but frustrated by Cobb's increasing manipulation of the band, their association with him ended in 1968 and they split up later that year.

In their latter days it's been reported that they co-opted old friend Joey Stec of Millennium, first as a co-writer, later as a full member, but Larry disagrees: - "I don't recall Joey Stec. As far as I know, he was not a member of The Standells."

Prior to replacing Gary 'Walker' Leeds in The Standells, Dodd was "resting" from being an original Mouseketeer/Blues Magoo. He later recorded an unsuccessful solo album, The First Evolution Of Dick Dodd (Tower ST-5142) in April 1968 and later played for Joshua.

After Dick Dodd's departure, Lowell George (from The Factory) was recruited, but the band split soon afterwards, reforming again later without Lowell.

Larry Tamblyn, who was the brother of Russ Tamblyn, also made three singles for Faro prior to forming The Standells. Larry: "In the late fifties and early sixties, I was signed to Faro and Linda Records, owned by Eddie Davis, who later spearheaded the Chicano music movement with groups like El Chicano, Los Lobos, Cannon Ball and The Headhunters, etc. I had several singles out, including Dearest and This Is The Night. I am told the Salez Brothers sang backup on the latter." He also produced the third single by the East Side Kids.

A further Larry Tamblyn single followed in 1968 - Summer Clothes Pts 1 & 2 (Sunburst) 1968. Larry: - "Summer Clothes (side one, vocal by Larry Tamblyn; side two Instrumental) was actually performed by The Standells and produced by Ed Cobb. But like Don't Tell Me What To Do, it was so different from the group's sound, that it was credited as 'Larry'."

In 1969 Larry Tamblyn teamed up with three members of The Knack to become The Chakras. Of the other members, Gary Leeds left the band prior to the recording of the Live At P.J.s album and had a brief spell with The Walker Brothers before forming Gary Walker and The Rain. Dave Burke was previously bassist with The Tropics, from Tampa and went on to join Indian Puddin' and Pipe.

The Standells understandably have figured on several compilations, including:- Someday You'll Cry on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD); Big Boss Man on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP); Dirty Water on Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 1 (LP), Battle Of The Bands (CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD), Tough Rock (LP) and Wild Thing (2-LP); Sometimes Good Guys Don't Wear Whlte on Highs Of The Sixties (LP); Try It and Sometimes Good Guys Don't Wear White on Nuggets, Vol. 2 (LP); Try It! on Born Bad, Vol. 4 (LP); Dirty Water and Why Pick On Me on Nuggets (CD) and Golden Archive Series Sampler, Sometimes Good Guys Don't Wear White and Try It on More Nuggets (CD); You'll Be Mine Some Day on The East Side Sound, Vol. 1 - 1959-1968 (CD); Tide Away on What A Way To Die (LP); Eleanor Rigby on Outta Sight! (LP); Riot On Sunset Strip on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); Girl In My Heart on The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 3 (CD); Dirty Water, Sometimes Good Guys Don't Wear White and Why Pick On Me on Nuggets Box (4-CD); and there's an unnamed bonus track on What A Way To Die (LP) which sounds like it dates from very early in their career.

In November 1999, The Standells reformed for a live gig at the annual 'Cavestomp '99!' festival for garage fans in New York. Other bands which appeared included The Chocolate Watch Band and The Monks!! Their set, which included many of their best known songs, drew acclaim from gig-goers was later issued on CD Ban This! Live From The Cavestomp! (Varese 06692) 2000. In 2010, there's still a version of the band on the road. They visited the UK in June 2010, gigging at 229 Great Portland St, London among other engagements. (VJ/MW/JFr/GSw/SR/GGc/LT)

ALBUM:	1(A)	STANLEY STEAMER	(Jolly Rogers JR 5002) 1972

California group Stanley Steamer played in the style of Ten Wheel Drive, with a horn section. Holly Vaughn had earlier sung in the First Edition with Kenny Rogers who produced this album on his label. It tries to combine progressive rock and soul with powerful female vocals, notably on the side long Three Humours Of Man. (SR)

Rick Stanley (CA)

ALBUM:	1	JAI GURU DEV: SONG OF LIFE	(Ganesh) 1970

Rick Stanley had been a member of Gentle Soul in the late sixties. By the time of this release he was a disciple of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. The album commences with a lecture on the virtues of transcendental meditation. The remainder is comprised of spiritual folky sounds. The tracks comprise: Same Thing, It's Easy, Three Fields Of Life, Song Of Life, The Whisper Of Lord Krishna, Truth Of Life, and The Holy Tradition (Excerpts).

Stanley was later involved with a band called Natural Tendency. (VJ)

Hailing from the Los Angeles area, The Starfires started off as an early sixties beat band doing cover versions and their album, a live album of cover versions (Around And Around, Walkin' The Dog. Farmer John, Peter Gunn, Hold Me, Justin, Money, No Reply, Great Balls Of Fire, Apache and Stand By Me) was in this mode. Thereafter they became very punkish, performing mainly original compositions written by their bassist Freddy Fields. I Never Loved Her in particular stands out as a classic garage number, with a twist in the tail to its lyrics and one of the all-time great riffs. Other tracks also have merit too, with Cry For Freedom being notable as an early Vietnam protest.

Their final single features a reasonable version of the Chris Kenner song but tucked away on the flip is The Hardest Way, a stunning low-key moody droning pop-punker from Freddy Fields with dynamic drumming, lashings of choppy guitars and mean fuzz.

Sonny Lathrop, was later rhythm guitarist in a slick club band called Mickey And The Invaders in 1967 and later went on to form Sweet Marie.

G.I. 4003 is known to exist, but does not contain material by The Starfires.

Compilation coverage has included: I Never Loved Her on Pebbles, Vol. 8 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 8: Southern California 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2 x 7") and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP); Linda on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 1 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP) and Mondo Frat Dance Bash A Go Go (CD); There's Still Time on Acid and Flowers (CD) and *Basementsville! Walking Around/That's How It Feels (Decima 2001) 1965

Steve Ellis was born in Pipestone, Minnesota on 23rd December 1944. He was a great lover of music, cars and motorbikes. By the age of 12 he'd learnt to play guitar, at 14 he'd joined his first local band The Squires. Later, he briefly played with another local band, The Sabres, before forming The Starfires in 1963. They were named after a car and Steve was in every respect the leader of the band, he even did all their bookings. They soon established themselves as a very popular live act in the Midwest. In 1964 Ron Butler switched to organ and Butch Jergins came in on bass. Later Barry Hanson replaced Jim Brandenburg on rhythm guitar and Bill Storie replaced Butch Jergins on bass. By mid-1965 Ron Butler had left the group and the remaining four players went to Sears Recording Studio in Omaha, Nebraska to cut a demo disc using two Steve Ellis original compositions Walk Around/That's How It Feels. The pressing is now rare. The songs weren't punk, but veered towards folk-rock. Ellis headed out to California with the demo and tried to attract the attention of a major label, but he returned empty-handed. Despite this setback the band never gave up, they re-recorded the single in Dodge City, Kansas and it was issued on the Decima label. This was a far superior version. Butch Hatting left the band soon after it was released and a new line-up (E) was put together. In the summer of 1967 this line-up travelled to the IGL Recording Studio in Milford, Iowa to begin recording several new Steve Ellis compositions. Five were recorded - On My Mind, Her Face, Looking Thru Me, Pride Of A Man and Baby's Gone - plus Since I Fell For You, a cover of a Skyliners' song released in 1963. Then tragedy struck, before the other five songs could be completed, Steve was killed in a freak motorcycle accident on 31st August 1967, when his rear tyre blew, He was just 22. The Songbook album was pieced together after his death. It consisted of the six finished songs cut at IGL Studios, the two songs from the previous single and narration from a friend of his, Tom Rambler and is now very rare. The Starfires soldiered on for a while without Steve before calling it a day.

Pride Of A Man was also included on the rare Roof Garden Jamboree (LP) compilation released in 1967. More recently, seven tracks - That's How It Feels, Walking Around, an alternate version of Pride of A Man, Her Face, On My Mind, Looking Thru Me and My Baby's Gone were compiled on The IGL Rock Story Part Two (CD) and Pride Of A Man has got another airing on *The Arf! From Levittown, Long Island, New York, Stark Naked's album is a superb and very under-rated progressive album with long organ tracks, fuzz, pleasant piano interludes and some effective female vocals in places. From the Los Angeles area Stark Naked And The Car Thieves have been variously described as 'garage' or 'soul-tinged rock'.

Gary Myers (Mojo Men/Portraits) remembers this band: - "Stark Naked and The Car Thieves came from S.F. to L.A. in late '65 and they were doing a lot of the same material as our band (the Mojo Men, as we hadn't yet changed our name to The Portraits) - Four Seasons and other pop harmony things, along with soul/dance stuff like Knock On Wood, etc. They had three lead singers. They also did the Flamingo in Las Vegas (dance room, not the lounge or the show room), and they either preceded or followed us at a club in San Jose in '67." (VJ/GM/MW)

British guitarist/R&B fanatic Dave Starky moved to Houston in late 1964 and with the help of some local boys soon started up The Dave Starky Five. In 1965, they caught the eye of a shady local record guy called Ray Rush, who took them into the ACA-Goldstar Studios to record the above two originals, both excellent garage pounders. Before the record could be released, however, Starky flew the coop and returned to England. The band more or less broke up at this point, but Rush wanted to release the record, cooking up a crazy promo scheme with a local radio station in a "rename the recording group" contest. The winner was chosen to be Just Us and that's how the record was released in January 1966. The original singer and bass player got some other guys and got back together at this point, but they hated the new name, so they went back to calling themselves The Dave Starky Five. Unfortunately, they never regained their momentum.

Compilation appearances include: Stand There on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 7 (LP & CD); and Hey Everybody on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP) (the sleeve-notes to which have provided the information for this entry). (VJ/GG)

THE STARLITERS - Journey With... CD.

A quartet of students from South Stokes High School, North Carolina who have a great deal of talent to offer - so said Calvin Newton on the original liner notes to this rare album. A smattering of Invasion covers (Beatles, Animals) plus some clubby ballads and instrumentals (the obligatory Wipe Out). It's undoubtedly competent, but the band doesn't really swing, snap or bite and the vocals tend to be flat (in sound rather than key). Perhaps just doing covers meant they weren't able or willing to assert their own identity, creativity or let loose. Like some others on this Justice series, they sound stuck somewhere around 1964 to 1965 too - no sign of a fuzztone. The reissue satisfies curiosity but not the palate. (MW)

From Baton Rouge, Louisiana Alva Starr's real name was Alva Snelling. His September 1967 debut features the metronomic garage-punker Clock On The Wall, whose lyrics foretell the threat of a nuclear holocaust. It has reappeared on Beyond The Calico Wall (LP/CD) whose liners reported that Snelling was a clinical social worker, was active on the Louisiana music scene as a member of The Frenge, and that his previous combo (The Luv-Rackers) had recorded a new version of Clock On The Wall on a 1986 single. His December 1967 follow-up couples a keening ballad, a cover of Arthur Alexander's Anna, with a moody folk-punker. (MW/VJ)

Charlie Starr (?)

ALBUMS: (up to 1977)	1	JUST PLAIN CHARLIE	(Mercury SR-61209) 1969
	2	TOUGH & TENDER	(Prophecy SD-6052) 1971
	3	CHARLIE STARR	(Tiger Lily 14012) 1976

Charlie Starr was blind and is pictured with his dog on the front of Just Plain Charlie - his best album. Despite sporting the appearance of a country record it does (after the first three tracks) feature some good heavy guitar work.

Tough & Tender includes two self-penned numbers: When Does A Man Become A Man and Dirty Water. It includes covers of James Taylor's One Man Dog, Riding On A Railroad and Don't Talk Now, Joni Mitchell's For Free and the Goffin/King composition Sweet Sweet Heart.

His final album in the time period of this book was issued on Tiger Lily, a tax scam label that was run by the founder of Roulette Records, Morris Levy. The label tended to acquire demo tapes from artists and then release them without their consent and often without their knowledge too. (VJ)

Starvation Army Band (TX)

Personnel incl:	DUKE DAVIS	bs	A

This band is thought to have recorded singles on London in the sixties. Duke Davis played bass for the 13th Floor Elevators for a short while in early 1968. They also recorded material for International Artists but had nothing released. (VJ)

The State of Mind (DE)

Personnel incl:	JAMES BOOTH	A

45s:	Move/If He Comes Back	(Chavis 1038) 1966
	Goin' Away/Make You Cry	(Chavis 1041) c1966

This punk outfit came from Wilmington, Delaware. Move is usually considered their finest moment and features a wonderful 'shuffle' rhythm and superb guitar break.

Compilation appearances include: Move on Pebbles, Vol. 5 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 5 (CD), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); and Make You Cry and Goin' Away on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

The State of Mind (FL)

45:	Time Will Tell/City Life	(Tener 1017) 1967

Here's a different State Of Mind from the Orlando area of Florida. In addition to the single they have one track, a cover of The Byrds' My Back Pages, on the 1967 sampler album Bee Jay Demo, Vol. 2 (Tener 1014) (LP). (MW)

Statesiders (NJ)

45: Patterned The Sand/
She Belonged To Another (Providence 410) 1965

From Wildwood, New Jersey both sides are composed by Carnaby and Shakepeare and have resurfaced on Mindrocker, Vol. 12 (LP). The single was produced by Steve Rappaport who was involved with the Redcoats/Sidekicks. (VJ/MW)

The Statesmen (OH)

45s: Stop And Get A Ticket/Stick With Me Baby (Tema 137) 1967
Lolly Pop/Tijuana Blues (PS) (Tema PXT 171/2) 196?

This is thought to have been The Baskerville Hounds, a Cleveland, Ohio band operating under a different name. Their version of Stop And Get A Ticket, which was actually a hit for the Clefs Of Lavender Hill, can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 9 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD). (VJ/MW)

45s: Buster Brown Part 1 /Part 2 (Bregg 1000) 196?
The Girl Can't Help It/Harlem Shuffle (Camelot 110) 196?
Tell Me The Truth/Rinky Dink (Camelot 115) 196?

This act from Seattle had backed Tiny Tony on his 1962 regional hit Hey Mrs. Jones. Their three singles are said to have been fine examples of the raw Northwest sound in this era and the act is notable for including Merrilee Rush, who later had a successful solo career. The last two are thought to date from around 1965. Neil Rush later played with Merrilee Rush and The Turnabouts, and the remaining members were later in International Brick.

Compilation appearances include: Hey Mrs. Jones on Bolo Bash (LP); and Tell Me The Truth on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 14 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD). (DR/MW)

Having Fun Again/In The Morning (RCA 47-9419) 1967
With A Little Love/From My Swing (RCA 47-9598) 1968

This was a Peter, Paul, & Mary-format, old-school-folk vocal trio from Athens, Georgia and hence a very marginal case for inclusion here. They were originally known as Warner, Porter, Warner. (SR/MW)

Status Quo (AZ)

45: They All Want Her Love/All My Trials (Grant 45-690) 1966

Unrelated to the world famous U.K. band, this act came from Phoenix, Arizona.

They All Want Her Love, with its slightly discordant guitar, can also be found on Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD) and Texas Punk From The Sixties (LP). (VJ)

George Stavis (CA)

Personnel:	TIM ACKERMAN	perc	A
	GEORGE STAVIS	5-string banjo	A

ALBUM: 1(A) LABYRINTHS (Vanguard VSD-6524) 1969 SC

Stavis released this acoustic psychedelic album in 1969 with the support of the drummer from his previous group, Federal Duck. Subtitled "Occult Improvisational compositions for 5-string banjo and percussion", it offers five long tracks, Winter Doldrums, Finland Station, Firelight, Cold Spring plus a cover of My Favorite Things. (Coltrane is cited as a strong influence in the liner notes, along with Earl Scruggs and Ravi Shankar.)

Like the Peter Walker albums, where Vanguard was obviously trying to find another Sandy Bull, this album does not always hit the mark. But other than the Serpent Power album, I don't know where else one can find psychedelic banjo excursions. For fans of Sandy Bull, John Fahey, Peter Walker, J. P. Pickens, etc. it is well worth the effort in tracking down a copy.

Stavis was later with a Santa Cruz, California band called Oganookie that released a live album in 1973. (SR/DMo)

45: Never On A Monday/Rosie Lee (Epic 10753) 1971

A hard-rock/blues-rock quintet, with three black and two white musicians, they went totally unnoticed. Duane Hitchings went on to play with Cactus and Alice Cooper.

They also contributed one cut Maybe to a Douglas Records promotional EP, Douglas 1 (Douglas AS7 1008) in 1972. (SR/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) LADY BRIGHT (Polydor 24-4027) 1971

45: Lady Bright/Never Coming Back (Polydor 14030) 1971

Produced by Eddie Kramer, this hard-edged rock outfit from New York City was strongly influenced by Uriah Heep, with lots of guitar/keyboards interplay and good vocals on their album. All their material was penned by the group members (Radicello, Spinella and Parrish) and some tracks are quite good, notably Wrought Iron Man and Lady Bright, this one with the guitar of Kim King (from Lothar and The Hand People) who also engineered the album.

Bob Spinella was previously in The Critters. Wrought Iron Man has been compiled on Up All Night (CD). (SR)

Steeple Peeple (?)

45: Ol' Man River/Green Plant (B.T. Puppy BTP 534) 1967

Unfortunately the 'A' side is a dire pop version of that Ol' Man River. So stick to the flip side - Green Plant - yes, the same track later covered by the Majic Ship, as featured on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP), and coincidentally released on the same label (B.T. Puppy 548) in 1968. The version here is lighter but excellent cool fuzzed-pop. And there's more...

The identical fuzz-pop track turns up again behind soulful songstress Amanda Ambrose on B.T. Puppy 539. And there's an earlier version of it - a cool jazzy instrumental with melodious sax by Shenny "Goofy" Brown on B.T. Puppy 531. So four different versions and all pretty good. (MW)

The Stench Band played and recorded in Lincoln, Nebraska from 1971-1973 and released one 7" EP (Pray For The Dead) in 1972.

The retrospective album shows the band to have been heavily influenced by Captain Beefheart and Zappa, with several strange and experimental cuts augmenting the original EP tracks. (VJ)

Originally from San Francisco, Leigh Stephens had previously been in Blue Cheer and Silver Metre. He moved to England in 1969 and recorded two interesting albums, the first being the better of the two. Red Weather is a good mix of psychedelia and progressive rock with effects on the guitars and voices. The second is more traditional, with a cover of Jumpin' Jack Flash and too many female background vocals. Leigh lets his blues roots show through, but in the bizarre context of show-tune-style female vocals and horns. The better tracks include the bluesy Simple Song, Zep-meets-Stones Oh Lord, and the closing track Chunk Of Funk, a fun jam. The album grows on you, though, mostly for the guitar work, which is really solid.

Stephens went on form Pilot with Waller and Bruce Stephens (ex-Blue Cheer), releasing two albums in 1972 and 1973. (SR/VJ)

STEPPENWOLF - Line-up 'A'.

Many compilations of Steppenwolf material exist from all over the world. Probably the rarest and earliest is the Japanese All About Steppenwolf (Stateside HP-8565) 1968, containing only tracks from the first two albums and pressed on red vinyl. Three US compilations fit within the time-frame of this book: (11) and (15) both cover the 1968-71 period with rather sloppy liner notes and (16) collects material from their CBS albums in an inexcusably bad sleeve; thankfully this is rare. Here are some other compilations (although this list is by no means comprehensive): Best Of Steppenwolf (Pickwick SPC 3063) 1978; Ultimate Collection (Polygram 831 212-4) 1986; 16 Original Hits (MCA 256 141-2) 1989; Born To Be Wild (Duchess CD 352068) 1989; Born To Be Wild: A Retrospective (2-CD) (MCA MCA2-10389) 1991; Born To Be Wild: Best (Zounds CD 27200484 B) 1992; The Very Best Of Steppenwolf (Music Club MCCD 263) 1996 features 18 tracks and many of their finest but it does not include The Pusher, All Time Greatest Hits (MCA 088 112 063-2) 1999; Classic [The Universal Masters Collection] (MCA 112 672-2) 2001; and Collection (Spectrum 1130102) 2003 contains 19 tracks from Born To Be Wild to The Pusher and the odd more recent recording.

These early versions are very different and quite psychedelic (with backwards guitar solo!). β issued in picture sleeve with amazing band photo (line-up 'B' - oops!) and banner: "As Featured In The Sound Track Of The Motion Picture Easy Rider". χ both sides are the versions appearing on the Steppenwolf Live double album but without the audience noise overdubbed, proving rather conclusively that the album was (at least partially) assembled from studio recordings, like most "live" albums from the era. ε was probably a replacement for δ, the 'A' side is an album track from For Ladies Only, but the 'B' side of δ is a studio freakout! Clocking in at 8'46" it's also one of the longest 45 sides extant. Obviously not intended for the album, the track is instrumental, composed mostly of feedback from the bass guitar and creepy organ sounds. Edmonton/Biondo/McJohn are credited as writers on the label and they must have been buzzed to come up with this! ϕ 'B' side is non-LP. Many of Steppenwolf's US singles were issued in Europe and Japan with picture sleeves. η promo only.

STEPPENWOLF
BORN TO BE WILD

STEPPENWOLF - Self Titled LP.

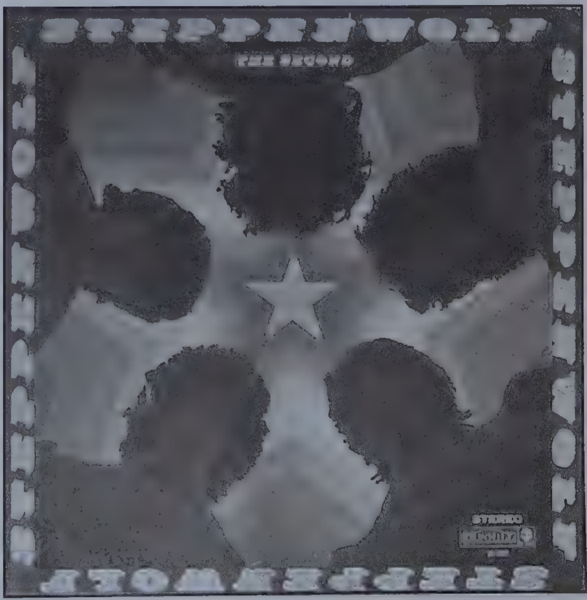
Steppenwolf evolved out of the Canadian group Jack London and The Sparrows, who made an album in 1965 for Canadian Capitol. Jerry Edmonton (born Jerry McCrohan), Dennis (Mars Bonfire) Edmonton (born Dennis McCrohan), Nick St. Nicholas and Goldy McJohn (born John Goadsby) all did time with this band, which was a very hot property in Toronto in the mid-sixties. It was a mutual interest in blues music that led these four to join forces with the German-born John Kay (Born Joachim Krauledat), who was playing clubs as an acoustic solo act in Canada and the USA. Now known simply as The Sparrow, the Kay-led band recorded singles for Columbia which were later compiled on an album John Kay and The Sparrow (Columbia CS-9758) 1969 and more recently on CD The Best Of John Kay And Sparrow: Tighten Up Your Wig (Columbia Legacy CK-53044) 1993. The Sparrow spent most of their time in the 'States by 1966 - first in New York, and then California. They settled in Mill Valley, and played all the ballrooms in nearby San Francisco in May-June 1967. When money got tight, Dennis Edmonton and Nick St. Nicholas left the band and moved to Los Angeles, where St. Nicholas set up a new group, T.I.M.E. and Edmonton pursued a solo career as Mars Bonfire. John Kay, Jerry Edmonton and Goldy McJohn also made the move south, but set up their own new band, Steppenwolf (after the Herman Hesse novel) with local musicians Rushton Moreve and Michael Monarch (who was just 17!). They spent the next six months rehearsing material for their album, which was recorded in little more than one day in January 1968. (Their first Dunhill single certainly pre-dates the album sessions, but exactly when these rather psychedelic early tracks were recorded is unknown.)

The initial single release from the album, Sookie, Sookie didn't make much impression, but radio stations started playing Born To Be Wild from the album and when Dunhill issued it as a single, it spent the summer of 1968 at the top of the charts.

Steppenwolf is an astoundingly good debut album. It will probably always be remembered for containing Born To Be Wild, but it was John Kay's original compositions that gave the record real depth and colour. Desperation (covered by Humble Pie on their debut album), reprised largely from Chasin' Shadows by The Sparrow but given new life by Kay's re-arrangement and new lyrics, Take What You Need, Your Wall's Too High, Everybody's Next One (a song about groupies, covered by Ambrose Slade), A Girl I Knew and The Ostrich are all quite amazing and make up the real meat of the album.

The Ostrich featured provocative lyrics concerning ecological and (especially) political matters; a subject Kay would focus much of his imagination on throughout his career.

"You're free to speak your mind, my friend
As long as you agree with me
Don't criticise the fatherland
Or those who shape your destiny
'Cause if you do
You'll lose your job, your mind,
And all the friends you knew
We'll send out all our boys in blue
They'll find a way to silence you."



STEPPENWOLF - Steppenwolf The Second LP.

The album shot up the charts (deservedly so), and Steppenwolf threw themselves into a frantic touring and recording itinerary. While this may well have contributed to their considerable commercial success over the next few years, in retrospect it wasn't particularly healthy for the creative process. While Steppenwolf The Second had some fine tracks like None Of Your Doing and Don't Step On The Grass, Sam alongside the smash hit single Magic Carpet Ride, it also reflected a marked downturn in creative dynamics. At Your Birthday Party was even less focused, and hindsight being 20/20... it appears that the band was substituting quantity for quality, which, to be fair, may have been necessary vis-a-vis the terms of their contract with ABC-Dunhill. All these records sold very well, however and their producer Gabriel Mekler did well enough on his own royalties to start his own label, Lizard Records (Jamul, Frantic).

The second half of 1969 saw the theatrical release of two youth-oriented motion pictures featuring the music of Steppenwolf; "Candy" (with Rock Me) and the mega-hit "Easy Rider" which prominently featured both Born To Be Wild and The Pusher. The original soundtrack album of "Easy Rider" reached Gold status, further solidifying Steppenwolf's own stature as a commercial entity, and the band toured as headliners thereafter.

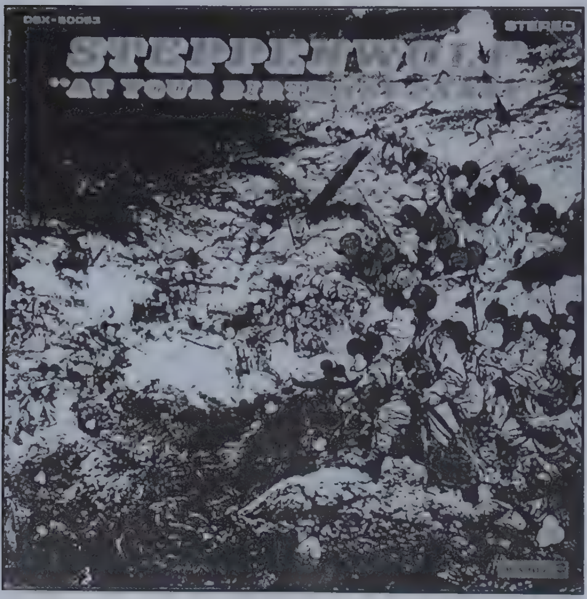
Monster represented a dramatic return to focus, and the new line-up with Larry Byrom (from T.I.M.E. and The Hardtimes) was the most efficient and powerful version of the band yet. The title track, which clocked in at over nine minutes on the album, traced America's evolution from colonisation through to the current conflict in Vietnam with the controversial view that the nation's political fabric had become corrupt and the public at large was helpless to bring about change. This being a more acute problem for the youth of the nation who were being indiscriminately sent to Asia to fight, the song's chorus was a plea to their elders for help:

"America, where are you now?
Don't you care about your sons and daughters?
Don't you know we need you now
We can't fight alone against the monster".

The anti-war/anti-establishment theme courses through the album. Draft Resister is a real gem, probably the strongest track on the record. Quite amazing from both an instrumental and engineering perspective, it has an edgy energy carried largely by Jerry Edmonton's various brilliant percussion overdubs and evocative, sympathetic lyrics from Kay:

"Shame, disgrace and all dishonour
Wrongly placed upon their heads
Will not rob them of the courage
That betrays the innocent."

Byrom's guitar work is dark and searing throughout the album, particularly on Power Play, the intense Move Over, and the aforementioned Draft Resister. The cover art is pretty mind-blowing; said to be the work of famed poster artist Rick Griffin but it is uncredited.



STEPPENWOLF - At Your Birthday Party LP.

The band toured extensively to promote Monster and in mid-1970 Dunhill issued a hastily-assembled "Live" album that went Top 10. This allowed the band more time to fine-tune material for their next album, perhaps the first time since their debut that they had been afforded that luxury. Correspondingly, Steppenwolf 7 represented their creative zenith, and it remains one of American music's most majestic landmarks. Here Steppenwolf revealed that they had developed an unparalleled command of the language of rock. Jerry Edmonton's drumming in particular is spectacularly inventive and dynamic, and John Kay's voice never sounded more confident. Tracks like Renegade (Kay's autobiography of his escape from East Germany as a child, chillingly told with a stunning instrumental section in the middle) and Foggy Mental Breakdown (so influential in composition that scores of Italian progressive bands used it as a blueprint for years) made it clear that Steppenwolf was one of America's best.

Following a summer tour to promote 7, work was begun back in Los Angeles on both For Ladies Only and John Kay's first solo album. For Ladies Only was finished first, and although a bit less consistent than 7, not surprisingly it contains some fine music. Goldy McJohn, whose keyboards were consistently mixed under the guitars on all the group's albums, really takes a front seat here, especially on the title track where he plays a remarkable classically-influenced spotlight piece. The album really shines on side two, though - The Night Time's For You, Sparkle Eyes, Ride With Me and the creepy instrumental Black Pit are all on par with the best material the band produced. New guitarist Kent Henry (born Henry Pilschke) (formerly with L.A. bands Genesis and Charity; he also did session work with Blues Image and Screaming Lord Sutch, appearing on the Heavy Friends album) stepped up his game and covered admirably for the absent Larry Byrom, who was now with a band called Ratchell.

Steppenwolf did not launch a tour to promote the new album, as Kay was still working on his solo project. Kay told the band that he had decided to pursue a solo career when his album was released in the summer and in February 1972 they announced that their upcoming tour would be their last. Kay continued work on his album with Henry and George Biondo, while Jerry Edmonton and Goldy McJohn formed a band with Rod Prince and Roy Cox of Demian called Manbeast that was short-lived and apparently did not make any proper studio recordings.

Kay's first solo album, Forgotten Songs And Unsung Heroes (ABC-Dunhill DS-50120) was released in June and Kay toured to promote it as the opening act for Steppenwolf on their farewell tour. His album did reasonably well, based mostly on the appeal of a nearly Steppenwolf-sounding cover of Hank Snow's I'm Movin' On, but Dunhill also released a compilation of some of Steppenwolf's best album tracks that eclipsed it. Rest In Peace is a dynamic collection, proving conclusively that the best material in the band's canon were not the hits! Kay followed this with My Sportin' Life (ABC-Dunhill DS-50147) in 1973 and even before it was released, a Steppenwolf reunion was in the works. (John Kay's solo records are very listenable, but it was to the confusion of the public at large that they came to exist. It seemed quite unthinkable then, as it does now, that a band as magnificent and successful as Steppenwolf would be sacrificed for Kay's pursuit of any other style of music, simply because his dark, gritty voice was so perfectly suited to the hard-rock medium.)

Free of their contract with ABC, the band was now recording on their own schedule at John Kay's studio (a commercial enterprise owned and operated by Kay for many years!) and their ninth album appeared in 1974. Slow Flux held the promise of an inexorable return to public consciousness; long-time fans of the band were drunk with joy at hearing Kay's trademark growl on Gang War Blues and the blistering lead guitar of new member Bobby Cochran (L.A. session veteran; he later worked with The Flying Burrito Brothers). Slow Flux also has a wonderful underlying humour, best evidenced in the politically-oriented material ("Sure must be fun to watch a President run - just ask the man who owns one!"). Steppenwolf toured and played live on television in support of Slow Flux, which sold well initially but didn't have much staying power. Their new label didn't throw much support behind the follow-ups Hour Of The Wolf or Skullduggery, but admittedly these final two albums by the band are less interesting by comparison. Not coincidentally, these albums from their CBS period are the hardest to locate now.

Between 1977-1980 a number of Steppenwolfs were put on the road by concert promoter Steve Green. Another promoter, Dave Pesnell managed a line-up featuring former members Nick St. Nicholas, Goldy McJohn and Kent Henry, and new lead singer, Tom Pagan. Work commenced on a new studio album, to be produced by Phil Spector in 1978, but the project was abandoned due to friction between Pesnell and Spector.

Kay released another solo album, All In Good Time (Mercury SRM-1-3715) 1978, before forming a new L.A.-based "Steppenwolf" to tour and record with in the eighties. This band has produced at least five albums, the first issued in the USA only as a promotional radio show called Retro Rock (Show RR-82-44) 1982. This was issued commercially in Australia under the title Live In London. Other albums include Wolftracks (1982), Paradox (1984), Rock & Roll Rebels (1987) and Rise & Shine (1990). The albums produced by this band were shown as by John Kay and Steppenwolf, a name change that, while subtle, was likely adopted in respect to the conspicuously absent Jerry Edmonton. Edmonton's drumming and Kay's vocals are the only consistents through the course of Steppenwolf's 11 albums and clearly they share responsibility for much of the magic the band produced. Edmonton's incredibly musical and intuitive ensemble playing is without parallel in hard-rock; his ability to create and build tension using restraint and flawless technique gave the band's best music a mature and sinister feel which has not diminished with time. It's hard to imagine a band called Steppenwolf without him, as much as John Kay. Jerry Edmonton was killed in an automobile accident in November, 1993. He was preceded in death by original bassist Rushton Moreve (also a car accident) in July 1981 and by keyboardist Andy Chapin, who died alongside singer Rick Nelson in a plane crash on the last day of 1985. Kent Henry, who left the band in 1974, moved to Portland, Oregon in the eighties where he played with The Paul DeLay Band and worked as a technician at the Apple Music Store. He died in Portland on 18 March 2009, aged 60.

John Kay moved his centre of operations to an estate in Tennessee in 1989. He hosts an annual "Wolf-fest" there where band alumni meet with fans and perform live.

Steppenwolf's original albums (1968-71) remain essential to collections of rock music from the era outlined in this book, and are not difficult to acquire. As stated earlier, exploring the original releases as opposed to the many 'hits' compilations available will reveal much of their most ambitious music. Many of these are housed in wonderful sleeves as well, often with elements of wry humour that permeated their music. Steppenwolf will be remembered as one of America's pre-eminent rock bands, and in particular, one that helped bring respectability to rock by making it a vehicle for intelligent thought and communication.

Inevitably there have been several compilations of their material and some are listed in the discography.

Compilation appearances have included: Sookie, Sookie on Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part Two (LP); Magic Carpet Ride on Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP), Psychedelic Perceptions (CD), Best Of '60s Psychedelic Rock (CD) and Wild Thing (2-LP); and Screaming Night Hog and Hey Lawdy Mama on Undersound Uppersoul (LP). These singles were the work of a mid-sixties outfit, from California's central valley. I Only Want To Dance With You can also be heard on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP). This was an enthusiastic popish garage effort with powerful drumming. The follow-up So Tough was an adequate cover of a Casuals' song. Pills was compiled on Pebbles Vol 11: Northern California (CD). (MW)

A superb psychedelic outfit from Corpus Christi, Stereo Shoestring was sadly only together from early to late 1968. Tell Her No is a Zombies cover, whilst On The Road South is a superb psychedelic punker, being an adaptation of The Pretty Thing's Defecting Grey.

The band was introduced to the Pretties' track by Ashley Johnson, who had earlier played with Lalor in Clockwork Orange. In late '68, minus Lalor, the band became The Red House.

Formed in 1965 as The Syndicate in the Minneapolis suburb of Robbinsdale, Minnesota they changed their name to The Stillroven in early 1966 when rhythm guitarist Dan Kane replaced Mark Moorhead from The Syndicate's earlier line-up.

The Falcon promo, She's My Woman/(I'm Not Your) Steppin' Stone, only had a limited pressing of 50 copies and like many of their singles is very sought-after. The superb Little Picture Playhouse/Cast Thy Burden Upon The Stone single features pure Anglophile pop on the top side with its quaint theatrical metaphors and piano-based arrangement. The track was originally recorded by U.K. outfit Simon Dupree and The Big Sound and together with the flip, where John Howarth's electric sitar playing adds that hallucinogenic flavour is arguably their creative zenith.

Following this release, their manager Peter May moved to Tucson, Arizona although he still continued his manager/producer role from a distance. More damaging was the departure of talented vocalist Jim Larkin and Dave Berget (although he later rejoined the band). In June 1968, they cut a fourth single, Come In The Morning/Necessary Person. The top side was a Moby Grape cover, but May decided shortly after its release to pull the 'A' side and replace it with a more convincing rendition of The Small Faces' Tell Me Have You Ever Seen Me. By now Dave Berget had rejoined to provide the lead vocal on the song. Only 100 copies of Come In The Morning are thought to have left the factory, making it another highly collectable single. The flip of both versions of this single was a pleasant Mike O'Gara original.

The Cast Thy Burden Upon The Stillroven retrospective features:- And My Baby's Gone, an obscure early Moody Blues track; Have You Got A Penny, a nice pop number; Cheating, a raw Animals' cover; Little Games, a failed 1967 Yardbirds' single and concludes with a slice of improvised psychedelia aptly named Freakout.

Too Many Spaces is a long lost album, recorded in 1968, that showcases the group's more psychedelic side. It contains some superb multi-layered harmonies and acid guitar work. Listen out for Girl In Blonde with its shimmering wah-wah guitar. This release comes with three bonus tracks and a comprehensive booklet containing liner notes written by band leader, David Dean and lots of previously unseen photos and memorabilia.

They also provided a track (Hey Joe) on Money Music (LP), a rare 1967 compilation which itself had a limited pressing. In late 1968, they recorded an entire album for A&M Records which was never released... Sundazed has also promised to unearth that too!

The Stillroven has also been quite extensively compiled. Their version of Hey Joe, which features superb guitar work by John Howarth and is reckoned to be one of the best, has resurfaced along with Cast Thy Burden Upon The Stone on Garage Music For Psych-Heads, Vol. 1 (cassette); their excellent cover of the Small Faces' Have You Ever Seen Me? can also be heard on Changes (LP), and (I'm Not Your) Steppin' Stone re-emerged on Root '66 (LP). Two of their finest moments, Hey Joe and Sunny Day are also compiled in stereo on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

These Sting-Rays were from Newburgh, New York. If I Needed Someone is a good Searchers-style Beatles cover but rather out-of-time by '67. The flip likewise, but it's a good garage popper with ringing guitar and a tough edge. The second single is very disappointing and mellower pop fodder and with brassy intrusions.

The Sting-Rays of Newburgh also did the music for a "Lifesavers Sours" commercial and Bruce Shapiro's mother would later become Mayor of the City of Newburgh!

The Stoics came out of San Antonio, Texas and just 150 copies of this garage gem were pressed on their own label. NB: α shown as by Simon T. Stokes, β shown as by Perpetual Motion Workshop. There was also a French 45 with picture sleeve Voodoo Woman/Can't Stop Now (Elektra INT 80218) 1970, also released in Holland (Elektra EKS 45670). χ was from the first album.

Produced by Michael Lloyd (WCPAEB, Smoke...), designed by Cal Schenkel (Zappa) and dedicated to Jack Kerouac, Simon Stokes' first album is an excellent psychedelic blues album similar to Captain Beefheart. Big City Blues, Voodoo Woman, Ride On Angel and Which Way are fast blues-rock numbers with the growling voice of Stokes and the inventive guitar of Butch Senneville (ex-Quatrain). Almost all of the songs were composed by Stokes and Randall Keith and five tracks also appeared on the soundtrack of "Outlaw Riders", a biker movie.

In 1973, Stokes was back with Senneville for a new album The Incredible Simon Stokes And The Blackwhip Thrill Band produced by David Briggs. Its sleeve designed by Pacific Eye and Ear shows mad monks whipping girls and S&M scenes. Weird! The songs have strange lyrics too (The Boa Constrictor Ate My Wife Last Night, The Wolf Pack Rides The Night, The Devil Just Called My Name and She's Got The Voodoo) and there's a new version of Ride On Angel. John Locke of Spirit plays keyboards on this album.

The fourth album contains a new version of Big City Blues but is not as interesting, being oriented more toward mainstream rock. This album is generally thought to be his last one, but, in 1996, Simon Stokes came back with none other than Timothy Leary to release a CD as Leary and Stokes, Right To Fly (Psychorelic Records 71278 60035 2) 1996, with 12 new songs co-written with Randall Keith. This year saw also the release on Baloney Shrapnel Records of Ride On by Conqueror Worm, a group formed by members of various US alternative groups (Rancid Vat, Poison Idea, and Alcoholics Unanimous). They covered 12 of Stokes' songs, including Big City Blues, Hot Summer Nights, Wolfpack Rides The Night and Voodoo Woman.

Prior to forming the Nighthawks, Stokes released some solo singles and was in Perpetual Motion Workshop, who released one sought-after single. Robert Ledger was previously in Armageddon and Harry Garfield had been in Gary Lewis and The Playboys. Stokes was also the vocalist on the Mini Skirt Blues by The Flower Children.

Truth Is Stronger Than Fiction can also be heard on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD). (SR/MW/VJ/HM/GN)

	I Need You/Never Be Right	(Tomahawk 113) 1967

From the town of Valley, Alabama on the border with Georgia, this quintet released two singles in 1967 on the Tomahawk label based in Columbus, Georgia. Their decent version of the Hollies' I'm Alive is faithful albeit with misheard lyrics. Managers Shawn Murphy and Bruce Andrews thought up the band's name and secured gigs for them in the area. They opened for the likes of The Box Tops, Tommy James and The Shondells and Billy Joe Royal.

STONE CIRCUS - Self Titled LP.

I Need You is bright-eyed Beatlesque pop, 1964-5 vintage. It was written by replacement bassist Wiggins (who was several years younger than the other members) and can also be found on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). I'm Alive and Set Me Free turned up on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). 45:	Mister Grey/What Went Wrong	(Mainstream 694) 1969

Thought to have been Californian, this band was responsible for one of the rarer and stranger Mainstream releases, which incorporates many diverse influences. Sometimes it doesn't always gel but it certainly makes interesting listening. All the cuts are originals, written either by Jonathan Caine or a guy called Murphy, who presumably had some connection with the band, since some tracks are co-written by Caine and Murphy. The material is wide-ranging from the accessible psych-pop of Sara Wells, laid-back, melodic opening cut What Went Wrong and up-tempo Inside-Out Man to the highly experimental People I Once Knew, which starts with spoken lyrics over melodic piano and later descends into lots of fuzz and organ work. The Mister Grey single, which is also on the album, is interesting too. This album will appeal to fans of psychedelia and/or progressive rock but not garage purists.

It is thought that Jonathan Caine was later the keyboard player of Journey. (VJ)

Love Psalm/Magnolias (RCA 47 9472) 1968
Wheels On Fire/Million Dollar Bash (RCA 47 9534) 1968

A truly excellent, but difficult to categorise, psychedelic album, at times country-oriented with strong lead vocal and beautiful harmonies and at times similar to some tracks by Ars Nova or Kaleidoscope. Produced by Rick Jarrard (Loading Zone, Jefferson Airplane, Harry Nilsson), it was recorded in Hollywood and is worth searching for.

In her 1969 rock encyclopedia, Lilian Roxon mentioned that "they played a combination of rock, folk, country-rock, pop, country that just covers everything and even has its own name: mod country". A gifted singer and songwriter, Steve Young shortly afterwards went solo and recorded a long series of critically acclaimed albums in the country-rock style, his most well known song being Seven Bridges Road. Don Beck went on to join Dillard and Clark, whilst Denny Conway became a session man.

The last single contains non-album cuts.

Compilation appearances include: Wheels On Fire on Mindrocker, Vol. 9 (LP); and Time Isn't There (Anymore) got a further airing on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 2 (CD). (SR/LG)

45: Gotta Find A Way/Try Love (Harmon NLH 101) 196?

Stoned Circus was a fine hippie quintet with male/female vocals in the Jefferson Airplane mould. They formed in 1968 in Kansas City, Missouri. They recorded their only album, on 4th September 1970 at Cavern Sound Studios, Missouri and were originally from Independence (Harry Truman's birthplace). This is the same studio where The Wizards From Kansas and Burlington Express laid down their first tracks. The album, which remained unissued until 1994, contains an excellent cover of the traditional Babe I'm Gonna Leave You. Other tracks include: New World, Trust, Gotta Find Way and Try Love. Their single was recorded at Cavern as well and produced by N. L. Harmon. (VJ/GG/MW)

Yet another obscure one-off single by an unknown band on the collectable Springfield, Illinois label. 45: Oceans Inside Me/Stop My Thinking (Angelus WR 4819) 1969

NB: just 300 copies were pressed.

The Rockadelic album comprises studio and live recordings by this Idaho band from 1969 through 1971 and is nicely packaged in a gatefold sleeve with numerous photos plus an insert where Paul Speer tells their story.

Lewiston, Idaho was home to the Speer brothers and they started pre-teen groups in the early sixties, first as the Three Dimensions and later the Knights Of Sound. Renamed Stone Garden in 1967, they were influenced by The Doors, Hendrix, Cream, Beatles and Creedence Clearwater Revival.

In 1969, local support led to their first recording forays resulting in their now rare single and several unreleased tracks recorded by Rick Keefer at Ripcord Studios in Vancouver, Washington. All are aired on the album, which consists predominantly of heavy acid-rock with Cream influences to the fore. It's one of the better Rockadelic releases for hard-rock fans. The opening cut Oceans Inside Me (an alternate take to their single) is the highlight with great guitar and sharp vocals, but tracks like It's A Beautiful Day, Assembly Line, the 45 take of Oceans Inside Me and Woodstick have similar strengths. SF Policeman Blues adds some humour.

Graduations would force line-up changes and the band relocated to Seattle in 1971, only to break up a year later. Sadly Dan Merrell was killed by a hit and run driver in 1972 and Gary Speer died in 1994.

Oceans Inside Me was earlier compiled on Filling The Gap (4-LP box). (MW/VJ)

Prior to their first album this band recorded an album that was never issued. Warner Bros reputedly have the tapes. They became the touring band for Warner Bros. Medicine Ball Caravan, a multi-circus group which toured Canada and the USA and journeyed to London between the summer of 1970 and February 1971. During this time they recorded demos for Columbia, which later appeared on a limited edition album. Reputedly pretty good despite their marginal sound quality; they include several tracks not included on later albums. For reasons better known to them the label called the album Stoneground-On Stage (Blue Velvet FCP 001), although none of the tracks are live.

After their tour they settled in their native San Francisco, where they rapidly established a reputation as a fine live band. Their debut album was notable for fine guitar work by Barnes and used several vocalists to good effect. The follow-up was a double album consisting of one studio side and three live sides from a San Francisco radio FM broadcast. After one further album Stoneground Three with the full size band internal friction led to the departure of all of the original members except Barnes and Sampson. They too, split for a while, but Barnes returned in 1973 with a new four-piece line-up.

They recorded further albums outside the time-span of this book that were not as good although Barnes' guitar work got better and the band's live reputation remained. A new line-up recorded four more albums between 1976 and 1982 - most of the songs being rock'n'roll. This was out of context in the disco and new wave era and eventually Stoneground disintegrated completely in the early eighties. Annie Sampson then embarked on a solo career.

Stoneground was also featured in the soundtrack to the Peter Cushing film 'Dracula A.D. 1972'. They can be seen performing Alligator Man in a party-scene at the beginning of the movie.

In 2004 original band members Tim Barnes and Steve Price reformed Stoneground with new members Dana Moret (vcls), Claudia Knauer (vcls), Greg King (bs) and Kelly Stephens (keyb'ds, gtr). They released a new album, Back With A Vengeance.

An historically important band in the tapestry of West Coast rock (for example, Sal Valentino had earlier been with Beau Brummels and later formed Valentino which included Blakely and Phillips; Lydia Phillips had earlier played with Indian Puddin' And Pipe; Pete Sears joined from Silver Metre and later played with Copperhead and Jefferson Starship, and Price, Godula and Lerois were all previously in Together). The band was also featured on the Last Days Of The Fillmore album. (VJ/MW/CGo)

Also of interest is Re-Emerges (Void 20) 2001, an album containing re-recorded and new material.

A mysterious duo from Youngstown, Ohio produced this sole album. Despite the ridiculous prices that the original fetches along with a plethora of superlatives from dealers eager for "mega-bucks", this is one album that justifies the hype. A mixed-bag of seventies "psych" to be sure, but it's a wonderfully atmospheric album that veers from folk-acoustics through acid and heavy rock and everywhere in between with fluid acidic and often over-the-top manic guitar. Ballas and McCarty are both multi-instrumentalists and create a dreamlike experience with primitive electronics and drums. There's also some background fuzz.

NEW IMPROVED FULL DIMENSIONAL STEREO
The Stone Poneys

THE STONE PONEYS - Self Titled LP.

This interesting California folk-rock outfit was originally a duo of Linda Rondstadt and Bob Kimmel known as The Kimmel Brothers, but they soon adopted the Stone Poneys moniker and recruited Ken Edwards. Both Ken and Bob were already respected songwriters and studio musicians.

Their first album was produced by Nick Venet (Mad River, Leaves, Euphoria) and is really good. The material is strong (Wild About My Lovin', Train And The River, Sweet Summer Blue And Gold) and the music and vocals extremely consistent. All the songs were written by Edwards and Kimmel, except for Tom Campbell's 2.10 Train and Orion, and Little Bit Of Rain by Fred Neil. It is worth noting that all the backing musicians and Venet also worked with Fred Neil on his two albums recorded in 1967.

After two further albums the trio disbanded, although Stone Poneys And Friends was basically the original group in the studio with session players. When Different Drum became a hit, Linda went on the road with Bobby Kimmel (gtr), Shep Cooke (bs) and other sidemen. By that time, the group was defunct but Ronstadt needed the money and to support the single, they played a four-month tour as 'Linda Ronstadt and the Stone Poneys'.

This group was dropped as soon as the tour finished and by November 1968 the Stone Poneys, were John Forsha (gtr), John Ware (drms), John Keski (bs), Herb Steiner (steel gtr) and Bill Martin (piano). Herb Steiner recalls: "In 1968, Linda Ronstadt hired me for the Stone Poneys band as a dobroist/mandolinist. When she found out I could play a little steel guitar (mostly non-pedal), she encouraged me. Michael Nesmith was a friendly acquaintance of mine, and graciously loaned me a steel guitar until I could purchase one of my own. In the year I played with her we had several band incarnations, but the one that toured most was myself on steel, John Forsha on guitar, John London on bass, Johnny Ware on drums and Bill Martin on piano. My first gig after the Stone Poneys' was to move to Connecticut and join the Wildweeds, whose band leader, Al Anderson, went on to the NRBQ."

Kenny Edwards went on to the Los Angeles band Bryndle alongside Peter Bernstein, Wendy Waldman, Andrew Gold and Karla Bonoff. They played their first show at McCabe's in Santa Monica in 1969 and in 1970 recorded what should have been their debut album for A&M Records with newcomer producer Chuck Plotkin. Only a single, Woke Up This Morning, was ever released and was a regional hit in northern California before disappearing. Bryndle soon disbanded with Andrew Gold and Kenny Edwards then forming the Rangers with Peter Bernstein (bassist of Bryndle and son of composer Elmer Bernstein) and Gene Garfin on drums (ex-Comfortable Chair). They made demo after demo, but never got a deal. In 1973, Andrew Gold joined Linda Ronstadt's band, then Kenny followed suit in time for her Heart Like A Wheel album. Kenny Edwards also kept on working in the California studios, notably with Bernie Schwartz and Warren Zevon.

John London (real name John Kuehne) and John Ware went on to join the Corvettes, who also featured Bernie Leadon and Chris Darrow and cut two 1969 singles for the Dot label. The Corvettes became Linda's backing band in 1969 but folded in December '69 when Leadon joined the Flying

Burrito Brothers. London and Ware both joined Michael Nesmith's First National Band in late 1969, London had previously played with Nesmith in 1966, before relocating to L.A. in 1966. Sadly, he passed away in 2000. Ex-Stone Poneys' Shep Cooke and Bob Kimmel later formed the Floating House Band, a studio project for their 1972 album, although the duo did play at McCabe's alongside Bryndle. Andrew Gold also assisted on the album.

Cyrus Faryar was also in Modern Folk Quartet and Billy Mundi in Lamp Of Childhood.

Stonewall is an extremely rare hard-rock album with some psychedelic trappings. The sound is a very heavy blues that borderlines on the proto-metal blueprint; harsh and raspy and with a drive that will equal anything of its time. Being issued on the tax loss label Tiger Lily ensured that it would remain an obscurity. This album is far more likely to interest hard-rock enthusiasts than connoisseurs of psychedelia. Solitude and Atlantis are probably the most relevant tracks to this book.

The band is thought to have been based in New York. (VJ/NK)

He's Back Again/Just A Little Lovin'
(Early in the Mornin') (Columbia 4-45116) 1970

Originally known as The Penny Candy and mentored by Neil Diamond, this hippie-pop band underwent a change of name and personnel when Tommy Smothers of the Smothers Brothers signed them up to the Smo Bro Talent production agency. With a completely new line-up from Long Island and rechristened Stony Brook People, they relocated to Los Angeles and were signed up by Columbia. After Mike Gregory had been replaced by Mike Barnardo, they debuted with a version of Easy To Be Hard, from the hit Broadway musical Hair, and There's Tomorrow, a showcase for Leah Santos' powerful voice. Unfortunately, Three Dog Night released another version of Easy To Be Hard around the same time and scuppered Stony Brook People's chance of success. After their second single failed to break into the charts, Columbia dropped them and the band drifted apart.

You can check out There's Tomorrow on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). (GN/Joy Lesem/MW).

The central figure in this band was Iggy Pop whose real name was James Newell Osterberg. He was born on 21 April 1947 in Muskegon, Michigan. His first band was The Iguanas whom he drummed and sang for. They released a cover of Bo Diddley's Mona. He met Ron Asheton and James Williamson whilst he was with The Iguanas, whom he soon left to join the Prime Movers, who for a very short while also featured Ron Asheton on bass. It was around this time that he adopted the name Iggy Pop (Iggy after The Iguanas and Pop after Jim Popp, a local junkie). His stay with The Prime Movers was a brief one and he spent most of 1966 in Chicago before returning to Michigan to form The Psychedelic Stooges (line-up (A)) in 1967. At the end of the year bassist Dave Alexander joined the band.

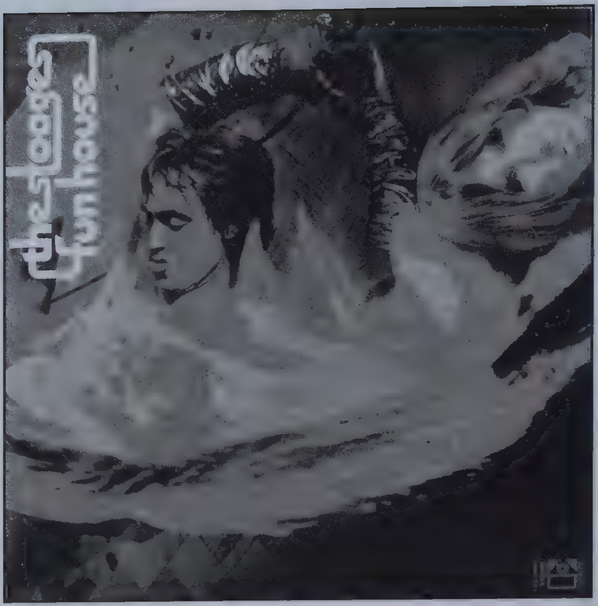
THE STOOGES - Self Titled LP.



THE STOOGES - Fun House LP.

They gigged regularly around the Michigan area and having shortened their name to simply The Stooges caught the eye of an Elektra employee who was in Detroit to sign The MC5. The Stooges were snapped up too and advanced $25,000 to record their debut album which made No. 106 in the U.S. Album Charts. Produced by John Cale, it was recorded over four days and issued in a sleeve reminiscent of The Doors first album. The red labelled original Elektra releases are the most sought-after. Full of banal, three chord rock'n'roll the album was classic punk-rock and in retrospect years ahead of its time. Their debut single, taken from the album, is extremely rare. Rarer still is an Italian issue which coupled I Wanna Be Your Dog with another cut from the album Ann which appeared on Vedette (VRN 34101) in a full colour picture sleeve. Equally rare is a French picture sleeve release which coupled 1969 with Real Cool Time.

Early in 1970 Steve Mackay and Bill Cheatham joined the band and they set about recording Fun House, which was produced by Don Gallucci (ex-Don and The Goodtimes) whose production credits had included The Kingsmen's Louie, Louie. Many regarded the album as superb but the month it was released Dave Alexander went missing and later the band quit in August 1971 after a freeway accident. They had been disintegrating anyway amid drug-related problems that plagued many bands in this era. Their second single is also extremely rare, consisting of two cuts from Fun House. Rarer still is a French release with a stage shot of Iggy but there was also a mega-rare Japanese picture sleeve issue of their single. Down On The Street can also be found on an Elektra various artists sampler, Garden Of Delights, which came out in 1971. After the split Iggy moved down to Florida where he improved his golf and took a job cutting lawns and it was a chance meeting with David Bowie in a New York bar which led to the band's reformation, at Bowie's instigation, for a final fling. Line-up 'F' was signed to his management company Mainman and flown over to England to record a two album deal with CBS. However, Tony De Fries (Bowie's manager) considered most of their initial output too violent to be associated with Bowie and most of it was scrapped at his insistence. Eventually the album was released, but it was disappointing overall. It did however; make No. 182 in the Album Charts. Search And Destroy, one of the few surviving tracks from their first session, also found its way onto a very rare single with Shake Appeal (which was a modified version of Tight Pants also from the first session). The second projected album never materialised because of differences of opinion between management and the band. De Fries then proceeded to sack Williamson because of the latter's drug problem and after a U.S. tour which ended in violence at two gigs in Detroit The Stooges split from Mainman and later disbanded. One of the shows, recorded on cassette, was later issued as Metallic K 0. (Skydog SGI 5 008) in France in 1976. A live version of 1969 (a song from their first album), recorded at the 1970 Cincinnati Pop Festival, later appeared on the 1977 Michigan Rocks (LP) compilation and two further tracks from this performance appeared on a bootleg single, TV Eye/I Feel Alright.

The Stooges were an important influence on the 'punk-rock' phenomena of the late seventies and in 1977 their first three albums were reissued in the U.K. and Metallic KO. got a U.S. release. The French label New Rose's Fan Club subsidiary released six tracks that Iggy and The Stooges had recorded as studio demos after the failure of Raw Power. 1977 also saw the release on Bomp (BLP 4001) in the U.S. and Radar (RAD 2) in the U.K. of the Kill City album, which had actually been recorded back in 1975 when journalist Bob Edwards and songwriter Jimmy Webb pooled their resources to bring Iggy Pop, James Williamson and Scott Thurston together to record it. Also of note is Rubber Legs (Fan Club FC 037) issued in France in 1987 along with a free single. The album was a collection of previously unreleased studio material. More recently, Rhino has issued a limited edition seven CD set of all known recordings made during the Fun House sessions at Elektra in 1970.

Since their split back in 1973 Iggy Pop has enjoyed a reasonably successful solo career, Williamson became a recording engineer in L.A. and Ron Asheton formed a short-lived U.S. band called The New Order before joining Destroy All Monsters with various MC5 members. Ron Asheton later worked as a B-movie actor in the mid-nineties, appearing in the likes of 'Frostbiter: Wrath Of Wendigo'. In 2003, he appeared with this brother Scott on Iggy Pop's Skull Ring. The same year The Stooges, having reformed played a very well-received set at the Coachella Festival and later in 2005 they played Fun House in its entirety during a highly acclaimed Hammersmith Apollo set. In 2007, they released The Weirdness the first Stooges album for 34 years.

You Don't Know My Name features their first show in Detroit in April 1971, two shows from New York's Electric Circus and St Louis later the same month and a show in Michigan in July 1971 where Iggy and James were no-shows and local singer Steve Richards filled in. The attraction of the sets to fans of the band will be that except for I Got A Right they consist of songs not heard before or since these shows. They are cassette recordings so the sound quality is not great but they are essential for hardcore fans of the band.

Ron Asheton died at his home in Ann Arbor, Michigan on 7 January 2009 of a suspected heart attack, aged 60.

Compilation appearances have included: I Wanna Be Your Dog, 1969, 1970, No Fun and T V. Eye on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP); and 1969 on Michigan Rocks Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

The debut album comprises quirky chamber-pop such as You Told Me with mainstream pop like I'm Coming Home and the groovy St James. On their second album About Us things gel together better (despite the fact Brown left during its recording). The three highlights are Darling, Love Is The Motion and Please, Please.

Stories then disbanded after one further album. Ian Lloyd then went solo, Bryan Madey would play with the Earl Slick Band and Stephen Love went on to join Rick Nelson and later the New Riders Of The Purple Sage.

At least one of their singles charted with Brother Louie reaching No. 1 in the Billboard charts in September 1973.

The Raven reissue of their first two albums also adds a bonus cut, Another Love. (SR/TC/VJ)

45:	Cry With Me/Little Boy Sad	(Trystero 101) 1967

Cry With Me is notable for its soulful vocals and 'flea-farting' fuzz guitar. The obscure band was from New Jersey.

Chinnock got quite ill at age 19 and after being away from the band for nearly six months the band decided they needed a new guitar player. Chinnock's replacement was a guy named Bruce Springsteen.... the band became the "E Street Band".

Bill Chinnock later had a country solo career in the seventies. He now lives in Maine, producing films and still performs once or twice a year to sell-out crowds at small (600 or so) venues.

Cry With Me can also be found on Psychedelic Disaster Whirl (LP) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 5 (LP). (MW/SR/TCe)

David Stoughton (?)

ALBUM: 1 TRANSFORMER (Elektra EKS-74034) 1968

This is a very impressive experimental, acid-folk album mixing baroque psychedelic and avant-garde styles from this one-off artist. David's guitar work is striking, and the songs where vocals occur are quite well done. There are three singers, male and female, on different tracks, with some Tim Buckley influence in both vocals and music and some mind-blowing spoken word and tape experimentation. When the girl vocalist sings, UK's Spyrogyra or Sonja Kristina of Curved Air come to mind. (SR/VJ)

The Stowaways came from Charlotte in North Carolina. Apart from their original Just A Toy we have competent beat and Brit Invasion covers that don't quite take off. Slightly more inspiring than label-mates The Starliters, this outfit does engage in some charming garagy folk-rock with a decent version of The Byrds' It Won't Be Wrong. They tackle C.C. Rider with verve but they also dabble in soul and ballads in their own arrangements of Sunny and I've Been Hurt where their vocal shortcomings are revealed. This is still one of the better Justice offerings - just don't expect a gold nugget.

Compilation appearances have included: Just A Toy on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP); and What A Shame, It Won't Be Wrong and It's Only Love on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 4 (CD). (MW)

NB: There are also four French EPs with PS on Barclay and Atlantic. With The McCoys, their records were used to dance "le monkiss", a short-lived craze.

From Brooklyn, New York The Strangeloves are best known for their pulsating versions of I Want Candy (which had been a hit for Brian Poole and The Tremeloes in the UK) and Night Time. Both are fine rockers.

The Strangeloves also recorded under the name The Merry Dragons and Sheep. Under the latter moniker they also enjoyed a No. 58 U.S. hit with Hide And Seek in 1966, whilst a later effort I Feel Good made No. 130. They're also rumoured to have recorded a single as The Beach-Nuts.

The band also recorded a version of Hang On Sloopy which they produced for one of their big discoveries - The McCoys. Other production credits by the trio included The Angels' My Boyfriend's Back (which had been a No. 1 for this New Jersey-based female pop trio) back in 1963.

Richard Gottehrer later became a partner in Sire Records, which the band helped to form, producing The Go-Go's first two albums and Blondie's debut. Jerry Goldstein's production credits included The Druids Of Stonehenge, Eric Burdon and War and Tim Buckley's Greetings From L.A. His Far Out Productions Company was based in L.A. from 1969.

Later in 1974, basing themselves in New York, they issued an album as The Strange Brothers.

I Want Candy: The Best of the Strangeloves (CD) augments the 12 cuts from their original album with eight additional cuts. This release also offered much of their catalogue in stereo for the first time.

Compilation appearances have included: Night Time and I Want Candy on Nuggets Box (4-CD); I Want Candy on Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), *Frat Rock! NB: α 'A' side from the musical 'Hair'.

This Glendale, California-based band was originally known as the Irridescents, a surf combo with one single in 1963 and later as Thee Sixpence, who issued several singles under this name. The name change came with the release of the single Incense And Peppermints because of other similarly-named groups. This was picked up by Uni and the rest is history as they say. Strawberry Alarm Clock was very much a product of their era and their commercial brand of psychedelia was more acceptable to the general public than that of the more interesting underground bands. Like The Seeds they were very much geared to the flower-power scene, and both bands were featured in a cult movie of that era, 'Psych-Out'. Strawberry Alarm Clock contributed Rainy Day Mushroom Pillow and two versions of The World's On Fire to the soundtrack (LP). One advantage they possessed over The Seeds was their catchy name, although later with the demise of flower-power, this would prove to be more of a disadvantage. Efforts the band made to tailor themselves a 'psychedelic' image are evident from the apparel they wore on the front cover of their best album Incense and Peppermints, which was released on Pye in the UK. Aside from the ultra-commercial title track, this contained a number of prominently instrumental quasi-psychedelic jams, with Mark Weitz's organ usually to the fore.

Line-up 'A' above includes two bass players, of which Gary Lovetro was the original, being in both Thee Sixpence and Strawberry Alarm Clock. In mid-1967 after Incense had started to climb, their manager Bill Holmes and Uni decided to make an album. George Bunnell was drafted in to the sessions because of his song writing abilities, along with his best friend Steve Bartek (later in Oingo Boingo). George was friends with Randy Seol and that is how he was introduced into the band (they were both in Waterfyrd Traene prior to the Strawberry Alarm Clock). George joined the group and more than half of the first album's songs were Bunnell/Bartek compositions. Steve couldn't however join the band as he was still in high school and his parents wouldn't let him travel. Because George was a great song writer and a great bass player, by the end of 1967 Gary Lovetro was fired.

The Incense and Peppermints album proved to be one of the more delightful artifacts of the psychedelic era, a strangely compelling mix of psychedelia, sunshine pop, garage-rock and California harmony. As well as the flute provided by Bartek (who also evidently played a few other instruments on the sessions), Wietz, Bunnell, King and Seol all had credits on the album for "special effects". Several different basses as well as an array of other exotic instruments were deployed in the studio to help give the album its unique sound.

Wake Up It's Tomorrow was also a decent album with more exotic instruments and the vocals were more sophisticated. Their record label, which had allowed the members some autonomy on the prior two albums with regard to songwriting and the overall approach to recording, seems to have exercised more control over their third album, The World In A Seashell. It featured softer harmony singing and orchestral accompaniments (including some brass) and four songs from outside writers'. Side one was dominated by the outside songs by people like Carole King and Toni Stern. They were fine songs but not what the group was about; so the band's real sound didn't figure until side two. In fact Seol and Bunnell had left the group by now and the remaining members had dismissed their longtime manager, Bill Holmes, who in retaliation organised a "new" Strawberry Alarm Clock around Seol and Bunnell booking a tour for them. Weitz, King and co obtained a restraining order, which Holmes ignored. The situation became a legal mess and by the time it was resolved promoters were afraid to book anyone claiming to be Strawberry Alarm Clock! After the World In A Sea Shell album was released a fellow by the name of Marty Katin came aboard on drums for about four months. He was never on any recordings but was an "official" member of the band and toured nationally with them.

The new line-up for the real band included ex-Nightcrawlers guitarist/singer Jimmy Pitman with Ed King moving temporarily onto bass. Marty was replaced shortly before recording commenced on the Good Morning Starshine album by former Sixpence/Strawberry Alarm Clock member, Gene Gunnels (who had previously drummed on the Incense And Peppermints single 'A' Side only!). Pitman's vocals were heavily blues-inflected and completely altered their sound. His songs were harder and louder blues-rock numbers than anything they had performed or recorded before. They entered the studio and recorded Good Morning Starshine which generated a powerful sound very different to their previous albums. The only exception was the title track, a pop standard from the musical 'Hair' that got to No. 87 before it was overtaken by Oliver's more accessible pop-focused version.

A quartet version of the band carried on, picking up what bookings could be generated by the name until 1971, led by King. By now though the band had also become a victim of the changing times. Ed King and Gene Gunnels both later played with Hunger!. King recorded with them and played live dates; Gunnels played live with the band when their original drummer Bill Daffern left to join Truk. Ed King went on to Lynyrd Skynyrd. A 1981 line-up was reportedly gigging around California. A good introduction to the band is the 1987 compilation Strawberries Mean Love.

Original Beauchemins songwriter/lead vocalist Paul Marshall later joined The Strawberry Alarm Clock, circa 1969, around the time of their Good Morning Starshine album. He also appeared during a party scene in Russ Meyers' 'Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls' singing his self-penned Girl From The City, later issued on the Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls (LP) soundtrack.

We asked Paul what working on this cult film was like: - "It was a lot like working on any movie set as an actor or sideline musician. We had ridiculously early call times. I seem to remember having to be on the Fox lot at 6:00 A.M. We had our own trailer into which we'd pile our belongings and head for the breakfast buffet or the make-up trailer or the wardrobe department. That whole process took several hours. After we were ready for our big scene, we'd wait around in the trailer or on the set. If we were in the trailer, at least two of us were getting semi-obliterated on one of a number of popular mind-altering substances. It's amazing I don't look more wiped out in my close-up. If we were on the set, we were often standing on the stage for hours while they'd do lights and blocking and then shoot our main scenes and our background scenes."

"The set was the party at the mansion, so all the actors and extras that were in that scene were around all the time. It was a pretty nutty collection of characters, so much so that the party in the movie is not an inaccurate portrayal of the assemblage. The stars were pretty nice to us too, as was Russ Meyer. The sweetest of all was Dolly Read, who I'd love to see again sometime. Lee had better social skills than I did and he shmoozed up Dolly and everybody else. I tried to do a good job, whatever that meant, and just focused on being where I was supposed to be. I probably gained 5 lbs that week just from the food. On movie shoots, there is always food. And then you go to lunch in the commissary. I remember seeing Charles Nelson Reilly in the commissary every day. So basically it was: eat, get high and wait around. Not very thrilling. I guess it was different from most movies at that time in that there were more scantily clad, large busted starlets than usual, but except for the extra who dances through the party in a flesh coloured body suit, I was not presented with any truly X-rated sights."

"Around 6:00 p.m. they'd call it a wrap and we'd make our way back home and try to get our lives in order and get some sleep and do it again the next day. We got an invitation to Russ Meyer's wedding after the movie was over. We attended and were seated at a table with Hugh Hefner and Barbi Benton. That was fun."

The 16-track Anthology confirms that Strawberry Alarm Clock rarely hit the heights of Incense And Peppermints. Much of the remainder of the compilation album consists of period pieces like Sit With The Guru, Rainy Day Mushroom Pillow, They Saw The Fat One Coming, The Birdman of Alkatrash and the three-part suite Black Butter. These aren't particularly strong songs but are quite entertaining as artifacts. The Anthology lacks any cuts from the Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls soundtrack, but otherwise offers a comprehensive overview of their career.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Incense And Peppermints on Best Of '60s Psychedelic Rock (CD), Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Box (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD), Psychedelic Visions (CD), Even More Nuggets (CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); Tomorrow on Nuggets Vol. 5: Pop Part III (LP); Nightmare Of Percussion on Baubles - Down To Middle Earth; Girl From The City (LP); I'm Comin' Home on Beyond The Valley Of The Dolls (LP); In Relation (as by 'Strawberry Sac') on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP); a seventies re-recording of Incense And Peppermints appears on Psychotic Reactions (a compilation LP on U.K. budget label Topline, not the Planet X compilation); and Black Butter on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headshrinkers, Vol. 3 (CD). ALBUM: 1 STRAWBERRY WINDOW (& DANDELION WINE)
(World In Sound WIS-1041) 2009

NB: (1) also issued on CD (World In Sound WIS-1041) 2009.

Strawberry Window was from Oakland, California. They played in a heavy psychedelic-garage style, sounding somewhat reminiscent of the early Jefferson Airplane, Mad River, Quicksilver Messenger Service and Frumious Bandersnatch. They never got to release a single but did lay down some tracks at Leo De Gar Kulka's Golden State Recorders in 1967. Two of the best cuts from their session tapes, Purple Orange and Eyes, have been resurrected by Alec Palao on Nuggets From The Golden State: What A Way To Come Down (CD). More recently, World In Sound have issued all their recordings on vinyl and CD. The content ranges from electric folk tunes to garage-rock and raw energetic acid jams lasting over 10 minutes. There's 10 original cuts and a freaky cover version of J D Loudermilk's Tobacco Road. The release also comes with a 16-page colour booklet.

In 1968 they switched guitar players, added a girl singer and changed their name to the Dandelion Wine. They recorded several songs and also released a private four-song 7 inch EP. World In Sound is scheduled to release some more of their music in 2010. (VJ/MW)

This New York City group fronted by Anya Cohen, a fairly raunchy vocalist, was first known as Anya's Street. Produced and managed by Rick Shorter, who wrote or co-wrote six of the tracks, their album is an interesting combination of R&B with psychedelia. There's One Kind Favor is lively and What A Strange Town is unusual incorporating sound effects like buses, trains, footsteps and snoring in a folky format.

Apollo... Amen is a decent song marred only by "the actual voices of the Astronauts," as boasted by the back of the picture sleeve and a brief foray into He's Got The Whole World In His Hands. The flip side is quite nice folk-rock, reminiscent of the better moments of the Rose Garden album.

Why Concern Yourself was also recorded by Seth Connors. (VJ/SR/MMs)

45: She Cools My Mind/I'm Feeling Lovey (B-W 635) 1968

Wooster, Ohio was home to this garage band. She Cools My Mind has a certain amount of urgency about it and a couple of effective touches. It's since resurfaced on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) and on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 3 (CD). (GGI/VJ)

NB: (1) also issued in the UK (Deram SML-1041) 1969 R1. (1) reissued on CD (Esoteric ECLEC 2115) 2009.

This is a truly offbeat album on which this Californian singer/songwriter raves and gibbers and thrashes away with monomaniacal fervour on an acoustic guitar accompanied by occasional and rudimentary sequencers on Computer Love (long before internet dating); a string section of London Philharmonic on If I Stand Here Much Longer and Touch and percussion on World War 3 ½. He is a folk singer (there's Dylan-style sneer) but the general weirdness of the songs (which he says were largely improvised) lends a certain psychedelic quality to the whole affair. The whole thing is an acquired taste and it's surprising that Esoteric have reissued it in the current financial climate. (VJ)

When You Walk In The Room/
Do It Now (Columbia 4-44143) 1967

The first two singles by this pop outfit were on Albuquerque-based labels. From their covers they were fans of Invasion beat in the style of the Searchers - both Sorrow and Say You Love Me are done competently in this style. Their chunky version of The Standells' There's A Storm Comin' is more pop than garage, whilst the Lindy Blaskey composed flip is reminiscent of early Yardbirds/Animals. Their singles are probably of more interest to beat rather than garage enthusiasts but nonetheless enjoyable.

You'll also locate Give Me A Break on You're Playing With Fire (LP); and Am I On Your Mind? on Gravel Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

When I Get That Feeling (Fat City 6 6130) 1966

A wonderful example of the garage-ballad genre, Come Back To Me is choc full of heartbreak but manages to include some glorious tortured guitar. The flip is much more upbeat and the fuzzed-guitar much more to the fore. Although the single is a Kaybank pressing outta Minneapolis, the band were local heroes in Birmingham, Alabama and struck out Northeast into Georgia and the Carolinas.

A sort of poor man's It's A Beautiful Day from Chicago. The band produced a mellow fusion of West Coast style songs, female vocals, flowing guitar leads and electric violin that was responsible for this comparison. Indeed electric violinist Greg Block, who contributed much to their album, was later in It's A Beautiful Day and drummer John Maggi was earlier with Turnquist Remedy. The album was produced by James Golden. Despite being released in several countries, the album didn't sell and has languished in undeserved obscurity ever since. It's definitely worth a spin.

Based in California but originally from Chelan, Washington Alice Stuart was one of the very few white female blues-rock guitarists and singers of the late sixties/early seventies. She began recording in Seattle with the Upper U District Singers and began her solo career in 1964 with a rare album. In 1964, Alice was introduced to California audiences at the Berkeley Folk Festival. From there, she toured and performed with Joan Baez, Doc Watson, Jack Elliott, Phil Ochs, Rosalie Sorrells, Jerry Ricks and more. During this period she met and played with blues greats Lightnin' Hopkins, Jesse Fuller and Mississippi John Hurt, as well as The Chambers Brothers.

In 1966, Alice joined forces with Frank Zappa during the formation of The Mothers Of Invention, which she was briefly a member of. She then began touring the bikers' circuit, where she built up a strong following. That helped her to get signed to Fantasy for two albums. In 1970 Alice formed her own band, Snake, featuring Bob Jones and Karl Sevareid (currently with Robert Cray) after their band, Southern Comfort, broke up.

After an elusive second effort, her third album was produced by Russ Gary, the house producer of Fantasy (Redwing, Tom Fogerty...). Notable for its good guitar parts and vocals, it features eight of her original compositions, plus two covers: the classic Blind Willie McTell's Statesboro Blues and Hank Snow's Golden Rocket. Her backing group, Snake, included the active drummer Bob Jones (from We Five, Nick Gravenites, Southern Comfort), plus a horn section. Andy Stein from Commander Cody guested on one track.

Both the Fantasy albums flopped and are hard to find now. Her original songs from this period have been recorded by Jackie DeShannon, Irma Thomas, Jimmy Rabbit, and the late Kate Wolf.

In the eighties, Alice concentrated on raising her family. In 1996, she linked with bassist Prune Rooney to release Really Good. 1999's Crazy With the Blues won rave reviews and expanded her audience. Another CD Can't Find No Heaven (2002) consolidated her re-launched career. She still performs and records in the Seattle area. (SR/VJ)

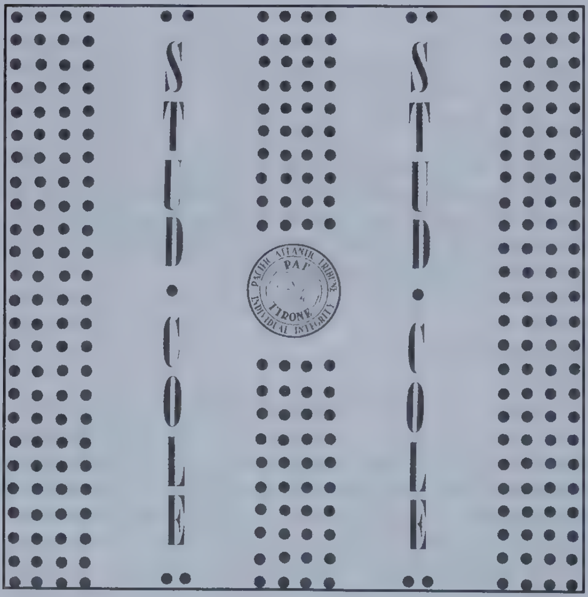
45: Burn Baby Burn/
Always And Always (Pacific Atlantic Tribune PAT 1123) 19??

Yet another amazing California discovery; this is certainly one of the most exciting and unique artefacts to be uncovered in recent years. Both records are undated and sound too arcane to fix a year on.

Tirone was originally from New York, but moved to Los Angeles in the very early sixties. While admittedly obsessed with early rock 'n' roll heroes, particularly Elvis Presley, what makes this record so far outside the scope of the pomp and pompadour scene is that his band sounds like The Yardbirds circa Roger The Engineer! The resulting music sounds like an experiment gone horribly awry and will make readers of this book incontinent.

The album peaks on The Devil's Comin', an insistent, up-tempo 12-bar blues wherein "Stud" urgently whispers creepy warnings in a brutally out-of-sync call and response style:

"The Devil's comin' to put his hands on you
He'll be walkin' in your step
He'll be watchin' every rule you break
The Devil's comin' to put his rope on you"



STUD COLE - Self Titled LP.

Much of the album (which includes both sides of the single release) has the same possessed, creepy feel. It's so dark that it's scary. Highly recommended! (CF)

(1) reissued on vinyl (Paramount PAS-6070) 197? shown as by Stuffy And His Frozen Parachute Band.

Produced by Tom Gress, this is the work of a rather weird folk-rock singer and songwriter. The first side sounds a bit like Norman Greenbaum, the second is more varied. The Paramount reissue came in an amusing "frozen food" cover and the slogan "Tired of canned music? Frozen music can change your life!!" The project included Sigmund Snopek, later known for his work with The Violent Femmes. (SR/VJ)

This Chicago band evolved out of in another Chicago band The Tradewinds during the late sixties, which featured brothers Chuck and John Panozzo, as well as acquaintance Dennis DeYoung. By the start of the seventies, the group had changed its name to TW4. It then welcomed aboard a pair of guitarists/vocalists, James "JY" Young and John Curulewski. They secured a recording contract in 1972 with Wooden Nickel Records (a subsidiary of RCA). Prior to recording, the group opted to change its name once more, to Styx, named after a river from Greek mythology that ran through "the land of the dead" in the underworld.

The front cover of their eponymous first album shows them naked, surrounded by red smoke and fire. It's a decent art-rock effort, strongly influenced by British groups like Yes. Styx got their first break when the track Lady, originally from their second album Styx II, started to get substantial airplay in late 1974 on Chicago radio station WLS-FM. The song was soon issued as a single nationwide, and soon rose to No. 6 on the singles chart, whilst Styx II went gold. By this time, however, the group had grown disillusioned with its record label, and signed with A&M for their fifth release overall, 1975's Equinox. On the eve of the tour in support of the album, Curulewski abruptly left the band, and was replaced by Tommy Shaw (sadly, Curulewski later died from an aneurysm in 1988). After Shaw joined they went from strength to strength and most of their late seventies albums went platinum and spawned such hit singles and classic rock radio standards as Renegade, Blue Collar Man, Come Sail Away, Fooling Yourself, and the power ballad Babe. They kept recording and touring and became very popular, as a "stadium rock act", especially with the American teenagers. This latter-day career is of course outside the scope of this book!

STYX - Self Titled CD.

Remastered and repackaged, The Complete Wooden Nickel Recordings will appeal to die-hard Styx fans waiting for a proper reissue of their early works. This two-disc set comprises their first four records under the Wooden Nickel imprint: Styx, Styx II, The Serpent Is Rising and Man of Miracles. If the arena rock anthems are underdeveloped on this set, the pomposity of their prog-rock roots is evident with the inclusion of Fanfare For The Common Man, Little Fugue In G and the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's Messiah. From St. Helena in the Napa Valley, The Styx had developed out of the Earwigs, a high school combo, and quickly became a popular local attraction. They auditioned for Fantasy Records, cutting a number of demos but weren't signed. After some personnel changes the above line-up recorded the Invasion-influenced single at Ikon Studios in May 1966, only to split up in June as they graduated from High School and went their separate ways.

Don Branch went on to play with San Francisco bands The Welcoming Committee and Indian Summer. (GN/DB/DD/BG)

Death Angel, written by Ray Zoller's brother Rusty, is one gem amongst a cluster on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD), whose liners reveal the band's details. A little later it also figured on Psychedelic States: Mississippi (CD). Their other recordings were originals despite them being primarily known for doing covers of the current popular dance tunes in the late sixties, especially along the Gulf Coast.

The group was based in Biloxi, Mississippi and evolved into Hasting's Playhouse. (MW/RM)

Subterranean Monastery (?)

45:	Curiosity/Realistic Patterns	(RCA Victor 47-9512) 1968

A mystery one-off guaranteed to catch the eye of psych collectors scanning lists of obscurities in the hope of digging up an 'undiscovered' nugget. The trouble is that, too often, the wackier the group name or titles the more likely it is to be banal exploitation studio-pop from the mind of the trendy 'hip' producer. This sounds like a group but it's melodic pop, though Realistic Patterns is pleasantly laid-back with some psychedelic touches - judge for yourself on the Justafixation (LP), Collecting Peppermint Clouds (LP) or on Realistic Patterns (CD). This garage band from Peoria, Illinois was most notable for including Richrath, who later played with REO Speedwagon. Their debut couples an up-tempo garagy popper with a fine rockin' version of former-Byrd Gene Clark's Elevator Operator.

You can also discover Walk Away on Quagmire Volume 7 (CD); and Sunshine Becomes You got a further airing on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

This Chico, California band spent much of their time playing in Oregon, where both of their records were recorded. Robert Seals recalls that 1,000 copies of the album were pressed, but the single is so rare that he's never owned one. The group play a rootsy, West Coast style country-rock similar to Shiva's Headband on tracks like Home Is Where Your Head Is, Too Many Religions and Forty Shades Of Blue. It was produced by Jay Webster. Robert recently reformed the band and they are recording and touring under the new moniker Bob Seals and The Wayhigh Patrol and have finished a new demo tape. The single contains two non-album cuts. (CF/SR)

Sudden Death (CA)

ALBUM:	1	SUDDENLY	(Rockadelic RRLP 19) 1995

A Led Zeppelin - inspired early hard-rock act from California, which was issued by Rockadelic in 1995 from previously unissued tapes from circa 1971. The two exceptions are the opening track, My Time Is Over and Fugit Orchard, which are much mellower with some good laid-back guitar moments. 600 copies of this release were pressed. (GG/VJ)

A pair of decent garage-beat covers from the summer of '65 by Tampa, Florida's Sugar Beats. The flip side is the Sloan-Barri song also covered by The P-Nut Butter.

Lavoie had previously done time in The Rumors and would go through several outfits, including Me And The Other Guys and The U.S. Male (on United American), before finding solo success as Lobo. (MW)

For the most part this is a very average blues-rock album, but there are a few more psychedelic cuts:- the opener, A Million Years is a heavy psychedelic cut that you'll also find on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD); Memory Tree, a much softer slice of psychedelia as is the finale, Night Flash.

The album was recorded in New York City, although the band was from Massachusetts.

Jonathan Edwards later enjoyed a long solo career of singer/songwriter in the mould of James Taylor, recording more than 15 albums. (VJ/MW/SR)

45: My Last Impression/Corinna Corinna,
A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall (Black Crow 100) 1967

From Grenada, Mississippi this act recorded an album in 1967 which finally saw the light of day in 1995. There are some good songs included, especially My Last Impression, which is very much in the garage-psych vein. Indeed the band's title is misleading as the songs aren't really bluesy at all. The material, which was all written by Bill Crowder, spans garage, psychedelia and more melodic rock and is well worth seeking out.

My Last Impression can also be heard on the vinyl version of The Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 1 (LP), whose liner notes state that some of the band members had recorded a single way back in 1959 as the Sundowners. A few years later it got a further airing on Gravel Volume 3 (CD). The flip side to their single does not figure on the album. (VJ/MW)

After they left The Moonrakers, Jerry Corbetta and Bob Webber formed Chocolate Hair with two original Moonrakers Bob MacVittie and Veeder Van Dorn plus Denver musician Bob Raymond. The band signed with Liberty Records and was coerced into changing their name, as Liberty insisted that Chocolate Hair would be interpreted as racist. They renamed themselves Sugarloaf after the Sugarloaf Mountain area North of Boulder where some of the members lived. After a few months, Veeder Van Dorn left, for Mescalero Space Kit, although his song Things Gonna Change Some was recorded for Sugarloaf's debut album.

Their first album sold very well, reaching No. 24 in the national charts and their single, Green-Eyed Lady written by Jerry Corbetta, reached No. 3. Produced by Frank Slay (Strawberry Alarm Clock) and J.C. Phillips and engineered by Paul Buff (Buff Organization), their debut album contains five interesting long tracks full of organ and guitars and a good cover of the Johnny Burnette's Train Kept A Rollin. Van Dorn from The Moonrakers co-wrote Things Gonna Change Some, the other cuts being penned by Corbetta, Webber and Raymond, sometimes helped by Myron Pollock and J.C. Phillips.

The second album was inspired by and named after the Buckminster Fuller novel "Spaceship Earth". By this time the band had been bolstered by another guitarist Robert Yeazel (ex-Super Band, ex-Beast). This second effort was solid but did not repeat the success of their debut.

A third album, I Got A Song, credited to Sugarloaf/Jerry Corbetta was released in 1973. By this time both Yeazel and MacVittie had left and Larry Ferris (ex-Beast) had joined on drums. This was much more commercial than their earlier efforts but failed to make an impact.

SUGAR CUBE BLUES BAND - Self Titled LP.

In 1974, without a label, and frustrated with the record companies, Corbetta wrote the song Don't Call Us, We'll Call You. The band recorded it and with a few other new songs they re-released the I Got A Song album in 1975 as Don't Call Us, We'll Call You. The title track became their last Top 10 hit, and the band broke up in 1978. Corbetta pursued a solo career and eventually joined The Four Seasons. Webber and Yeazel continued to play guitar together in the Denver R&B outfit The Freddi-Henchi Band. (HS/CF/SR)

Not to be confused with UK guitarist Big Jim Sullivan, the American Jim Sullivan was a Los Angeles session man. This inconsistent album was recorded in Hollywood. It's difficult to categorise ranging from good psychedelia (Friday Morning's Paper) to heavier rock (Bring Me Around) and country (The Last Day). Not really recommended.

Both single cuts are featured on the album and Alan Parker had earlier played in Smith. Two cuts have been compiled so far: Friday Morning's Paper on Fading Yellow Vol. 7 (CD); and Follow Us on Realistic Patterns 2: Wednesday Morning Dew (CD). (VJ)

This five-piece originally came from Dartmouth, Massachusetts. The album is now an expensive collector's item but reissues are readily available. It has been compared to All Of Thus.

Certainly their speciality is pleasant garage ballads. There's a cover of The Spencer Davis Group's hit Gimme Some Lovin', but the remaining material is self-penned. The stand-out cut is The Leaves Are Turning Brown with some really cheesy organ and an earnest vocal performance. Also a little different from the rest is the catchy guitar and drum work on I Love You.

45: Better Get Down/Got Me Tragedy (Euphoria 202) 197?

This largely unknown album has its moments in terms of heavy fuzz psychedelic guitar work; particularly on side one, where Hey Sun is one of the stand-out tracks. Side two is relatively disappointing in comparison, but overall an album worth investigation. All the songs (except for Micky Newbury's Down On Saturday) were written by Sonny Hahn and Doug Miller, who performed them with the help of several session men. The lyrics address issues of the day like drugs and Vietnam. The album was recorded at Soundview Environmental Studios.

Bob Gallo and Louis Cofredo, who produced the album, had earlier worked with Aesop's Fables. Euphoria was a New York based subsidiary of the Jubilee Group. (VJ/MW/SR)

THE SUMMER SOUNDS - Up-Down LP.

Los Angeles punky-pop featuring John Merrill-composed titles on the first single - presumably the same chap later in The Peanut Butter Conspiracy. Baby You're Wrong is a worthy inclusion on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD), whilst both sides of the second single feature tough fuzzy pop. You can also access You're Bad on The Lost Generation 3 (LP) and on Wyld Sydes Volume Eight (CD). There may be another single since a French EP (Liberty LEP 2268) features the first one above plus Toy Boy Girl and Danger. (MW)

Walk Down The Path Of Freedom/
It's Just A Dream (Rare Earth 5035) 1971

From Detroit, this band is unrelated to the L.A. outfit of A Pindaric Ode fame. Their two albums were produced by Andrew Oldham and are more progressive and gospel rock than psychedelic. The first features organ dominated rock with softer numbers like It's Just A Dream and You And I amongst its better offerings. The Benediction album is an improvement, with a strong religious content and a fine sleeve by Matti Klarwein (Abraxas, Miles Davis etc.).

Get Funky, from their second album, can be heard on Michigan Rocks, Vol. 2 (LP).

Richard Kosinski would later form the Big Wha Koo with Danny Douma from the Hello People. (VJ/SR)

The Sunday Funnies (?)

45: Headlines/Another Time, Another Place (Capitol 5614) 1966

An unknown folk-rock group, whose songs were written and produced by Perry Botkin and Garfield, with Johnny Cole and Nilsson. Headlines sounds a bit like Eve Of Destruction with a singer doing a Dylan imitation, complete with harmonica. The flip is also folk-rock, but with some fuzz guitar and even mariachi brass at the end!

Perry Botkin later worked with Thorinshield. (SR)

45: A Pindaric Ode/Whatcha Gonna Do (When The Dance Is Over) (Valhalla 671) 1967

This group of Mexican-Americans came from Los Angeles. Their A Pindaric Ode is one of numerous examples of the influence of acid on garage bands. The almost-spoken lyrics relate their disorientation and disinterest for coming to terms with the real world and the song's got a pretty unusual ending too. They are unconnected to the Detroit outfit. There's yet another unknown Sunday Funnies on Mercury. For non-US readers, 'Sunday Funnies' are comic strip magazines included as supplements in some Stateside Sunday papers, hence the popular moniker.

Compilation coverage has so far included: A Pindaric Ode on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP) and The East Side Sound, Vol. 1 - 1959-1968 (CD); and Whatcha Gonna Do... on East Side Revue, The West Coast East Side Sound, Vol. 1 (CD) and The East Side Sound, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW)

45: Who Do You Love/I'm Puttin' You On (World Pacific 77825) 1966

This is the first record by Teegarden and "Van Winkle" Knape, produced in Leon Russell's L.A. studio by J.J. Cale who also composed the flip. Leon Russell got them signed to World Pacific. Who Do You Love is a cool 'live' version. I'm Puttin' You On is great laid-back garage that takes a few plays to appreciate - understated fuzz and simple 96 Tears-style keyboards underpinned by a cantering beat that's different'n'classy. Both sides of this single have resurfaced on Ain't It Hard (CD).

After their single, Teegarden and Knape (whose idol was Garth Hudson from the Hawks, pre-Band) landed a job playing behind a singer guitarist named Denny White in Nevada and at the charmingly named Pussycat-A-Go-Go in Lake Tahoe. Once White left, they were sometimes reinforced by a black singer called Tommy Tex.

They finally returned to Tulsa, were spotted by a Detroit talent scout and became Teegarden and Van Winkle. (MW/SR)

The Sundowners came from New York and blended influences like The Beatles, Byrds and Beach Boys. Captain Nemo is an interesting sunshine pop album that mixes Beatles inspired vocals with distorted guitars on tracks like Plaster Casters or Sunny Day People. Some of the material is symphonic and sweet on the ear. The sleeve is unusual, with a strange drawing.

Mike Nesmith spotted them playing at Ciro's on Sunset Strip and invited them to tour with The Monkees and they also supported Hendrix on tour. Their album's opening cut, a cover of Roger Nichols' Always You, was compiled on Universal's Get Easy/Sunshine Pop Collection (CD); and Ring Out Wild Bells got another airing on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD). 45: Quasar 45/There Must Be Light (PS) (Whap WH-319) 1969

A year earlier, this Logansport, Indiana band had released a single as The Sangralads. Quasar 45 is a post-Hendrix Telstar and, according to the sleevenotes, was inspired by (21-year-old) Phillips namesake, Neil, stepping out on the moon. "Listen carefully and you will hear the roar of a rocket launched, the monotonous din of radio signals from afar, the haunting and beautiful bass runs signifying the endless eternity of space itself". Yes well, it's good but won't put anyone into orbit. There Must Be Light is end-of-decade pop-rock and drags on like the sleeve-notes!

Quasar 45 is also on the freaky fuzzy instrumental compilation Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD) and High All The Time, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW)

	Land Of Nod/Well One	(MGM K13809) 1967

From Detroit, this outfit later changed their name to Rare Earth. Land Of Nod was written by Pete Hootelbeke and is a rather excellent slab of commercial cash-in psychedelia, full of fuzz and 'out there' lyrics. It would easily find a home on the Rubbles series. A different mix of the song later appeared on Rare Earth's first album Dreams/Answers, which came out on Verve. Well One is a chunky 'intermission' instrumental with a funky feel but some searing guitar and backward vocals. It's an odd one to be sure.

45: Alone/Move On (Stanal 712-5661) 1969

This obscure late sixties garage single is reputedly good. From Kearney, Nebraska this group was active in the Midwest between 1967-1972. Touring mainly around Denver, Colorado and Kearney, Nebraska they played a mixture of psychedelic soul and original prog-blues music.

SUNNY FUNNY Co.

Rick Houchin: "The band toured with Steppenwolf, Frijid Pink, The Lemon Pipers, The Royal Guardsmen, and Seventh House (who included Zephyr/Firefall members). There are photos of the band that include a fifth member, Al Paez, who was only with the band very briefly. He played guitar and did some vocals. The main foursome was together for about five years and travelled all over the Midwestern U.S. We were one of those bands that went everywhere in a big school bus converted to be a travelling motel. It was a party on wheels - What a riot! The biggest gig we did was with Seventh House and Steppenwolf and we opened in our hometown of Kearney, Nebraska with about 4,500 in attendance. It was kind of a homecoming for the band, which had been on the road all summer in 1969."

14 previously unreleased tracks recorded in Odessa, Texas in 1968 for a proposed album on the AOK label that never materialised. It's quaint folky-flower-pop with male-female harmonising influenced by the likes of The Mamas & The Papas and soft West Coast sounds similar to Ashes/Peanut Butter Conspiracy... there is a very occasional psychy touch but nothing to get too heady about. No details of the group are given, just a track-by-track synopsis. The liner notes comparing this to The Zombies' Odessey And Oracle is pushing it way too far, especially since they misspelt it as "Oddysey..."

THE SUNSHINE COMPANY - Self Titled LP.

This Los Angeles-based harmony pop group's music was characterised by happy harmonies. They enjoyed some minor chart successes including Back On The Streets Again and Happy.

Produced by Joe Saraceno and arranged by George Tipton, their third album offered 14 tracks including covers of Chet Powers's Let's Get Together and Hoyt Axton's Willie Jean and On A Beautiful Day, a song penned by Gene Stashuk before he formed The Unspoken Word. Larry Sims and Maury Manseau wrote most of their original material.

Doug Mark had earlier recorded one single with The Grains Of Sand, whilst Merle Brigante and Larry Sims went on to form Loggins and Messina's rhythm section. Dave Hodgkins' next venture was Red Eye.

The Sunshine Company compilation on Rev-Ola features tracks from all three of their albums. They won't be of interest to garage and psych fans though.

Compilation appearances include: Back On The Street Again on Nuggets, Vol. 10: Folk Rock (LP) and Even More Nuggets (CD); and Happy on Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP). (VJ/SR/GM)

45: I Ain't Got Nobody/Acid Indigestion (Capricorn CA-100) 1967

A fascinating and previously unheralded Denver group Super Band's history has been unravelled by Michael Stelk.

Super Band, who issued one very rare single around September 1967, was a spin-off from the West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band. It seems that when Denver-ite and guitarist Ron Morgan was a member of the group (for the three Reprise albums, most notable is the song Smell of Incense which he co-wrote with Bob Markley) he put the call up to Denver for musicians to help the WCPAEB perform, in the winter of 1966. After several months the nucleus of Morgan, Yeazel, Greenspoon and Bryant (the latter pair from southern California) returned to Denver as Super Band and acquired local drummer Myron Pollock.

After a successful run at the hot rock club in town, The Exodus, the owner arranged for the recording session for the single. It seems that Morgan didn't make the session and that Yeazel played the guitar on it. Both sides have a good-timey melodic pop sound, rather like The Sopwith Camel or The New Tweedy Bros!

Late in the fall of 1967, Jimmy Greenspoon was called back to California when the foundation of Three Dog Night was gelling. He pulled Morgan with him and into the early version of the group, leaving Yeazel and Bryant behind to form The Beast.

The Beast issued two albums in 1969/70 and on the second they play a track that they wrote and performed with the WCPAEB called Communication, a "long jam" that was edited down for the final release; it may still exist in the Norman Petty archives in Clovis, New Mexico where both albums were recorded.

Ron Morgan withdrew from Three Dog Night as they were getting ready to record and he is not on the first album, although it's said that the guitar work is based on his arrangements. He'd turn up next in the Electric Prunes. Originally he'd been a member of a Denver group called The Wild Ones (1965-6). Although they did not release any singles, there are some recordings that exist. They must have been a fine group - they opened for the Mothers of Invention at the Whisky in late 1965, played in Hawaii and opened for several big shows in Denver. Sadly Ron Morgan passed away circa 1980.

Both Yeazel and Pollock later played in Sugarloaf.

You'll also find Acid Indigestion on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). (MSk/MW/HS)

This outfit was based in Phoenix, Arizona between 1966-68 and was earlier known as The Mile Ends. Their first single contains the fine psychedelic punk of The Other Sidewalk, and the flip features sitars and has a mellow trippy feel, with the vocalist wishing that he'd never come down...

After such an interesting start, they went on to chart regionally with their People In The Street single, but their album had a strong country influence and is largely dispensable. The Other Sidewalk is its one psychedelic venture, although What's The Hurry is a decent folk-rocker and Don't Try To Call Me is a good pop song.

Most of the band later went on to greater things - Ed 'The Creeper' Black went on to play with the Goose Creek Symphony, Commander Cody, Linda Ronstadt, Chris Darrow and later became a Nashville session musician. Mike McFadden also briefly played with the Goose Creek Symphony. Anderson later joined Beans who evolved into The Tubes.

ALBUM: 1(A) ASSAULT ON MERRYLAND (w/booklet)
(Carousel 77) 1977 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Zarathustra ZARA1001) 199?

From St Louis, Missouri here's a UK-influenced and quite symphonic prog concept album based around a fantasy land called Merryland and a tale of a prince, princess and king who manage to reverse a spell which left Merryland in total darkness. The album features organ, moog, flute and lots of driving guitar. Musically this is a tight unit and the songs are well written with varied tempos and moods. (VJ)

	Free Up Pt. 1/2	(LHI 10) 1969
	New Way Home/MacArthur Park	(LHI 15) 1969

From the Pacific Northwest the origins of this band lie in The Viceroys (who also included Jim Valley before he joined Paul Revere and The Raiders). They operated mainly around the Seattle-Tacoma area of Washington State and were later known as The American Eagle. However, with the onset of the psychedelic era Columbia decided to market them as The Surprise Package and as their management were based in San Diego, they often played in California.

The album is rarely seen and worthwhile only for the extended freaky title track which is not unlike In-A-Gadda-Da-Vida in structure but goes on too long!. Out Of My Mind, a nice slice of psychedelia produced by Terry Melcher, can also be heard on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP) or Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP) - Its flip is a tough Pacific Northwest guitar instrumental, but the other Columbia singles are rather bland pop fayre.

Rob Lowery had previously been in The Rock Collection and that band's earlier incarnation, The Galaxies. Mike Rogers also produced a single for The Bumps. (VJ/MW/DR/JA)

(East Coast Records EC-1049) 1971 R2

NB: (1) was originally issued in a black and white cover and then repressed in 1973 in a colour cover with a yellow label.

Like Mountain Bus, this was a Grateful Dead influenced group from Pennsylvania, whose album is now sought-after. It was produced by Tony Riccia and H. Stein, who also both wrote the six cuts on the album. They span psych, bluesy hard-rock and ballads.

Compilation appearances include: Earth Odyssey on Journey To The East (LP) and Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD). The track reappeared originally on the Changes (LP) compilation as the final unlisted track. (SR/MW)

The Surprize was a Tampa band managed by John Centinaro, who booked bands in the Tampa area and managed some notable acts including The Robbs, The Mysterians and Neil Diamond. Released on Centinaro's own label in the summer of 1967, I Will Make History has done so... by appearing on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). It's an imperious pop-punker with a hypnotic fuzz refrain.

From Lafayette, Louisiana this act presumably took its name from The Jefferson Airplane's second album. I Like Cars is actually pretty good, with appealing lyrics and an effective backing.

Ed Futch is better known as Eddy Raven.

ALBUM: 1(A) SWAMPGAS (Buddah BDS 5102) 1971 R1

A superb and little-known album produced by the group members (from Long Island, New York) and Artie Kornfeld (Wind In The Willows, Artie Kornfeld Tree...) and engineered by Shelly Yakus at A&R Studios, New York City. A psychic chiropractor, Charlie Tuna, is also credited on the album!

Consisting of eight long tracks, all but one is composed by Baird Hersey. A mixture of some fast numbers (Patato Strut, Don't), some melancholic ballads, two complex tracks (Eulogy, Trapped In The City) and a raga with sitar (Egg Shell). Baird Hersey was obviously influenced by Hendrix, but goes further than his influences and the guitars (electric and acoustic) are especially interesting. Kim Ornitz's voice sounds a bit like Henry Tree's vocalist.

Baird Hersey released at least two solo albums: Lookin' For That Groove in 1978, consisting of jazz-rock (Novus/Arista) and ODO OP8 FX in 1980 (Bent), which was very experimental, with tape loops.

Artie Kornfeld had previously played with The Changin' Times. (SR)

In The Midnight Hour/It's Not Easy (Co and Ce 245) 1967
Brown Sugar/Brown Sugar (Segue 107) 1972

Originally known as The Fantastic Dee-Jays, (line-up 'A'), this was Pittsburgh's top punk band. They specialised in doing really wild covers of some of the classic songs of the era. Most of their finest moments can be heard on Eva's Swamp Rats vs. Unrelated Segments (LP) album which includes their covers of Louie Louie, Hey Joe, Psycho, No Friend Of Mine, It's Not Easy, In The Midnight Hour, Here There And Everywhere and a previously unreleased version of Til The End Of The Day.

A picture of the classic line-up 'B' circa 1966 can be seen in Crypt's Back From The Grave Vol. 1 - the on-stage shot was taken at manager Terry Lee's "Night Train" club in Elizabeth, Pennsylvania.

By the early seventies only Bob Hocko would be left and they became Galactus, whose album was a lacklustre trudge through Stones' covers and beer-hall rock fayre.

In 1979, Bob Hocko put out the Disco Sucks album which has one side of 1966-7 tracks (six of 'em) and one side of five 1970s tracks (three 'Stones covers, one Kinks and one original).

Compilation appearances have included: Louie Louie on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Testament (CD); It's Not Easy on Terry Lee Show WMCK (LP); No Friend Of Mine and It's Not Easy on Burghers, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); Psycho and The Witch on Back From The Grave, Vol. 1 (LP); Psycho on Garage Kings (2-LP); Hey Joe on The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 2 (LP); and Ain't No Friend Of Mine on Gone, Vol. 2 (LP). Beland, Guilbeau and Maxwell all appear on the Back Pocket album. Maxwell was formerly with Tarantula (A&M). These are rural/country-rock albums. The liner notes to the first one were penned by Gene Parsons, Clarence White and Linda Ronstadt. The album was produced by John Wagner. Eight of its 11 tracks were written by Gib Guilbeau and the other three are penned by John Beland. (VJ)

From San Francisco this rock-pop outfit with organ/guitar/drums interplay was formed by experienced musicians, as "Frosty" was previously the drummer for Lee Michaels on his third and fourth albums, Goldsmith was in Wolfgang and Jones and Johnson had played in Blue Mountain Eagle. Hallelujah, a driving piece of explosive southern-fried rock & roll with a soul edge got to No. 33 on the national charts, but its airplay was more akin to that of a Top 20 hit. Their second album came with a giant poster and both are best avoided. When the group broke up, Goldsmith became a studio musician and later played with the last line-up of Stoneground. (SR/VJ)

	A Picture Of Me/Without You (PS)	(Sonobeat 101) 1967

This Austin five-piece became the first band to sign to the Sonobeat label run by Bill Josey and his son late in 1966. The resulting single written by Gammage was an excellent effort and sold quite well.

Gammage and Dow were originally members of the Fabulous Chevelles prior to their stint in The Sweetarts. The majority of the Sweetarts would later morph into Fast Cotton. According to Ernie Gammage, later members did NOT evolve into the Lavender Hill Express or Plymouth Rock, as we previously had thought. Gammage did however go on to play for another Texas band, Plum Nelly (not the Capitol group).

Compilation coverage has so far included: A Picture Of Me on All Cops In Delerium - Good Roots (LP) and I'm Trippin' Alone (LP); and So Many Times on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (CD) and Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW/MDo)

45:	That Creature/ Gonna Live Another Day Or Two	(Unique. A-14-1940-10) 1969

Released on a Carrollton, Georgia label which may indicate their home base, their single includes a rather commercial pop song. It features moog-like noises and pleasant harmonies that are at odds with vitriolic female-put-down lyrics probably considered un-PC these days, e.g. "Leave that ugly creature from another planet" and "a creature from the local zoo".

You can also check out That Creature on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 22 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Psychedelic States: Georgia Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

45:	Eight Day Blues/Funny Things Floating	(Stop S-101-A/B) 1967

Sweet Cherry hailed from Trenton, Michigan. It is one of the 'down-river' suburbs a few miles from Detroit. Their sole single was recorded in a local two-track studio as a demo disc, while they were still in high school. It was cut 'live' with no overdubs or studio sweetening, other than a bit of reverb on the vocals. The recording was self-financed and 500 copies were pressed up by the band - many were given away at their live shows at local schools and dance clubs, although a large number were destroyed by 'sailing' them frisbee style off a mountain in Kentucky following a road trip... Surviving copies are consequently rare!

The story goes that the band used such a primitive PA system that they were never able to hear the vocalist, Carli, (whose girlfriend incidentally was a dancing regular on a Windsor, Canada teen show called "Swingin' Time") until they heard the playback of the 7". Subsequently they decided to become a strictly instrumental band, playing all original compositions and extended jams, with Carli on sax instead of vocals.

Without the constraints of the pop-song format, they became well respected as musicians and praised for their originality, but opportunities to play live dwindled and following school graduation (1968/69) the group quietly disintegrated.

Their two cuts:- Eight Day Blues and Funny Things Floating can also be found on Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD) and Michigan Mixture, Vol. 1 (LP).

The second of these is very garagy with some good guitar work in places. You can also access it on A Deadly Dose of Wyld Psych (CD). (SG/VJ)

Sweet Magnolia Band was from Little Rock, Arkansas. There's no date on the album, but it looks/sounds 1974 or so. Less hillbilly than one might expect by the label name, this is very competent rural-rock with some fine lead guitar and all but a couple of tracks have a distinctly weed-burning feel. The band looks particularly wasted on the cover picture - and the back cover sports some of the strangest typographical errors ever seen! (CF)

Produced by Frank Slay (Strawberry Alarm Clock, Boenzee Cryque...), this group should interest fans of Californian sounds with good guitars, like Redwing or Redeye.

Sweet Pain was fronted by Riordan and Phillips and the highlights of their very consistent album include the long Joy with its twin guitars, Richard And Me (the only cover, a Pistilli and West song from 1967) and The Lover. Their music was mainly comprised of free flowing West Coast rock with shared vocals and interesting guitar solos but also included a melancholic instrumental track with 12-string guitar.

The same year, Phillips and Slay produced the first album by Sugarloaf. In 1974, Marty Foltz drummed behind Tim Weisberg and, in 1979, Demme and Johnson formed the obscure Rock Rose who recorded one album on CBS. (SR)

Originally from Minot in North Dakota this band then known as The Tracers relocated to Amarillo in Texas and issued a single for Sully. Moving on to Fort Worth and calling themselves the Try-Cerz they then issued a single for Jan-Gi before a further change of name to Sweet Smoke. Morning Dew was a fine garage version of a classic folk-rocker and also had a fine dope inspired flip, with a superb Hammond organ break. The single was leased to Amy for wider distribution and in an attempt to break through the group recorded a Beatles cover for the next single. However, it was not to be and they disbanded late in 1969. The quartet still resides in Fort Worth.

This album by a local band from Bluefield, West Virginia is well worth investigation. Consistently good throughout it oozes with superb heavy progressive guitar work. All The Way Home is one of the most 'psychedelic' tracks and the opening cut, Karen, is a melodic pop-rock number. The under-rated, largely unknown album may get greater recognition in time thanks to the Void reissue.

A communal hippie band the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles who played an amalgam of psychedelia, classical, folk, jazz and Latin styles.

They were the first group on stage on the opening day of Woodstock, following Richie Havens, but nothing from their set made it onto the movie or soundtrack. Still some of their songs finally got an airing on the Woodstock 40 box set. Their first album (produced by Dave Hassinger) is the best. It's an unusual blend of jazz, folk, rock, blues and classical influences, with an atypical, guitar-free line-up of keyboards, bass, cello, flute and percussion backing Nancy Nevins soaring vocals. Highlights include the awesome mind-bending fuzz of My Crystal Spider and the dreamy baroque psychedelia of In A Rainbow which both feature the band's trademark male/female vocal harmonies as well as strings, flute, electric guitar etc. The album spent two weeks at No. 200 in the charts.

Prior to recording their second album Just For You lead singer Nancy Nevins suffered a terrible car accident in late 1969 that permanently damaged one of her vocal cords. Despite this, the band continued to record new material, salvaging some previously recorded tracks with Nevins, who also recorded two new songs during her rehabilitation. Her loss caused them to emphasise their instrumental strengths, but they missed her badly on tour.

SWEET TOOTHE
TESTING

SWEET TOOTHE - Testing LP.

Alan Malarowitz appears only on two tracks of Melon, their third album: - I'm Happy Today and Join The Band. The rest of the album was recorded with session drummer Ricky Fataar, most famous for his appearance in the "rockumentary" The Rutles: All You Need Is Cash (he's The Rutles' drummer Stig O'Hara), and touring with The Beach Boys in the early seventies. With Nevins unable to tour their live appeal was diminished and they split up in 1972, although there was a reformation in the nineties.

Following the band's split; Nansi (now Nancy) Nevins issued a self-titled solo album (Tom Cat Records BYL-1-1063) 1975. (VJ/RKt/NR/MW/SR/EG)

T. Swift & The Electric Bag (CA)

ALBUM:	1	ARE YOU EXPERIENCED	(Custom 1115) 1968 SC

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Akarma GFC425) 2001. (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-173) 2001.

The album sounds similar to Animated Egg or Underground but better. The title track is an interesting and different interpretation of the Hendrix classic. As I Grow Into A Man draws from Bob Dylan's Like A Rolling Stone and Red Eyes is a driving instrumental with some slick guitar work. A Jet is clearly a remake of The Box Tops' The Letter and Take It Easy Baby takes the music from the Classics IV Spooky but changes the lyrics. The plagiarism of these two songs dates the album around spring 1968, although there are no details on the disc itself. Two of the instrumentals on side two, Free Form In 6 and The Stinger recall the first Blood Sweat and Tears album and are haunting instrumentals. The last track on side two, Expo In Sound, also has some inspired jamming. The album had a vocal and an instrumental side. The band was from the L.A. area and the man behind the project was Jerry Cole.

The Gear Fab CD liner notes speculate that T. Swift was Tom Swift who fronted the Tom Swift & The Electric Grandmothers who recorded a single on Sound Tex in 1964 in Houston, but this is still speculation.

Are You Experienced? re-emerged on Endless Journey - Phase Three (LP); and they have five tracks: Expo In Sound, Free Form In 6, Our Man Hendrix, Red Eyes and What's Your Bag featured on Animated Egg: Guitar Freakout (CD). (VJ/MK/MW/RM)

ALBUM: 1(A)	COMING DOWN	(HI SHL-32064) 1969	25 SC

Lode Star was from El Paso, Texas and in the late sixties they were signed by hometown label Suemi and contributed four tracks songs to the local-talent-showcase, I Love You Gorgo (LP).

Soon after, Suemi's owner-producers Kenny Smith and Bill Taylor won a contract with Hi Records and relocated to Memphis, taking several acts with them, including Iota and Lode Star. Their album was recorded there and, by the time it appeared, they'd been augmented by Paul West from label-mates The Intruders (also on I Love You Gorgo) and changed their name to Swift Rain. Opportunistically tagged as 'psych' by some dealers, this album is early-seventies guitar-dominated power-rock, showcasing a variety of moods and some ripping solos. Recommended to fans of Joe Walsh-period James Gang. (MW)

45: Do You Have To Ask?/
Comin' On Back Home (SPQR 1101) 1966

Formed in 1964 in the Churchland area of Portsmouth, Virginia the versatile Swinging Machine was well-respected amongst their rivals on the Tidewater scene. Richardson had a wide range of styles. His soulful quality, sounding like a cross between Eric Burdon and Mick Jagger, can be heard on the so-cool punker Do You Have To Ask? Underpinned by a tight but swinging rhythm section and a simple but effective piercing guitar refrain and pizzicato solo, it's both unique and unforgettable. Two versions are featured on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) where it is accompanied Comin' On Back Home, a reedy pop-punker.

The band came to an unfortunate end with the death of Gary Richardson in July 1968.

Compilation appearances have included: Do You Have To Ask? (two versions) and Comin' On Back Home on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (LP & CD); Do You Have To Ask? on What A Way To Die (LP) and Hang It Out To Dry (CD); and the previously unreleased Brother Look Out on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things, Vol 4 (CD). This eight man frat-rock outfit from Greenwood, South Carolina helped establish and define the Carolina Beach Music scene in the sixties, but achieved international fame with their recording of Double Shot (Of My Baby's Love), dubbed by the one and only Bruce Springsteen, as the number one fraternity rock song of all time. The song has become a staple in Springsteen's live shows through the years. In the sixties they enjoyed some limited chart success and their album, Double Shot (Of My Baby's Love) became a minor collectable and made No. 88 in the U.S. Album Charts back in 1966. They released numerous singles, in addition to those listed, on 1-2-3 and Capitol and would still be wowing punters in The South in the new millennium.

In 1967, Caldwell and Forston broke away to form The Pieces of Eight and released singles on Action, A&M and Mala, including a new version of Double Shot in 1969.

Steve Caldwell died of pancreatic cancer on 28th January 2002 at the age of 55. He'd left the band in 1969, got a master's degree in chemistry at the University of South Carolina before returning to his native Atlanta, where he ran the Norell temporary staffing agency until starting his own company in 1976.

The CD retrospective Anthology contains a good selection of their hits and covers of well known gems like Hey Hey Baby, Hang On Sloopy and Louie Louie, all performed in their distinctive "Animal House" style.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Double Shot (Of My Baby's Love) on Frat Rock! The Greatest Rock N Roll Party Tunes Of All Time (LP), Highs Of The Sixties (LP), Wild Thing (2-LP), We Have Come For Your Children (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Nuggets From Nuggets (CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD). NB: α shown as by The Yo Yo's.

From Memphis, Tennessee and originally known as The Yo Yo's, they added the "Swingin'" prefix for the final single to avoid clashing with the New York City Yo-Yo's, since that bunch's hyphen was not a notable difference. They also shared management with Sam The Sham. Leaning On You was written by Joe South, recorded at Muscle Shoals in Alabama and engineered by Rick Hall who also worked with Otis Redding. The band also played in New York and Atlanta.

Rusty Taylor went on to solo work, including a pair of singles in 1970 on the MOC label.

Their full story is told in Ron Hall's book on the Memphis scene (1960-1975) - 'Playing For A Piece Of The Door', published in 2001 by Shangri-La Projects, ISBN 0-9668575-1-8.

You'll also find Gotta Find A New Love on Project Blue, Vol. 1 (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 3 (LP); and Leaning On You on A History Of Garage And Frat Bands In Memphis (CD).

Originally known as The Speidels this outfit came from San Antonio in Texas and won the 1968 'Battle Of The Bands' in Austin. Their single was a Hendrix-styled heavy fuzz effort and they were connected to another Texas outfit called The Runaways.

Bob Geissler and Kent Liming had earlier played with The Laughing Kind.

An act of this name had at least three singles on RCA in the seventies, but Bob Geissler informs us that they were the work of a different band. The Speidels also had a couple of singles under their own name. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	SYMPHONIC METAMORPHOSIS	(London PS-573) 197?

45:	Creation/Reach Out	(London 45-133) 197?

A very borderline inclusion. This octet was made up of classically trained musicians moonlighting from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. They described their music as "Fusion Rock - a mutated hybrid of rock, classics, jazz, folk, blues and pop"; such an all-embracing melting-pot is unlikely to appeal to purists of any of those genres. Their album and single are thought to date from around 1971. (MW/SR/EW)

45s:
	My Baby's Barefoot/Love Will Take Away	(Dore 743) 1965
	The Egyptian Thing/She Haunts You	(Dot 16807) 1965

Raw and frantic punk band The Syndicate came from the Los Angeles County suburbs of Whittier and Long Beach. They formed in 1964 and had consolidated into a five-piece by January 1965. Their first single, My Baby's Barefoot, is characterised by slashing guitar and the vocalist's ravings about a mean woman. Their second, The Egyptian Thing, is another frantic punk assault on the senses.

Not surprisingly, they were a popular live attraction and, aside from the usual high school and college dances in the area, appeared at Ciro's LeDisc and the Sea Witch in Hollywood, the Marina Palace in Seal Beach and The Cinnamon Cinder in Long Beach. After signing to Dot Records they were to have recorded an album of originals Five The Hard Way, but the project ran into problems and they split in mid-1966.

Compilation appearances have included: She Haunts You on No No No (CD); The Egyptian Thing and My Baby's Barefoot on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP); and The Egyptian Thing on Chosen Few, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ/DPe)

This garage-rock quintet formed in San Jose in 1965 and is best known for their Top 10 hit Little Girl. By 1968 they were aiming at underground audiences and, although they achieved no further commercial success, they remained a popular live attraction. Their album (Little Girl) made No. 148 in the U.S. Album Charts and has become a minor collectable.

In April 1965, just off a short tour headlining the Pacific Northwest with Paul Revere and The Raiders, they descended upon the San Mateo County Fairgrounds for The Teenage Fair (in April of 1965) and won the top prize at the 'Battle Of The Bands' competition - studio time at Del-Fi studios and a contract to release one Del-Fi single. The label passed on the option to release the single; instead they pressed up 1,500 promo copies of the single and gave them to the band, who took them back home to San Jose to sell at their shows. The 'A' side is an Animals copy, while the 'B' side is a lightweight, almost Beach Boys-like pop tune written by Sharkey. After the band had a minor hit on the Billboard charts with Little Girl Del-Fi reconsidered and decided to officially issue the earlier single, this time on the Scarlet label. However this was pulled quickly after objections from the band's recording manager (and Hush label-owner) Garrie Thompson.

The Syndicate of Sound toured constantly for the latter half of 1966, taking time off to tape TV shows like 'American Bandstand' and 'Where The Action Is'. Soul singer James Brown, who appeared with them on one of the TV shows, was so impressed that he invited them to open his theatre show in San Francisco. Success was short for the band; a year or so later drummer Duckworth was drafted at the height of the Vietnam conflict, the band went through several other changes from its original line-up and recorded three singles at the end of 1969. Baskin then moved to Los Angeles in 1970, where he and Gonzalez (the only other remaining original member of the band) mounted an unsuccessful attempt at recording another album for Capitol Records. It didn't do much, so they disbanded.

John Sharkey issued a private press album in 1975 which is now a minor collectible.

The Syndicate Of Sound retrospective album features two unreleased cuts, the last three singles and other selected singles and album cuts.

Compilation coverage has so far included: (We Ain't Got) Nothin' Yet on Nuggets Box (CD); Little Girl on Wild Thing (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP), Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD), Nuggets (CD) Nuggets From Nuggets (CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); That Kind of Man on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box) and Rumors on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD box). Big Beat's Hush Records Story (CD) includes nine tracks by the band (Little Girl, Get Outta My Life, Looking For The Good Times (The Robot), That Kind Of Man, Rumors, Say I Love You, Mary (alternate version) (Marrie), Games and Saturday Night), many unreleased. A live rendition of Louie Louie from 1966 appears on the flexi single that came with 'Cream Puff War #2'. The San Jose Todaze Yesterday CD includes three tracks by the 1996 line-up - Shakin' All Over, My Lonely Sad Eyes and Off The Hook. (VJ/MW/BTs/EDW)

Born in Hungary in 1936, jazz guitarist Gabor Szabo arrived in the U.S.A. in 1956 with Louis Kabok (The Advancement) and began playing on records by Chico Hamilton. A very gifted guitarist with a specific touch and sound; he became influenced by Indian mysticism and began a solo career in 1965. Recording albums on ABC mixing jazz, rock, Indian music (with sitar) and pop, his records sold well and he was one of the few jazz musicians to influence the rock and psych market. Insect Trust recorded his Walkin On Nails, A.B. Skhy wrote the track Gazebo about him, Dr. John cited him on The Lonesome Guitar Strangler and The Eden's Children quoted him on their liner notes. He also played San Francisco's Fillmore on the same bill as Hendrix.

Gabor Szabo recorded intensively, notably on ABC with the famous producer Bob Thiele (John Coltrane, Free Spirits, Salvation) and on Skye with Gary McFarland. The musicians who usually played with him included Louis Kabok, Jim Keltner, Bill Plummer (of Cosmic Brotherhood), Hal Gordon and Jim Stewart. Their material was mostly instrumental and ranged from versions of Beatles, Stones, Sonny & Cher and Donovan to Manuel de Falla's Fire Dance, plus originals penned by Szabo. Live recordings from the period are also extremely interesting.

Readers should however avoid the two ABC records with the California Dreamers, these are an awful experience aimed at the adult market and are completely marred by insipid choir vocals. The California Dreamers were a vocal nine-piece who included John and Tom Bahler, better known as The Love Generation.

Szabo returned to the jazz style after 1970. He died in 1982.

You'll also find Walking On Nails on Journey To A Higher Key: The Best Of Sitar Psychedelia, Vol. 1 (LP); and In Search Of Nirvana on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 9 (CD). (SR/MW)

ALBUM: 1 JON TABAKIN (Larrow 100) 1975 R1

This is a soft-pop album by a Californian artist. There's a strong Beach Boys influence and the production is lo-fi but the songwriting is creative and the album is definitely worth a spin for fans of seventies pop. (VJ)

45: Head Collect/Out Of The Cold (Dym-A-Nite 1247) 197?

Here's a rare private press single by a progressive hard-rock outfit with both West Coast and Midwest elements, like a cross between Tripsichord and Thunderpussy. The rhythm section on the 'A' side sounds quite a lot like The Who circa 1969.

Craig Hute was previously with The Contents Are. (CF)

45: All My Life/So Sad (La Salle L-382) 1967

A bunch of Long Island teens discovered by local talent spotter Carl Edelson, whose sole single appeared in 1967 on his La Salle label. Edelson was also responsible for releases by the Shandels and Lemon Sandwich. All My Life reappears on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD) - it would be an average garage ballad but for a discordant outburst of acidic guitar. 45: Vintage N.S.U./Taxman (Hideout H-1226) 1968

Formed in Ann Arbor, Michigan this band released just one single which remains unheard and has yet to attract any compilers, perhaps because both sides appear to be covers, of Cream (?) and the Beatles.

Supposedly a couple of members would join the Detroit-based Bottle Company who released a single on Hideout the following year; that band had evolved out of Owosso's Run-A-Rounds. Michael Lutz later found fame with Brownsville Station. (MW)

45: Little By Little/You Don't Care (Tally 200,688) 1965

The Tallysmen hailed from Dorchester, Massachusetts. They also recorded an alternative version of You Don't Care About Me and another song, Only Girl In The World, which still exist as acetates.

One member was later in the Tweeds.

45: Just Flowers/Traffic (IRC 6943) 1966

If hippie sounds float your boat, you'll dig this obscure waxing on a Chicago label. It is not the usual commercial, harmony-drenched, groovy 'sunshine pop', it's the real deal. Just Flowers is a trippy flute-led instrumental, infused with incense and patchouli and ideal background music. Traffic has Tamara's breathy reading of a poem over a flute and bongo workout. Dealers who list this as 'garage' are very misleading. (MW)

THE TANGERINE ZOO - Self Titled LP.

The band came from Latrobe, Pennsylvania. Their rare album was recorded in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. It contains five original songs. All of side two is taken up with My Main Woman, a 13-minute jam on which each band member shows his playing skills. Overall it's an interesting album which ranges from hard-rock, guitar-oriented jazz-rock, tinges of psychedelia and lots of drums. The sleeve notes mention that one track The Hutch was written during a live performance of the group at The Hutch in Vienna, West Virginia on 28th February 1971.

They later evolved into The Ferraro Brothers which tried to blend fifties, sixties and seventies music with prominent vocal harmonies.

β Like People/Can't You See (Mainstream 690) 1968

NB: α both sides taken from their debut album. β both sides taken from their second album.

Tangerine Zoo was a Newport, Rhode Island band. Although their first album contains some impressive swirling organ work and occasional fuzztone guitar, its material, which is largely written by the band, lacks originality. Their second effort, Outside Looking In is the better of the two.

Tavares departed prior to its recording and the remaining quartet produced wilder and more imaginative music which translated to vinyl quite effectively. On this, Wake Up Sun, Can't You See, Confusion and a cover of The Moody Blues' Another Morning are all excellent. It's a pity that the group didn't recruit a new lead vocalist, however, as shortcomings in this department are occasionally obvious.

Tangerine Zoo evolved out of The Ebb Tides, and Wayne Gagnon later played in an outfit called Wadsworth Mansion. Tavares was later in the seventies disco act of the same name.

Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP) includes a version of one of their better tracks Nature's Children as by The Kidds, a previous incarnation of this outfit. (VJ/CF)

Taos, New Mexico is famous for the Taos Pueblo which has been continuously inhabited for over 1,000 years. In the late sixties Taos became a minor destination for hippies (and now it's an artist-colony type tourist town). This quintet made their home there and played a predictable mix of folk, country and blues with vocal harmonies and some decent guitar work. Their music is not essential. The single cuts are from the album. Additional titles include Space Bird, Think I'll Wait, Morning Sun, 20,000 Miles In The Air (Again), All My Life, Love's Face, Putting My Faith In You, On The Way Down, Climbing Up The Mountain and After So Long (So Long). (SR/VJ)

45: Love Is For Peace/Billy The Birdman (A&M 1158) 1969

Produced by Chad Stuart (of Chad & Jeremy), Tarantula was a California group strongly influenced by Zappa and jazz. Tracks like Electric Guru, Red Herring, Love Is For Peace, Peach, Fuzz And Peppermints have lots of acid organ, fuzz guitar and strange vocals and lyrics, plus various noises and onomatopeas. The single tracks are from the album.

Oz Bach had previously been in Spanky and Our Gang and then in Wings, another California group similar to The Mama & The Papas who released an album for Dunhill. Thad Maxwell went on to play with country-rock bands (Swampwater, Sierra) and Arlo Guthrie. (SR)

ALBUM: 1(A) FEBRUARY (New South Recordings NR-4500) 1973 R2

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-241) 2010.

From Florida, this was a popular local act in the Tallahassee area of Florida in the early seventies. They had a local hit in Tallahassee with the bluesy boogie Gotta Find Me A Woman, which is on their album. They also performed with Eric Carmen and The Raspberries in Panama City. Musically February is a folk-rock album with some light fuzz in places and a few boogie tracks (Bootleg, My Back Door, Baked Tomato). It's on the mellower material (I Need Your Love and So Long, with its clear appealing vocals) that the album really wins through. The final track New Song is a gorgeous instrumental.

Brewster Banks went on to release eight albums under various names and Patrick Muth was in Crybaby between 1976-1980 and then played in The Cove Hotel Band in Panama City. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 LUCKEY GUY (w/insert) (S'Heavy 812006) 1978 R3

Jem Targal was bassist in Detroit's Third Power. His solo album is presented in a crude black and white cover designed to be hand-coloured by the purchaser and is a mish-mash of riffing with pianos, keyboards, echo-laden vocals, various percussion instruments, multi-tracked harmonies, and bass guitar. The result is predictably uneven, but the album has some interesting moments. (VJ)

The first album mixes early electronic music with psychedelic sounds; and it contains a cover of The Beatles' I Am The Walrus.

The second album is subtitled "Instrumental Creations for Orchestra and Moog Synthesizer by Tartaglia" and, in addition to the title track, features covers of the likes of Aquarius, A Day In The Life, Classical Gas, The Boxer and Within You, Without You. Best to be wary; with a sultry chick on the cover, it would appear to be a bargain-bin exploito or muzak album.

Tartaglia also worked with Richard Christensen. (SR/VJ/MW)

From West Palm Beach, Florida and another good double-sided debut single. The 'A' side is a pleasant pop love song and the flip's a much wilder punker with some fine harmonica and guitar riffs. I Can't Explain This Feeling is a punchy fuzz-popper which kicks off like The Who before veering off into a garage-psych vortex midway through and at the end.

Robin Thompson played with Bruce Springsteen's E Street Band in the seventies and now runs his own recording studio in Virginia.

	α	Funny Paper Sun/It's High Time	(Age Of Aquarius 1548) 1971

NB: α released early 1971 as a double 7" set in a gatefold PS.

The album was recorded live at the Nitty Gritty, Madison, Wisconsin on 18 March 1972. It's becoming sought-after by collectors. The songs are all originals and the band competent musicians. The music on side one for the most part is R&B/bar blues, certainly not for garage or psychedelic purists. Side two is more interesting - Angry With My Friend has some experimental guitar work, Master Of The Arts is a good track and Guitar, as its title suggests, features some pretty frantic and melodramatic guitar work. Certainly side two has its moments, but the band suffers from the lack of a strong vocalist.

The CD reissue comprises the single tracks and the live album and provides a detailed history of the band. The Tayles were formed in 1966 after two members of Jeremy Wilson's previous outfit (the Canterbury's) were killed in a car crash. This determined the name of the successor band. The Tayles started out as a sixties covers band playing hits at frat parties. The only bar the band performed at on a regular basis was the Nitty Gritty so no surprise that's where they recorded their album.

The Tayles split in 1972 with Jeremy Wilson going on to form the Shakers and Scott, Bob and Rick forming the Beans, but they reunited as The Tayles in 1976. The name was finally retired in the late seventies and, as the Shakers again, they continued power-poppin' into the nineties.

Bob Schmidtke passed away in 1984 and the band has dedicated the reissues to his memory. Rick Markstrom became a clothing buyer and the only member who still remained in the music business professionally part-time. Scott Eakin became an automobile technician. Paul Petzold's whereabouts are unknown.

She Made Me That Way has been compiled on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/MW)

Produced by Al Gorgoni and Chip Taylor and designed to look like a bootleg, this album comprises the first recordings by James Taylor in 1967 whilst he was working the folk-rock circuit with Kortchmar and O'Brien from the King Bees. Only seven tracks are included with Night Owl, Rainy Day Man (covered by Tom Rush on his Circle Game album) and two takes of the catchy Knocking Round The Zoo, complete with false starts and studio dialogue. Musically it can be compared to the Lovin' Spoonful or early Youngbloods. Kortchmar went on to form City and with O'Brien Jo Mama, before becoming a session man. Taylor signed a contract with Apple enjoying a successful singer/songwriter career in the seventies.

NB: α shown as by The Pigmees. β shown as by Eric Marshall and The Chimes.

This band recorded in Minneapolis, Minnesota between the mid-sixties and early seventies, but came from St Paul. Aside from the above-mentioned album, they also issued several singles including the one for Sire as Eric Marshall and The Chimes. They also had a cut on the Money Music (LP) compilation (Faces, the same version that appears on their Turtle single). Drummer, Rod Eaton, later played with The Underbeats, an early version of Gypsy. Eaton was replaced by Nehls, formerly of the Rave-Ons and South 40.

The live album, which was reissued on the French Eva label in 1983, contains some fine drivin' renderings of such sixties classics as Lovelight, Mona, Baby Please Don't Go, Shake, I'm So Glad and Smokestack Lightning, as well as fine covers of more sensitive numbers like Spanish Harlem and I Love You So, Little Girl.

With the possible exception of Love Is Just, their post-'66 output is disappointing given that Faces is rightly regarded as one of THE best examples of psychedelic punk. Be warned that the version of Faces on the Parrot single is an orchestrated mellow version and, sad to say, sucks!

Some of this band's material was produced and written by Harley Toberman, who also recorded with Blue Sandelwood Soap. It was Toberman who, together with noted Minnesota collector and author Jim Oldsberg, produced the 17-track Best Of CD in 2002. It gathers together the stronger single cuts, including O-Rang-A-Tang (released in 1965 as "The Pigmees"), and adds a handful of unreleased cuts by the final line-up, which are in hard-rock vein

Compilation appearances have included: Faces on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Great Pebbles (CD); Faces and Mona on Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD) and The Finest Hours of U.S. '60s Punk (LP); and Love Is Just on Changes (LP). 45: Come And Have Some Tea With Me/
Flowers (Smash 2176) 1968

Tea was another word for marijuana, so with a name like The Tea Company, it is clear what to expect from their sole album. It is an interesting effort, with the title track and 10-minute cut, Flowers outstanding. The latter is Beatles-influenced psychedelia, with high-pitched guitar notes superimposed upon a typical psychedelic backing. It sounds rather like an extended version of the ending to Strawberry Fields Forever. Aside from a slowed-down version of The Supremes' hit You Keep Me Hanging On, all the compositions are originals and some are full of the usual hippie cliches and social commentary, for example, Love Could Make The World Go Round and Make Love Not War. Their sole single contained shorter versions of two cuts from their album, with Flowers being a drastically edited and remixed version.

The group, who were originally called The Lip-Tin Tea Company, came from Queens, New York and evolved out of The Naturals. They played mostly in New York City, Long Island, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Al Vertucci recalls: - "The Tea Company and all The Naturals stuff was done at Ultra-Sonic by Bill Stahl". Ultra-Sonic was "in Hempstead, Long Island, and the owner/engineer was Bill Stahl who did all of the 'Fudge and Shangri-Las stuff there. One of the greatest engineers ever!! He did with four tracks what people can't do today with 48. The Tea Company album (which was recorded on eight tracks) was then re-mixed and ruined at A&R Recording, 7th Avenue in New York City by Mercury's Dick Corby."

You Go Your Way (PS) (004 45-004.1/2) 1966
Armful Of Teddy Bear/Who Are You (PS) (004 NPS-101) 1966

Quartet Teardrops was from Pueblo, Colorado - home of The Trolls. Their best effort is considered to be Sweet, Sweet Sadie - a catchy pop-punker produced by Norman Petty. Somewhere between Paul Revere and Raiders and Sir Doug's She's About A Mover. The flip is a lame pre-beat teen ballad.

Their second single, Armful Of Teddy Bear is a tame pop ballad distinguished only by its carnival theme and evocative merry-go-round keyboard sounds, but the flip is a surprisingly tight'n'bouncy novelty-cum-punker.

You can also check out Sweet, Sweet Sadie on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (LP), Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD), Now Hear This! (CD) and Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD). (VJ/MW)

45s: Weatherman/Read All About It (Scorpio 409) 1966
Rat Race/People Through My Glasses (Onyx 2201) 1968

Originally thought to be from Sacramento, California the band was actually headquartered in the Bay Area town of Alameda. They won the State Fair 'Battle Of The Bands' in 1966, thereby getting the opportunity to cut Weatherman. The single, which is most notable for some fuzzy instrumental and a good vocal, got a lot of airplay in northern California in late 1966 and the band consequently toured heavily in that area, with gigs with Grateful Dead, Music Machine, Mojo Men, The Seeds etc.

The second single didn't come out until early '68, by which time the group had split - only the Salazar brothers feature on the flip People Through My Glasses. Two unissued killers, Taxi Driver and No Time For Tears are also featured on a Nugget from The Golden State volume, and Rick Salazar's son Arion is the bass player in Third Eye Blind.

Compilation coverage has so far included: all four sides on The Scorpio Records Story (CD) although the version of People Thru My Glasses appears here in remixed form, whilst the single version graces Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD); Weatherman and Read All About It on Sound Of The Sixties: San Francisco Part 2 (LP); and Weatherman on The Psychedelic Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP), Sixties Choice, Vol. 2 (LP), 60's Choice Collection Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD). Scorpio was a subsidiary label of Fantasy records. (VJ/MW/AP)

This interesting San Jose-based group existed for too short a time. Suzy Creamcheese is a superb slice of mayhem and dementia and has rightly become an acid-punk classic on account of its inclusion on several compilations. All their material is essential stuff in any garage-psych collection.

Compilation appearances have included: Suzy Creamcheese on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP & CD), Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (ESD) (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Great Pebbles (CD), Uptight Tonight (CD) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); From Day To Day on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 6: The Biker (LP & CD), Filling The Gap (4-LP box), Victims Of Circumstances, Vol. 1 (LP) and Victims Of Circumstance, Vol. 2 (CD); and Haight Ashbury on Boulders, Vol. 2 (LP), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 2 (7") and A Heavy Dose Of Lyte Psych (CD). Originally from Beverly, Massachusetts the band was later based in nearby Boston. They first attracted attention when Once Upon A Time was transferred from Coristine to the Musicor label. It gave them their second local Top 10 hit, but national success always eluded them. Their leader Teddy Dewart had left the band by the time of their album and their earlier garage sound was surrendered for a bubblegum style. Their album is not recommended, but many of their singles have resurfaced on compilations:- The Lovelight and Once Upon A Time are also on Bay State Rock Vol. 1 (LP) and they have four tracks:- Once Upon A Time; (Bye Bye) Out The Window, Smokey Fire and We Can't Go On This Way on Mindrocker, Vol. 10 (2-LP). We Can't Go On This Way can also be heard on Nuggets, Vol. 4: Pop Part Two (LP) and is a rather pretty pop song. They also contributed two songs on a Various Artists collection, The Gene Pitney Show (Musicor 2101) (LP).

Their producer Bruce Patch was also responsible for the Timothy Clover album and went on to establish Spoonfed Records who reissued some of Boston's classic albums like The Remains' Epic album.

In March 2002, the band released a CD EP Rarities And Forgotten Gems which contains seven unreleased and rare Pandas songs - tracks which were all recently discovered from long lost and forgotten demo acetates, audition pressings and rare singles.

The Once Upon A Time retrospective gathers together 20 tracks on the first disc, comprising 1966-1968 singles and the Tower album. The second disc contains 14 cuts collected together by band members from acetates and rehearsal tapes; the final cut is a studio session from 1984, the remainder cover 1965 to 1967. (VJ/HI/BW/MW)

	Mona/Good Morning Blues	(Cameo 448) 1967
	She's So Sweet And Kind/ Don't Mess With Me	(No label 1616) 1967

This Hyde Park, New York band's finest moment was arguably their pretty offbeat version of Bo Diddley's Mona. Jezebel was a raw, vitriolic cover, and Don't Mess With Me a rock'n'roller which they put out themselves. Where Have All The Good Times Gone is pretty fine too, a solid Kinks-like swinger; the flip is a tad ponderous but has some raunchy guitar in the break and finale. All their singles are worth picking up should you come across them.

In 1967 they recorded the superb Fusion single, released as by Pinocchio & The Puppets. Their next venture was as Mortimer although, by the time their eponymous album appeared, they'd been reduced to a trio by the departure of Ronga.

Compilation appearances include: Mona on Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP), Pebbles Vol. 10 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD) and Trash Box (5-CD); Don't Mess With Me on What A Way To Die (LP) and Hang It Out To Dry (CD); Jezebel on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 1 (LP); It's You on Wyld Sydes Volume 3 (CD); and She's So Sweet And Kind on Total Raunch (CD). From Tulsa, Oklahoma this duo of drummer/organist began playing in the mid-sixties with a locally famous Elvis manque named Gene Crose, who figures in the career of practically all the members of the Oklahoma Mafia, including Leon Russell and J.J. Cale. When they quit Crose after Teegarden was fired, they formed a band called Skip and The Blue Tones. After a while, Knape hooked up with a regional outfit called Rodney and The Blazers led by Rodney Lay (later with Roy Clark). Eventually, Knape and Teegarden ended up in the L.A. home of Leon Russell and released a single as the Sunday Servants, produced by J.J. Cale.

The pair finally returned to Tulsa, complemented by local musicians including Tommy Tripplehorn (who would later join the Leon Russell influenced Gary Lewis and The Playboys) and Carl Day. They began playing around town as LSD and C (for Love, Skip, Dave and Carl!) when they were spotted by a Detroit college student and Robert Kennedy campaign worker named Jim Cassily, who was on his way to California. After the Kennedy assassination, Cassily moved back to Detroit and persuaded Teegarden and Knape to take up residence with him. Cassily, who was to produce all their albums, had a lot of enthusiasm and devised a plan for the two to record their debut album live at a local Detroit club. He also renamed Knape "Van Winkle". Released on the independent Plum Records label, the disc quickly attracted the attention of Atlantic Records executive Jerry Schoenbaum, who offered them a contract. They sold about 10,000 copies of An Evening At Home and Atco gave them the green light for a second album, But Anyhow, recorded in March 1969 in GM Studios in Detroit. This features some original cuts, Donovan's Season Of The Witch plus R&B covers of Bright Lights, Big City, She Caught The Katie, Annie Had A Baby, before ending with All About My Ole Bitch.

They sold about 20,000 copies but their Atco contact wasn't renewed. Teegarden and Knape failed to get a contract with another label and their career was on the downhill slide. Then came along Leon Russell who had put together the Mad Dogs And Englishmen with all the Tulsa Mafia. He called them and they ended up on stage, but they refused to go on the tour and appear in the Mad Dogs movie.

The pair stayed in Detroit instead and recorded the initial version of God, Love And Rock 'n' Roll on a Revox. With their own money, they pressed 500 singles and finally got a contract with a local label, Westbound, who had just signed a distribution deal with Janus Records. Westbound did a lot of promotion with this single and God, Love And Rock 'n' Roll became a national hit. Unfortunately, the album Teegarden And Van Winkle wasn't ready and arrived too late to cash on the single's success. It's a good album, however, with creative arrangements of Eleanor Rigby and Merle Haggard's Okie From Muskogee.

Among the people who became interested in the duo was fellow Detroiter Bob Seger. They formed a trio and finally took on Mike "Monk" Bruce, a killer guitarist (also from Tulsa). The four men cut an album that was finally released as Bob Seger's Smokin O.P's, released on Punch Andrews' label Palladium.

At the same time On Our Way was released and is arguably their best record, probably because of Bruce's guitar parts. Tracy Nelson of Mother Earth guests on some tracks recorded in Nashville, the others being recorded in Toronto and Detroit. It contains good covers of Gregg Allman's Midnight Rider, Mose Allison's If You Live and Don Nix's Going Down plus eight original songs.

Experimental Groundwork, their final record, is supposed to have been recorded under hypnosis! Cassily found a hypnotist, Damon Reinhold, and came up with the idea of using him to hypnotize the band in the studio, inviting the press to watch. That allowed the group to get a lot of national promotion in Newsweek, Time etc, but when the story came out, once again, the record wasn't done. When it was finally released, no one cared anymore and the duo had broken up. Experimental Groundwork is in fact an excellent rock 'n' roll album with various covers and originals. Both sides begin with an induction and end with a band dehypnotization and the sleeve mentions that "You are advised to read the booklet included before playing the record". The said booklet is a must read, the writer (Gemini III !) explaining that hypnosis is a little like smoking grass and that, in case the record player malfunctions, you will merely fall asleep and wake up soon...

After 1973, Knape put together a big band with horns and female backing vocals and stayed around Detroit before moving to California in the late seventies to work with Eric Burdon and Doug Kershaw. Teegarden headed back to Tulsa and finally joined Bob Seger's Silver Bullet Band at the height of his visibility.

Teegarden and Van Winkle reunited in 1997, did some concerts in Tulsa and recorded a new album, Radioactive.

God, Love And Rock And Roll was later included on Michigan Rocks, Vol. 2 (LP). (SR/VJ/MW)

Here's another obscure New York/New Jersey outfit. Produced by Sidney Frey, the album is extremely hard to find and is not really for garage purists - it's competent frat-dance-beat featuring several beat covers A Hard Day's Night, And I Love Her, Do Wah Diddy Diddy, Walk Don't Run and dance numbers like Cmon And Swim and Mashed Potatoes Yeah. There are also four original songs written by their manager Josef Shefski. The liner notes mention "For the best possible reaction, this record can and should be played at maximum level".

The Tempests hailed from Elkhart, Indiana. Not strictly garage - this was one of those 'hangover' outfits that kept the spirit of the fifties alive during the sixties with a repertoire of old school rock'n'roll/rockabilly.

Look Away, a good early sixties rocker also appears on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 19 - Michigan Part 3 (LP) and on Riot City! (LP), but Fujimo was a north Indiana label. Lookin' Out The Window has resurfaced on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (VJ/MW)

Their Justice album changes hands for lots of bucks. It was about the only release on the label by a band not from the East Coast and many collectors consider it the best band on the label. As well as the usual covers it has some great Stones-influenced originals like You're Gonna Miss Me and Two Timer. All That I Really Want from their rare single appears on Gravel Volume 5 (CD).

Tim Warren's excellent compilation not only brings the album back from the grave (Cryptic pun intended!) but adds four live tracks - Hey Joe, I'm Cryin, Good Lovin' and Twist And Shout - and also two 'practice session' tracks Scratchy and Louie Louie. (VJ/MW)

45s:	Keep Your Cool/Stop Stopping Me	(United Artists 50199) 1967

More a pop than garage combo, nevertheless Keep Your Cool may appeal to some. It's a catchy laid-back strutter with 'cool' spoken vocals, Green Onions keyboard moves and arrogance reminiscent of 006's Like What, Me Worry. From Alabama, they featured lead singer Terry Woodford, who'd previously cut several solo releases. In high school Terry played in the Mystics, who included legendary Muscle Shoals player David Hood on bass. Supposedly they also recorded. Terry hooked up with The Chain Reaction right out of high school, and recorded at Fame Studios with producer Rick Hall. The follow-up Take Me To Your Heart is a powerful beat-stomper, sounding like something Paul Revere and The Raiders would have done a couple of years earlier. The flip is rather more typical of Fame sounds - soulful, strutting pop with brass.

Keep Your Cool was covered in 1985 by Plan 9 on their Keep Your Cool And Read The Rules album. (JLh/MW)

	Tobacco Road/Can't You See	(Castalia 268) 1968

Formed in 1967 in Phoenix, Arizona when The Young Men (Lacey & Killingsworth) merged with The Kin (Keslar, Quinlan, Buys and Welnick), they were known fleetingly as The Impact (and they certainly created one). Featured on A Fistfull of Fuzz (CD) and Fuzz, Flaykes, & Shakes Vol. 6 (LP/CD), Bawling is notable for some frantic buzzin' fuzz although it's more hard-rock than garage-punk. Their second single features a heaving, acid-rock version of Tobacco Road, backed by a gentle rock ballad.

Sheldon Skinkle (also known as Bunker Huddle or Jr. Ellis) had played on some unreleased tracks by local rivals The Grapes Of Wrath, which are on that band's retrospective CD on Gear Fab.

The band evolved into Sleepy Hollow who may have released a single in 1969 (Feelin' Glad Missed You So). In the mid-seventies Welnick resurfaced on the West Coast in The Tubes. (MW/John Hesterman/Dan Nowicki/VJ)

THEE MIDNITERS - In Thee Midnite Hour!!!! LP.

Thee Midniters was a seven-piece Chicano band from L.A. who enjoyed a minor hit in 1965 with their cool instrumental Whittier Boulevard and also their cover of Land Of 1000 Dances, which was also a hit for fellow Chicanos Cannibal and the Headhunters, whom they also backed up at live shows on many occasions. Because they had a horn section (who also doubled on extra keyboards and percussion), Thee Midniters were adept at playing outright rockers as well as soulful ballads.

Whittier Boulevard is on their debut album, which otherwise consists of British covers and frat and soul material.

Bring Me Your Love Special Delivery features the same blend plus a highly-rated original I Found A Peanut and the fuzzed-out stomper Love Special Delivery.

Unlimited is much more in their dance and soul vein. Giants featured material from their earlier albums including Whittier Boulevard, Land Of 1000 Dances, Walk On By, Going Out Of My Head and Love Special Delivery. (VJ)

Thee Muffins (NY)

ALBUM: 1 POP UP! (Fan Club no #) 1966 R2

This very obscure outfit was probably from Lake George, New York. The album, though exceedingly rare, is disappointing soulful beat-ballad music in the same mould as Skip and The Creations. Predominantly covers including Surprise Surprise, Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying, Do You Love Me?, I Feel Good, Crying Over You, Oo Poo Pah Doo and Not Fade Away. Only two tracks are notable, the Hank Williams cover Caliga and an instrumental version of Mel Torme's I'm Comin' Home. The album has not been reissued or pirated yet and given the prices it fetches, can't be recommended to garage fans.

Walter Rossi (of Charlee/Influence) is rumoured to have played on their album.

Not Fade Away has been compiled on Oil Stains (LP). (VJ/CLy/TM)

The band was a result of two New Orleans DJs teaming up with The Pirates to disrupt a Herman's Hermits concert in the Municipal Auditorium. Courtney and Kirby had their bodies painted gold and were dressed in baggies!

Diagnosis-Neurosis is an amalgam of comedy, punk and Vietnam protest about the onset of paranoid schizophrenia. By the second single they were cured and delivered a faithful version of Buddy Holly's Maybe Baby. (VJ/MW/AB)

This is an excellent album of folk-psychedelia with dreamy male/female vocals from Hawaii (musically it is reminiscent of The Incredible String Band and C.O.B. with dulcimer, tablas, slide guitar and sitar). 45: For Mary's Sake/Happy Man (Capitol 2163) 1968

Originally from Indiana, These Vizitors lived up to their name, travelling widely, eventually settling in the sunny climes of West Palm Beach, Florida. Centred around the Curtis Family (Rick, Micheal, Patti, and Tom), their sole single is as rare as any garage single. They were a great psychedelic folk band and played opening gigs with Hendrix, Canned Heat, etc. They went on to be vocalists on the Crazy Horse album At Crooked Lake in 1972, their song Blue Letter, was covered on the eponymous 1975 Fleetwood Mac album (their first with Buckingham/Nicks) and their largest grossing song Southern Cross was recorded by Crosby, Stills and Nash on their 1982 release Daylight Again.

The band actually recorded five songs in the '68 New York City session that produced the single: Happy Man, For Mary's Sake, Rippling Road, Duetime and Reacher Teacher. The first two were chosen for the single because they were more commercial - both are upbeat Monkee-esque garage-pop written by brothers Richard and Michael Curtis. The others had a slightly harder edge and were never released. Reacher Teacher is reportedly the best of the bunch and was included on Hoosier Hotshots, Vol. 2 (LP).

The band subsequently appeared on a local Chicago version of the "Bozo" show, lip-syncing both sides of the single, standing on the top of their road van. Amazingly, this footage has survived!

Micheal Curtis has also played and sang with Hoyt Axton, Gene Clark (Byrds), Dewey Martin (Buffalo Springfield) etc... (PY/BC/JLh/MW)

45s: It's A Long Way Down/
Merry-Go-Round Of Life (Casino 2305) 1966
Mass Confusion/Rainy Sunday Morning (Sonobeat 104) 1968

Passing through Austin, Texas en route from Topeka, Kansas to California this band was offered a one-off recording deal by Sonobeat. The result was an English-influenced hard-rocker, Mass Confusion with lots of fuzz guitar. The lyrics told the tale of a guy who sits in his chair and always talks about being confused. The lyrics also had subtle drug references like 'talking about love sadly dying' (ie. LSD). Apparently, it was the first single released in the US in stereo but the band broke up before it was released because their manager got into trouble with the Inland Revenue Service (IRS).

Bob Cole tells us that Ernie Swisher played on the earlier single, but quit before the band left Topeka. That single was A Long Way Down, an anti-drug song which argued when you've been up it's a long way to come down. The song sounds quite commercial and was aimed at the charts. 1,000 copies of the single were pressed and both sides became an important part of their live act. Cole also confirms that The Things did not contain two former members of The Thingies. John Dalton and Bob Cole were the only two Thingies to return to Topeka, but neither of them played professionally again. John still lives in Topeka. Ernie Swisher became a successful corporate lawyer. The other four are scattered from Florida to Texas (two), to Nevada, and they still keep in touch.

The Thingies Have Arrived!! CD gathers both singles plus four unreleased cuts - English Eyes and three versions of I'm Going Ahead. Larry Miller had previously been in the TR4 and their single: - Peter Rabbit/Surfin' TR (Exclusive 1007) 1963, is also included on the CD. The remainder of the album features fellow Topekans the Morning Dew and The Exotics, from Dallas.

Other compilation coverage has so far included: It's A Long Way Down and Merry-Go-Round Of Life on The Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. I (cassette); It's A Long Way Down on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 7: Backyard Patio (LP & CD) and Midwest Garage Band Series - Kansas (CD); Mass Confusion on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. II (LP), Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD); Mass Confusion and Rainy Sunday Morning on High All The Time, Vol. 1 (LP); and the previously unreleased I'm Going Ahead from 1967 on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD). A Houston-based sixties outfit who didn't make it onto vinyl at the time. They originally called themselves String 'N Things and although the "strings" referred to their guitars, people imagined the name referred to a pop group with violins, so they shortened their name to The Things. Two of their recordings: - I Don't Believe It and In Your Soul, both contained fine fuzztone guitar and Farfisa organ work which characterised many late sixties Texas punk bands. Two further unissued cuts: - Loveless Lover and Another Girl Like You were cut at Andrus Studios on 12th July 1967.

45s: Sweetgina/Speak Of The Devil	(Starfire 103)	1966
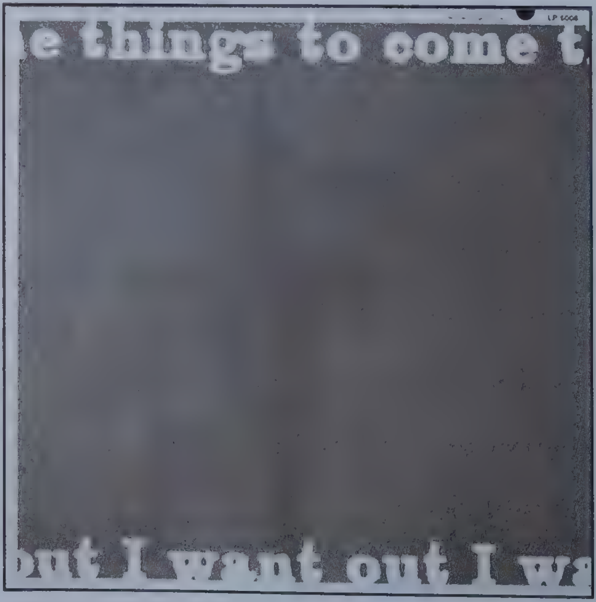
Hello/Good Day	(Warner Bros. 7228)	1968

A Los Angeles outfit who had some fine moments. The group recorded a wealth of material in 1966/7, mostly in the typical L.A. acid-punk vein and of a really outstanding quality. Some of these recordings were released on the Things To Come album, issued apparently as a tax loss scam, as only 50 copies were pressed. Originals are very rare, but thankfully the Sundazed retrospective means this excellent L.A. group's work is now accessible by all.

Their first single Sweetgina is a quite excellent bouncy organ/fuzz rework of Gloria. Specialists should note that the version of Speak Of The Devil included on the album is longer than on the single release. Speak Of The Devil is a superb slice of brooding menacing punk with ranting growling vocals, atmospheric vibes and feedback.



THINGS TO COME - I Want Out LP.

The chief songwriter behind the group was Steve Runolfsson, who the other members unwisely booted out in mid-1967. Come Alive, their second single, is notable for excellent percussion and Eastern psychedelic guitar moves whilst the flip Dancer is a heavy cruncher straight out of the Blue Cheer/Cream school. Slightly mellower but passable heavy sounds feature on the David Crosby-produced Hello single.

Garofalo later played for Californian solo artist John Stewart and Kunkel went on to do session work and played for Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young.

Compilation coverage so far includes: Sweetgina and Speak Of The Devil on The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP) and Chosen Few, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); Sweetgina on Boulders, Vol. 9 (LP), I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP), Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD) and Garage Beat '66 2 (CD); Come Alive on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 11 (LP); Speak Of The Devil on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD), Slowly Growing Insane (CD) and *Where The Action Is! 45: I'm Five Years Ahead Of My Time/
My Rainbow Life (Roulette 4742) 1967

Third Bardo was a New York City outfit. Their name, chosen by lead singer Jeffrey Monn and extracted from the 'The Tibetan Book of the Dead', refers to a "return to reality". The inclusion of I'm Five Years Ahead Of My Time on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP) has made it something of a classic among collectors of psychedelic punk; deservedly so in view of its haunting intro and fine fuzztone guitar work. Subsequently it has resurfaced on other compilations: - Born Bad (The Songs The Cramps Taught Us) (LP), Songs We Taught The Cramps (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles Vol. 3 (CD), Trash Box (5-CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Ah Feel Like Ahcid (CD). Rusty Evans of The Deep/Freak Scene wrote the single for The Third Bardo along with songwriter Victoria Pike, who was married to The Third Bardo's producer Teddy Randazzo (of Roulette Records) at the time. The excellent flip side of the single My Rainbow Life can also be heard on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 (LP) and Magic Carpet Ride (LP) whilst another version of it appears on Freak Scene's Psychedelic Psoul (LP). If that wasn't enough, David Walters (author of the excellent "Children of Nuggets" book) has pointed out that the version of My Rainbow Life on Glimpses, Vol. 4 (LP) is an acetate version, 20 seconds shorter than the final single and with a different mix! Both sides of the single can also be now heard on Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 3 (CD). The previously unreleased Lose Your Mind can be found on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD).

In the early seventies, their lead singer Neufeld released an album under another pseudonym, Chris Moon. In the eighties The Nomads did a fine cover version of I'm Five Years Ahead Of My Time and Kenne Highland's Majestic Gizmos reworked it into He's Five Beers Ahead Of Your Time (!) on the album of that name.

Although currently unreleased, the new recordings are great, capturing the spirit of the originals. Rusty may also be writing some new material for The Third Bardo themselves, who played live again on 16th May 1999 with a line-up of Jeff Monn aka Neufeld, Damian Kelly and Ricky Goldclang from the original band. This is a delightful album full of melodic guitar and some exquisite, often haunting female vocals on the title track. The group was formed in Baton Rouge, Louisiana and the album is about the French Revolution! It's a stark production, with fine fuzz guitar, backwards tape-loop soundscapes and beautiful treated acoustic guitar. It's recently been reissued by Lion Productions with the previously unreleased album Agonistes from 1973, which is a fine folk-psych album in its own right. In 1963 singer Argot Meyer formed a doo-wop style band, drawing members from the local community in The Bronx, New York. He christened them the Hi-Dells and doubled up as manager as well as providing his basement for band rehearsals. The neighbourhood record stores, Cousins Music and Music Makers, were known then for supporting local bands and it was the latter's Dawn label that provided the outlet for two singles, released in 1966 after the band had updated their style and changed their name to The 3rd Evolution.

Gone, Gone, Gone is a rather routine 'my baby left me' number. Don't Play With Me is noteworthy despite the poor production - starting off slow and moody with sneering punk vocals, it features some deceptive changes of pace. Everybody Needs... is cool solid beat with a resounding Day Tripper-like riff and some Jaggeresque tambourine bashing. Even better are some acetate cuts that came to light: - Help Me Back On My Feet is a superb folk-rock-punker, full of pathos and driven along by a pulsing rhythm, droning organ, and pizzicato guitar. Turn Around is a loose, loping number.

The band's material was written by Henderson and multi-instrumentalist Lupi; they would write and record over 100 songs for the band over the next two decades. They were known at various times as The Young Generation and New York Public Library, eventually evolving into The Trolley who released at least one single on Laurie in the late seventies.

Over 40 years on, the band still gets together every 4th of July.

Compilation appearances have included: Gone, Gone, Gone and Don't Play With Me on Pebbles, Vol. 11 (LP); Don't Play With Me on Off The Wall, Vol. 11 (LP), The Cicadelic 60's, Vol. 4 (CD), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 7: Get A Move On !!! (LP & CD) and Shadows Falling (CD); Gone Gone Gone on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 15 (LP & CD); and Everybody Needs Somebody (To Love) on Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 1 (CD). Third Power hailed from Detroit, Michigan. Indeed Michigan Rocks (LP) includes a track, Persecution, from their album, which is beginning to interest collectors and has subsequently been compiled on White Lace & Strange (CD). Snow, a fine heavy slice of acid-rock, can also be heard on Relics, Vol. 1 (LP) and Relics Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and Getting Together has been compiled on Up All Night (CD). Their album is usually considered one of the better heavy psych albums.

Jem Targal later released a fine solo album, Luckey Guy (S'heavy) in 1978 (R3).

In 1974, Drew Abbott became the guitarist of Bob Seger and The Silver Bullet Band. (VJ)

This outfit was a studio trio of songwriters. Run, Run, Run was a social comment song on the American rat race. It was included on the classic Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) compilation and later on Rhino's Nuggets, Vol. 11: Pop Part Four (LP), Even More Nuggets (CD) and Nuggets Box (4-CD). There's a similar but more disjointed track, She Ain't No Choir Girl and It's Time To Say Goodbye is a semi-hushed voiced ballad. The majority of the other 14 cuts are soft pop-psych and pop. The album also includes a pre-Max Frost & The Troopers rendition of Shape Of Things To Come. The flip of a 1967 single Invisible Man has resurfaced on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 3 (CD).

The Third Rail comprised 17 year-old Joey Levine, Artie Resnick and his wife Kris, and apart a one-off gig the band was a studio entity. The Rev-Ola reissue comes with four bonus tracks and Dawn Eden's liners notes as a mid-price package.

The Resnicks, however, are probably best known for writing Good Lovin' for The Rascals and bubblegum hits such as Quick Joey Small for The Kasenetz Katz Singing Orchestral Circus and recordings for Ohio Express. (VJ/MW)

45: Lady Jane/Out Of Sight (Hillside no #) 1966

This quartet recorded their single at McKenzie Studios in Columbus, Ohio. It was released on the studio's custom Hillside label in November 1966 (Rite pressing #18033/4 for you dead wax spotters), immediately prior to the label's 1966 Promotion album (aka "Hillside 1966", on Rite #18036) - they do not feature on the album however.

Both songs are covers; Lady Jane is an okay version of the Stones ballad, with lead guitar playing the dulcimer part. It has some touches of reverb. Out Of Sight is a pretty good version of the James Brown hit, with a sound not unlike that of The Gestures. (DCe/MW)

There's also a flexi disc: You're Gonna Miss Me/Tried To Hide/Reverberation/Hurricane Fighter Plane (Red Krayola) (7" flexi-disc) (Radar S.F.I. 347) 1978. Singles Boxset (Acme ACMEBOX 5) 2007 is a strict limited edition of just 1,000 copies of their seven singles and The Spades' single in a 7" box set format.

The first band to describe themselves as 'psychedelic' the 13th Floor Elevators formed in the winter of 1965, playing their first gig at the Jade Room in Austin on 13th December, which secured a mention in Jim Langdon's column in the Austin Chronicle.

Sutherland, Walton and Thurman had all previously played in a Kerrville band - The Lingsmen, who became the 13th Floor Elevators when Max Rainey, their original vocalist, left and Roky Erickson, the lead guitarist of The Spades (another Austin act), was drafted in as a replacement. Their original line-up was completed by Tommy Hall, a local student, who played jug and along with his wife Clementine wrote much of the band's early material. It seems Clementine was responsible for their name too. Most American buildings have no thirteenth floor and the band was saying, if you want to reach the thirteenth floor and achieve a new level of consciousness, ride with them.

Their first single, released in the winter of 1965, was You're Gonna Miss Me, which Roky had written when he was still with The Spades. The Elevators' version was originally issued on the Contact label and a January 1966 article in the Austin Chronicle states that a local radio station refused to play the record (they claimed that the band and supporters were calling incessantly for it to be played).

The band also quickly established a strong 'live' reputation playing at venues like the New Orleans Club and the Jade Room in Austin and La Maison in Houston. Significantly they were the first band to advertise themselves as 'psychedelic', predating The Grateful Dead by about two weeks and first hand reports of these early gigs, indicate that they were an awesome live act. Indeed, there are even rumours of en masse "contact-highs" brought on by the fervant, pulsating rhythms and feverish foot-stomping by the crowd.

Texas was a highly conservative state in the late sixties and, not surprisingly, a band like The 13th Floor Elevators with their long hair and penchant for drugs (particularly acid) had a number of brushes with the law. They were eventually busted in early 1966 and all placed on probation. Tensions were increasing within the band, too, and these led to Benny Thurman's departure and his replacement by Ronnie Leatherman.

The band's career received new impetus when Lelan Rogers signed them to his new International Artists label. Rogers had just returned to Texas from L.A., where he'd been working for A & M Records. He reissued their debut single on his label (with a different recording of the flip side Tried To Hide) and it made No. 55 in the National Charts. Their first album, recorded in Dallas, followed shortly after. Taking a sort of Kinks or Stones styled R&B they added their own highly individual style on what was a classic vinyl offering. Prominent throughout was Tommy Hall's jug playing, which helped to give the group a unique and distinctive sound. The songs were also laced in psychedelic mysticism which was central to their music and the album is often regarded by "heads" as some of the finest psychedelic music to be committed to disc, being particularly notable for how it expands and stretches out under the influence of psychedelic drugs.

In particular, Roller Coaster oozed the feelings of a psychedelic trip and revelled in the new purpose to man's life that could result from the psychedelic experience. It's also claimed that the track is about (or inspired by) Alfred Korzybski, the father of semantics - who was one of Hall's main influences. Korzybski wrote "Science and Sanity An Introduction to General Semantics and Non-Aristotelian Systems" and one of his concepts was "unsanity" which is referred to in the songs lyrics, and in the liner notes to the Psychedelic Sounds... album. Other tracks such as Reverberation dealt with how a person who organised their knowledge in the right way could overcome problems of doubt (and avoid bum trips); Don't Fall Down dealt with the care that had to be taken to maintain this chemically-altered state; Splash 1, which was written by Clementine Hall and Roky and later covered by The Clique, describes the meeting of two minds which have undergone the psychedelic experience and You Don't Know explained the differences between persons of old and new states of mind. Perhaps the best track of all was Fire Engine, written by Tommy, Stacey and Roky, which began with an unusual siren introduction and superficially portrayed what it would be like to ride on a fire engine for fun rather than to fight an horrific fire - at a deeper level, the song is said to have a D.M.T. influence, with Roky twisting the words "the empty place" into "Let me take you to D.M.T. place on my fire engine"... DMT being the abbreviation for the psychedelic drug dimethyltryptamine.

Like so many bands in this era The 13th Floor Elevators headed for California in August of 1966 and stayed there in San Francisco for the remainder of the year. They played at the Avalon Ballroom four times and once at the Fillmore West. Their first album was released during their stay in California and this, plus the fact they gigged a lot at the Avalon Ballroom, led many people to believe them to be a San Francisco band. In fact, they actually put on an all-Texan show at the Avalon during their California stay with Big Brother and The Holding Company (Janis Joplin was from Austin, Texas and at one time nearly joined The 13th Floor Elevators) and the Sir Douglas Quintet. The band's time in California helped to forge important links between America's West Coast and the hitherto relatively isolated Texas psychedelic scene. The 13th Floor Elevators would return to California two more times in late 1967 and in 1968.

They returned to Texas late in 1966 and immediately ran into disagreements with their record company about what their next single should be. International Artists wanted to target I'm Gonna Love You Too at the Top 40 market, but Tommy, keen to uphold the band's quest as psychedelic leaders, held out for Reverberation and got his way with this and subsequent single releases. None of them ever made the National Charts again.

Early in 1967 another split developed in the band. This was partly about the use of drugs as police pressure on the band grew. All were heavily into acid except John Ike Walton - indeed, Roky was reputed to have taken it over 300 times. So when Walton and Ronnie Leatherman left the band because of management disagreements, Walton was already viewed by the band as an establishment figure. After the split Tommy, Roky and Stacey retreated to Kerrville, a small hill town in the countryside, where they spent the summer of 1967. They recruited two new members, Danny Thomas, a drummer, and Danny Galindo, a bass player and started work on their second album, Easter Everywhere, which entered the shops in the autumn of 1967. It contained their own interpretation of Bob Dylan's Its All Over Now, Baby Blue. She Lives, a Tommy/Roky composition was also issued as a single. Musically the album was more controlled and less frenzied than their first album but there are a lot of collectors who consider this to be their best album. It suffered from under-promotion and Lelan Roger's policy of under-publicising the band to create a mystique around them had by this stage become counter-productive. Sadly, too, the group was beginning to crumble with Roky becoming increasingly unreliable and frequently missing gigs. The record company tried unsuccessfully to put him into a 'rest' hospital, but late in 1968 he was busted again. To avoid being dumped in Huntsville (the Texas State Prison), he claimed to be a Martian and the authorities committed him to Rusk State Hospital for the criminally insane early in 1969. Stacey got busted again and was not so lucky - he ended up in Huntsville.

Taking advantage of the band's problems the record company issued their third album, which failed to capture the band at anything like its best. It was not a 'live' album at all - the tracks were studio outtakes, with faked applause added. It did, however, contain five songs not featured on their studio albums - Bo Diddley's Before You Accuse Me (the flip to their third single); Buddy Holly's I'm Gonna Love You Too; Soloman Burke's Everybody Needs Somebody To Love and two original compositions, You Gotta Take That Girl and You Can't Hurt Me Anymore.

When Tommy Hall headed for California the band, already minus Roky and Stacey, literally fell apart leaving behind them an incomplete album tentatively titled The Beauty And The Beast. It was released after their demise by the record company late in 1968. They changed its name to Bull Of The Woods. Its finest moments included Never Another, one of the best and most demented tracks ever recorded (the only one on the album written by their usual songwriting duo of Roky and Tommy) and May The Circle Remain Unbroken, a haunting Roky composition recorded immediately after Easter Everywhere which had also appeared on one of their later singles. Nearly all the remaining material was written by Stacey Sutherland often in conjunction with Tommy Hall. Stacey's songs are for the most part rather stark but Street Song and Rose And The Thorn both feature some fine guitar work.

Roky spent three years in Rusk State Hospital and it took a court case to get him out! In 1972 he attempted to reform the band with John Ike Walton using other musicians but it fell apart after two gigs. Benny Thurman later played for Plum Nelly, Dan Galindo was in Rubayyat and Duke Davis, who was also associated with the band was in Gritz. Roky Erickson has had a prolific, if low-profile solo career since the demise of the Elevators. It's clear that the mystique surrounding the band has led to continuing interest in his recordings.

ELEVATORS

THE 13th FLOOR ELEVATORS - The Original Sound Of... LP.

In recent years a plethora of the band's material has appeared. Fire In My Bones and Elevator Tracks both comprise alternate takes (mostly from their first album) and several live tracks of variable quality. I've Seen Your Face Before is a live recording with rather confusing liner notes dating from 1966 or 1967. It features She Lives and Levitation from their Easter Everywhere album, the rest of the material is from their first album. The Original Sound Of .. and Demos Everywhere both contain the same material despite their different titles, although the former contains track information that isn't present on the latter and has better sound quality. Side one contains alternate mixes of tracks from their first album; side two is thought to be an audience bootleg, although it claims to be a radio broadcast.

Charly's 3-CD box set The Psychedelic World Of.... includes all their International Artists output along with various bonus cuts, which have all been released previously. They include their bootlegged 1966 Avalon Ballroom concert, cuts from a 1967 Austin gig, early rarities including You're Gonna Miss Me in its original form by Roky's group The Spades and rare cuts first issued on eighties compilations like Fire In My Bones and Elevator Tracks.

Going Up - The Very Best Of is a 20-track compilation housed in a digipak compiled from their recordings for International Artists between 1966 and 1969. It also features the recently discovered nugget I Don't Ever Want To Come Down and a manic version of Van Morrison and Them's garage classic Gloria. His Eye Is On The Pyramid (2-CD) is a 32-track compilation drawing from their four albums. Out Of Order (Live At The Avalon Ballroom) captures them live at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco in September 1966. They deliver numbers later included on Psychedelic Sounds album along with covers of Buddy Holly, Chuck Berry and Beatles material. The sound quality mars the end result though.

Paradise Lost is a 48-track 2-CD set featuring seven previously unreleased tracks from the masters including tracks by The Spades' and early recordings by Roky Erickson; I Love The Blind Man, No Fuss, Peace (take 1) and Peace (take 2). The second CD features 14 tracks recorded live from the 'Sump'n'Else' show 1966 at the WFAA - TV station in Dallas and another four tracks recorded live at the New Orleans Club in Austin also in 1966. The package comes with a 12-page full colour booklet with great sleeve notes and photos. Reverberation (2-CD) contains their first album on disc one, while disc two is mainly made up of material from their Bull Of The Woods album. The Legendary Group At Their Best (4-CD box) puts all four of their 'official' albums in a wooden box set format. Up On The 13th Floor (CD) is a budget-priced 14-track compilation.

The definitive release for the band's fans is Sign Of The 3 Eyed Men (10-CD box set) which is limited to 3,000 copies. It includes The Psychedelic Sounds Of The Thirteenth Floor Elevators, Easter Everywhere and Bull Of The Woods albums (the first two in mono and stereo versions), as well as outtakes and alternate versions along with two 'lost' albums featuring previously unreleased material and rare and previously unreleased live recordings. One of these Headstone: The Contact Sessions was intended to be their debut album, predating *The Psychedelic Sounds Of?*by six months. The other is their 'lost' third album A Love That's Sound (aka Beauty and The Beast). Each album comes with a selection of backing tracks, outtakes, singles, demos, unreleased acetates, alternate mixes and rehearsal recordings. A Love That's Sound is a fascinating listen for fans of the band that mixes earlier versions of some of the songs that later appeared on Bull Of The Woods (good versions of Livin' On and Dr Doom and different takes of May The Circle Remain Unbroken and Never Another which has a harmony vocal section, slightly less manic vocals and a different ending as well as an acetate version of Livin' On and an earlier rehearsal version of Never Another). There are also two versions of It's You (which became With You on Bull Of The Woods). The rehearsal backing track version of It's You has a good guitar jam. The ones that didn't make it to Bull Of The Woods are Wait For My Love (with quite nice harmonies), Sweet Surprise (which is a decent guitar jam) and two versions of Moon Song (a decent instrumental). The package is completed by three previously unreleased live collections. Live! In California, Avalon Ballroom (from November 1966); 13th Floor Elevators Live: Death In Texas, which included their 1967 Houston Music Theatre show and their 1973 reunion gig in Austin; and Live! In Texas, which was compiled form radio broadcasts, TV appearances and other recordings from Austin, Dallas and Houston during 1966. The lavish box set is accompanied by a 72-page hardback book written by the band's biographer Paul Drummond, enhanced with posters, discographies and many rare and previously unseen photos and a selection of reproduction memorabilia.

After this the 15-track Psychedelic Circus compilation seems somewhat pointless.

Compilation appearances have included:- You're Gonna Miss Me on Lenny Kaye's Nuggets and Twenty-One KILT Goldens, Vol. 2 (LP); the single version of Tried To Hide on Mind Blowers, Vol. 1 (LP), Austin Landing, Vol. 1 (LP) and The International Artists Singles Collection (LP); live 1966 recordings of Levitation and Fire Engine on There Goes The Neighbourhood (LP); live '67 recordings of You're Gonna Miss Me and She Lives In A Time Of Her Own, without Roky on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection, Vol. 1 (3-CD set); a live track from a 1972 reunion Maxine on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP); a loose jam based around Levitation entitled Elevator Jam on Sixties Rebellion, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); the live version of The Word on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD); Roll Over Beethoven and Mercy Mercy on Acid Visions Vol. 11 (CD) (Spalax); Street Song on Reverberation 1V (CD) (although it's not listed as being on it!) and finally, Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP), first issued in 1980, contains an excerpt from Fire Engine, a radio ad for the Bull Of The Woods album, the previously unissued Wait For My Love and Roky and Clementine Hall performing previously unissued versions of Splash 1 and the Powell St. John composition Right Track Now.

Live versions of You're Gonna Miss Me, Fire Engine, You Really Got Me and Roll Over Beethoven from 25 March and of Tried To Hide, Gloria, Fire Engine, You're Gonna Miss Me, Mercy Mercy and Roller Coaster from 9 May 1966 can all be heard on Psychedelic Microdots 2 (CD). (VJ/CMk/TBt/SR/BM)

According to Gary Myers' 'Do You Hear That Beat' book, this was a one-off studio-only project by a bunch of Appleton, Wisconsin musicians. All Right And About Time is said to be a fine garage stomper. Smolinksi, aka Ricky Lee/Leigh, played in several other Fox Valley bands including Denny Noie & The In Crowd/4th Of Never.

Other 13th Hour bands around at that time include: a Marion, Louisiana quintet with no known releases - Larry Allen (bs), Richard Allen (keyb'ds), Billy Brantley (sax), Jim Paine (vcls), Mike Reidenheimer (drms); a Lawrenceville, Michigan band with a single Moody Man/Please Be True (Judge 400) at the end of 1968; and an unknown band from Kansas or Missouri. This Pensacola, Florida band evolved out of The Soul Seven. Their repertoire was often covers of hits of the day; their second release features an interesting cover of Buffalo Springfield backed by a great version of the Spencer Davis Group (SDG) classic and they turned to another SDG hit on the next release.

After a 40-year hiatus, the band reformed in 2009 with three original members to perform for the "Bands On The Beach" series of shows at Pensacola's Gulfside Pavilion. Their repertoire was described as "sticking to their roots, the band plays classic songs from the sixties, seventies, eighties, and even a few hits from the nineties". The reformed line-up is shown as Z above. Forrest Higgins may be the non-original member since he was in the Laymen, a rival Pensacola band, back in 1967. (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) THIRTY DAYS OUT (Reprise RS 6450) 1971
2(A) MIRACLE LICK (Reprise MS 2085) 1972

Thirty Days Out was formed New York City in 1971 by John Micaleff (pronouced "McCullough"), a folksinger from Michigan and Jack Malken, who had previously been with The Outcasts. After teaming up with Melnick and Lowe, they found a place to practice but had relocated to Greenfield, Massachusetts when their neighbours complained! They soon managed to get a recording contract with Reprise and their first album was released in the summer of '71. Produced by Larry Marks (previously in charge of Lee Michaels and Phil Ochs) their debut was recorded in New York and L.A. On offer are eight tracks penned by Micaleff and Malken, which mix competent guitars with early seventies style vocals. Influenced by Free on some tracks (Doing The Best That I Can and Survival, a rip-off of Clover's Shotgun). The most interesting element is probably the keyboard parts played by two ace sessionmen, Larry Knechtel and Jim Dickinson. The lyrics often have a Christian content and the overall result is rather undistinguished. In fact the album is perhaps mainly notable for a weird packaging idea, as it came wrapped in a poster of a steamliner. Once the shrink was opened, the hidden black and white sleeve with pictures of the group would appear.

Probably due to this poster, the sales were quite good and the group soon released a second album, recorded in Wallingford, Connecticut and remixed in London. This time Malken handled the production and Micaleff wrote most of their material. Their ambition of "blending electricity and acousticity into a fresh, tasteful and unified rock sound" turned into a total disaster, the lyrics being over-ambitious and the songs lacking melodies or "Miracle Licks" (despite its title).

Their albums will appeal mainly to fans of early seventies prog-rock, some tracks of their second effort being "graced" by the "Magic Mellotron" of Teddy Taylor and Bing McCoy.

Monte Melnick, their bass player later became The Ramones tour manager. At least one of their albums was engineered by Melnick's high school buddy Tom Erdelyi, later known as Tommy Ramone. (SR/DH)

From Jacksonville, Florida they previously recorded a single as The Tiffany System. Produced by Steve Alaimo, their album, which is of the 'progressive' genre, is a very minor collectable, though it has its moments; from the extended moody cover of Codine, the evocative but doomy dirge Cries Of Treason; the Byrdsy folk-rock of A Different Kind Of Head; and the psychy freakout of A Nickel's Worth Of Benny's Help. It's an album that has some rewards for the patient listener.

After the album, they teamed up with Gregg and Duane Allman, recording the tapes which were finally released as Gregg and Duane Allman by Steve Alaimo on his Bold label.

ALBUM: 1 HAIR (Crown 492) 1969 R1

This is one of the better exploito albums. Aside from versions of Hair, Age Of Aquarius and a psych original it contains instrumentals with lots of fuzz riffs. 45s: Why Can't I Dream/
Sun Arise (Prestige Productions PP66-151) 1966
Book A Trip/In (Capitol 2129) 1968

The Romans were formed in 1963 with members drawn from Ramsey and Shades Valley High Schools in Birmingham, Alabama. A couple of years later they evolved into This Side Up when core members Rosenthal, Seitel and Sherrill were joined by Friedman, Royal and Arkus. The latter pair departed around the time of their debut single in 1966, and Shilling was brought into the fold.

Why Can't I Dream is readily accessible again via Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). It's a yearning, dramatic pop-punker. Sun Arise has resurfaced on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). The following year they won a 'Battle Of The Bands', sponsored by WSGN radio and Capitol Records, thereby securing a single deal. Composed by the Buie-Cobb team, Book A Trip is not surprisingly heavily-produced bouncy mainstream pop; the flip is a soft'n'cosy orchestrated ballad (have to wonder if any of the band were allowed to play on these tracks?). Oh, and Buddie Buie became their manager into the bargain.

The band split not long after. Friedman formed The Wet Willie Band. Shilling was later in Cowboy then became an actor, appearing in commercials and the Matlock TV series. (MW/RM)

Thomas A. Edison Electric Band (PA)

The Name Of The Game (Cameo Parkway C-490) 1967

Despite the intriguing name and title, Methyl Ethyl is tame novelty pop. However, the flip is rather better snotty garage-pop wherein this Pennsylvania outfit let their guitarist step on the fuzz pedal and evoke a short screeching solo. The band was earlier known as The Chimps and released two uncredited cash-in/exploito albums Monkey Business (Wyncote W-9199), and Monkeys A-Go-Go (Wyncote SW-9203) with Monkees covers and some good garage noises/insane psychedelic freak-outs.

They later changed their name to Edison Electric Band, recording an album for Cotillion.

Turn Me Down/We'll Make It Good (PS) (Lyra 100) c1967

A decidedly odd October 1966 debut from a Monterey Park, California combo, Color Me Columbus is a heavily fuzzed thrash, which brings to mind Love's 7 And 7 Is. However, any menace is undermined by a vocalist with Mel Blanc pretensions, sounding like a demented Daffy Duck. Colour Me Columbuth is the same track with different vocals - a higher-pitched, camp style, often dubbed the "fag version"!

Compilation appearances have included: Color Me Columbus on The Psychedelic Experience (CD), World Of Acid (LP) and Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers 4 (CD); and Color Me Columbuth on A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). (MW)

2 CORRECTED SLOGANS (Music Language 1848) 1976

(1) reissued on CD (Drag City DC49CD) 2008. (2) reissued on vinyl (Recommended Records) in the U.K. in 1982.

Thompson was arguably the main creative force behind The Red Krayola who produced the weirdest music for International Artists in the late sixties. Upon their demise he worked with Saddlesore and recorded Corky's Debt To His Father which like Red Crayola is also a little strange. It was made with the help of friends including most members of Fun And Games. He eventually turned up to do sessions with the Art Of Language organisation in 1976. This resulted in demos which are compiled on Corrected Slogans, an album of simple songs, operatic vocals and complex lyrics.

In 1979 he reformed Red Krayola, with drummer Jesse Chamberlain, who he had earlier met in New York in the winter of 1974/75 and had gigged with intermittently since. Aided by Lora Logic and Pere Ubu they recorded Soldier Talk (Radar RAD 18) 1979, which united the garage music of the sixties with fragmented, modernistic arrangements and Kangaroo (Rough Trade) 1980, an album of avant-garde theatre music, which reunited Red Crayola and Art Of Language followed. He also played with Pere Ubu from 1980 onwards.

45s: α The Best Of It/Life Is A Dream (Philips 40492) 1967
Family Of Man/Lonely Mountain Again (Philips 40521) 1968

NB: α some copies came in an art sleeve which advertised the album.

This obscure Los Angeles trio had its roots in the folk movement but at times paid lip service to some of the psychedelic trappings of the era. Musically the album is hard to peg, though if you enjoy the sunshine pop characterized by Curt Boettcher and groups like Sagittarius, it's something you may want to check out. Tracks such as Wrong My Friend, Here Today and Life Is A Dream offered up a highly commercial mix of folk-rock and soft-psych. The combination of great harmonies (check out Pleasure Time), coupled with occasional psychedelic touches (nice backwards guitar on One Girl) and attractive orchestration (Prelude To A Postlude), were quite impressive. Hardly 1967's most original debut, but well worth hearing, particularly if you can find it relatively cheap. The first single was on the album which was produced by the famous L.A. sax player Steve Douglas and arranged by Perry Botkin Jr. All their songs were written by Bobby Ray and James Smith.

Bobby Ray may be the same guy who played bass on Donovan's May 1966 sessions in L.A., including Season Of The Witch, The Trip and two unreleased pieces: Super Lungs (different version) and Breezes of Patchulie. Drummer Terry Hand had previous played in a number of surf bands and released a couple of singles as a member of Everpresent Fullness.

In 1969 Bob Ray went solo with the Initiation Of A Mystic album.

Compilation appearances include: Life Is A Dream on Electric Food (LP); Lonely Mountain Again on High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP) and Soft Sound For Gentle People 2 (CD); Daydreaming on *Where The Action Is! From the Dallas/Fort Worth area of Texas, they started out playing a lot of instrumentals and I Want To Hold Your Hand and Cool are examples of such. Their finest moment, however, is Lookin' At You Behind The Glasses.

The band was started by cousins David and Jimmy Owens, with drummer Bob Dabbs. When another Fort Worth act, The Elite disbanded David and Jimmy asked two of its members, Eddie Deaton and Bob Barnes to join.

Bob Barnes recalls: - "Eddie and I were with the band for a little over a year, when Jimmy was drafted into the Army, paratrooper school as I recall. I found myself involved with the girlfriend of a happening DJ and things got crazy. I took off for New Orleans and played in a pick up band there in a place called "The Gunga Den". I had a room in a boarding house next door to a stripper with a cheetah! I think the band continued for a while longer, but I am not sure how or when they faded away."

Bob Barnes later went on to The Yellow Payges.

No problem with same-name outfits here! The band came together in Plainview, Long Island, New York in 1966 and got a contract playing Hullabaloo clubs on the East Coast. After recording a four-song demo at Ultrasonic in Hempstead, they landed a deal with Capitol. Tracks for a single were recorded in 1968 at New York City's Record Plant East but contractual disagreements scuppered any releases.

ALBUM: 1(A) THE THREE OF US (Artist Records) 1972 SC

Recorded in Cincinnati, Ohio Three Of Us is a rare private pressing which offers some good tracks with wah-wah or fuzz guitar, organ solos and echoed female vocals. The remaining tracks are unfortunately not as good but the album is interesting overall. It was curiously produced by Soupy Sales, the well-known comedian.

It could be the same Ron Leichman who later played in a seventies progressive rock band, Round About, also from Ohio. (SR)

This band was formed in Seattle, Washington when Blessing and Letterman recruited Wolfe from local band The Nomads in 1963. They attracted sufficient interest to get a one-off deal with Seafair-Bolo Records. Movin' On got a lot of local airplay and became a local hit. Then in 1965 Jim Valley's brother Steve joined the band on lead guitar and they signed to Jerry Dennon's Panorama label. Their two resulting singles attracted considerable airplay. Just when the future looked rosy, tragedy struck. The band's vehicle crashed en route to a performance in Richland, Washington. Blessing and Evans were killed, Valley was injured but recovered. Wolfe, Letterman and Valley reformed the band as The American Dream adding Mike Holiday (ex-Paul Revere and The Raiders) and songwriter Danny O'Keefe. After this short-lived venture Wolfe and Letterman formed The Time Machine.

A Hendrix-influenced heavy psychedelic trio from Philadelphia, they even managed a pretty decent cover of Red House on the album, which is now a minor collectable. The single is off the album (two of its worst tracks), the title cut is an instrumental. Its finest moments are the opening cut, White Lace & Strange (which became the title track of the CD of this name) and the finale, Open Up Your Eyes, which are both brimming with heavy psychedelic guitar work. CD: 1 2ND TIME AROUND (No Label) 2006

45: These Days Are Gone/Hey Little Girl (Libra SR-1047) 1967

Formed in 1960 by brothers Stan and Steve, with cousin Roger on drums, this outfit lasted several years. Their only legacy, until recently, was a single recorded in the fall of '66 and released the following January. Their home was Lenox in southwestern Iowa and they gigged all over Iowa and into Nebraska, Missouri and Illinois. Shortly after their single appeared the band was sundered by the draft and they thought that was it. However, since Hey Little Girl appeared on Straight From The Garage Vol. 2 (EP) and Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD), the single came to be so highly regarded that this eventually filtered through to band members. In 2006 the band reformed following their induction into the 'Hall Of Fame of the Iowa Rock'n'Roll Music Association' (http://www.iowarocknroll.com). IRRMA also sponsored a compilation CD, Garage Rock From The Heartland, which featured the band's rendition of 96 Tears.

The reformed band has a CD, 2nd Time Around - made up of all new recordings. Their original single is available again, 'reissued' in 2008 as part of the 'Garage Band Greats' series. (MW)

ALBUMS: 1(A) COLLECTOR'S ITEM
(Agency Recording Studios) 1972 R3
2(B) THUNDERDUK (Rockadelic RRLP 23) 1995

NB: (1) was a 12" metal acetate. (2) reissues seven of the eight tracks on the original acetate plus two previously unissued tracks from 1974.

This was a highly uncommercial Cleveland, Ohio rock group. Their recordings are rather hit and miss affairs. All nine cuts on the Rockadelic album are originals. The finer moments include the driving guitar on opener Why Don't You Love Me?, the fine jamming guitar work on Time And Again and, by contrast, the mellow slow-paced Something To Look At with its dominant percussion work.

The recordings on the Rockadelic album span the 1972-74 period when their desire to play original music and their on stage antics made them one of the top draws on the Cleveland club scene. Bob Turchek was later replaced on drums by ex-Catscradle drummer Rick Fischer. Most of the material on the Rockadelic album was played by the band on two Agency Studio live broadcasts carried by local station WNCR. (GG/VJ)

They were previously known as The Unsettled Society which came from Pennellville, New York; although the sleeve notes of Sixties Rebellion claim that they were from Pennsylvania. And I Need You is a slow progressive number that has resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 15: Apple-Glass Cyndrome (LP & CD). THUNDER MUGS - On The Spot LP.

This late sixties California act recorded an album's worth of material for producer Bill Holmes' All American label (Strawberry Alarm Clock, Birmingham Sunday, Crystal Circus, etc.) that went unreleased at the time. It's predominantly soft psychy rock-pop with occasional good guitar, a few effects and period charm. Stand-outs are the upfront Motion Tree and Lucky Lady. All songs were composed by Jack Lutz. The group split in 1969. (MW) opening cut, Head Embers, which has lots of good guitar work and the mildly psychedelic, At The Top Of The Stairs. There are a few awful tracks, but there are lots of ideas on this album and if you're into psychedelic guitar and keyboards this is one for you.

The band evolved out of The Good Idea. When that band had split in 1969, John Miesen landed a deal with Roulette on the basis of an unreleased The Good Idea track, 12:25, which was used for one side of the Thundertree album.

Bill Hallquist later recorded two solo albums. The first under the name Billy, Persephone (Orion S80-462-2823S) 1972, although he's more often referred to as Persephone Billy, due to a typographical error on the sleeve. On this he was helped out by, amongst others, Rick Lia Braaten (also ex-Thundertree). The album, which is pretty rare and sought-after, consists of pleasant, dreamy folk-rock and comes in a striking black and white cover. After a second, Travelin' (Mill City) 1975, Bill Hallquist did some session work including Kevin Odegaard's Silver Lining album. (Kevin, in turn played on one of the songs on Dylan's Blood On The Tracks). Bill: - "In 1976 Kevin and I played together in The K.O. Band. Our drummer later became a member of Prince and The Revolution (Bobby Z), and guitar player (Jeff Dayton) currently plays with Glen Campbell. After that I played with a folk trio Macavity with Tim Sparks (Rio Nido), followed by a bar band Cimarron. Later, I wrote/produced radio jingles before becoming Director of Marketing at K-Tel here in the U.S. I am still active musically as a songwriter and as a member of Perfectly Loud. The K.O. band did a reunion gig on 1st September 2000 at a club here in Minneapolis/St. Paul".

	Help, Murder, Police/ You Can Forget About That	(International Artists 115) 1967
	No More Rock And Roll/ Before I Die	(Rampart Street RSRS 0608) 1968

Originally known as The Druids when they formed in Houston, Texas in 1964, this band changed name to Thursdays Children during 1965. The first single was quite an accessible punk affair, whilst their second and third were more British-influenced.

After one final and disappointing rock and roll single, drugs and the draft had accounted for many of the band and they regrouped as The Pointing Hand Group. Charles Helpinstill also recorded a solo single, To Touch The Rainbow/Indian River (Akashie 1001) before forming The Helpinstill Factory Band. He later changed name to Ezra Charles.

The retrospective album includes material spanning their career from 1965-69 with singles, unissued and live material. It's the best source for their recorded output.

Compilation appearances include: You'll Never Be My Girl on Pebbles, Vol. 5 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 5 (CD), Acid Visions Vol. 2 (LP); You'll Never Be My Girl and Air Conditioned Man on Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-CD); Help Murder Police on Punk Classics, Vol. 4 (7") and Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP); You'll Never Be My Girl, Try Girl and Help, Murder, Police on Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD); live versions on The Night Before and Money on There Goes The Neighborhood, Vol. 1 (CD); A Part Of You (previously unreleased) on Epitaph For A Legend (2-LP); Try Girl and Air Conditioned Man on Houston Post - Nowsounds Groove-In (LP); Air Conditioned Man on Highs In The Mid Sixties, Vol. 12 (LP); Help Murder Police and You Can Forget About That on International Artists Singles Collection (LP); You'll Never Be My Girl, Air Conditioned Man, Try Girl, Help, Murder, Police (two versions) and the previously unreleased A Part Of You on Acid Visions Vol. 10 (CD) (Spalax); Dominoes on Gravel Vol. 1 (CD); and You'll Never Be My Girl, Dominoes, Help, Murder, Police (two versions), You Can Forget About That and No More Rock And Roll on Stoned Sixties (CD). Originally the Hitch Hikers from Kalamazoo, Michigan and with a pair of singles to their name, the band relocated to Ann Arbor after coming to the attention of A^2 Records' Jeep Holland. Though regarded as one of the area's more popular 'garage' acts their vinyl output was rather disappointing for garage collectors as it's pretty straight poppish fayre, as evidenced by their cover of Neil Diamond's Love To Love. Their cover of The Zombies' Time Of The Season is pretty decent however and Somehow is undoubtedly their finest moment - an intensely dramatic ballad with searing fuzz interludes. The band split in 1969; Cole was later in Lighthouse, Wilmot in SRC and Underwood joined Touchstone.

Compilation appearances have included: Love To Love on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP); Somehow, Very Last Day and Time Of The Season on Sixties Archive, Vol. 7 (CD); Somehow on Fuzz Flaykes & Shakes, Vol. 1 (LP & CD); and Love To Love, Somehow, an alternative and previously unreleased version of Very Last Day, Time Of The Season, and three previously unreleased songs; I Found A Love, I Found You, No Opportunity Necessary No.. and Window Song all appear on A-Square (Of Course) (CD). Tibbetts recorded these eastern-influenced prog-psych instrumental albums in his home. Collectors like them for his guitar wizardry.

He started working on his first album whilst attending Minnesota's Macalaster College as an art student using a four-track machine in the school's music centre. The story goes that he graduated before the project was complete, so he had to sneak into the school at night and on weekends in order to finish it. The album is full of energy and experiments with different styles and genres. Tracks like Sunrise, Gong and How Do You Like My Buddha? highlight his acoustic guitar playing. It was originally released independently, but the Cuneiform label acquired rights to the album and reissued it on vinyl.

On Yr Tibbetts is backed by a full band and provides some superb acoustic and electric guitar playing. Three Primates has a superb guitar solo for example. The album was marketed with two different cover designs. Both reflected the same theme, but one sported a daytime scene, and the other a nighttime version.

He has issued several further albums falling outside the time-span of this book. (VJ)

There's a mixed bag of tricks on this local Kansas release. Side one has a number of jazz-inflected rural-rock tracks with religious lyrics that recall Sons Of Champlin. Side two is more interesting with some hard blues-rock, some jazzy prog with flute reminiscent of early Jethro Tull, and some rural-rock recalling the Grateful Dead's early seventies albums. They recorded at Cavern Sound Studios, home of Pig Newton And The Wizards From Kansas, Stoned Circus, Bulbous Creation, etc. (VJ)

45:	Go Away From My Door/Trip With Me	(Sanfris 18) 1967

NB: some labels had the band name amended to "The Second Phase".

Three school pals from Woodside, New York formed this group and went through a succession of bass guitarists, often doing without. In late 1967 they recorded this single after answering an ad in a trade paper. No sooner had the single appeared than they found a steady bassist and changed their name to Stonehenge, but no subsequent recordings were released.

They were employed as backing band on Sanfris releases by The Delmars and by Tari Lane.

Trip With Me is not psychedelic, as the title might imply, but a sparse punker. Check it out on The Chosen Few Vol.1 (LP), The Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/MM/VJ)

45:	Bit By A Bug/Humpty Dumpty	(It 2302) 1965

Freddie Tieken was born Frederick Earl Tieken in 1935 during the Great Depression in a one room shack in the Mississippi river town of Meyer, Illinois. They later moved 20 miles away to Quincy, Illinois where his dad worked as a welder. His dad later worked on a farm and Tieken's first group Freddie's Four Starts was formed with a bunch of high school pals. He had learnt to play saxophone at an early age. He later became more influenced by the blues and formed a group called The Freddie Tieken Combo. Later he drove 40 miles to Keokuk, Iowa every Wednesday night to play in a band called The Mood Notes that his sister Jane had told him about and when they split up he asked their bassist Mark Millspaugh to join a new band he was putting together. That was Freddie Tieken and The Rockers and the year was 1955. The following year they had a single, Sittin' Here Cryin'/Uncle John (Hit 45-2002) written by Gipson and credited to Wild Child Gipson with Freddie Tieken and The Rockers. The single got national exposure and this resulted in lots of gigs but eventually they went their separate ways.

Vernie Robbins joined the reformed band in 1960, replacing Wild Child on vocals and keyboards. She had three kids during her stint with the band. Clete Webster filled in on drums when Ron Davis left to tour with Dick Clark's Caravan of Stars. Jim Vandement became the drummer the following year. It was also during that time that Forrest Moore replaced Mark Millspaugh on bass.

In 1963, Tieken met a high school student named Jack Inghram who eventually joined the band. This line-up recorded By Popular Demand. As well as recording their own discs Inghram and Tieken recorded and produced dozens of records by other bands on the It label that they formed. The Rockers' popularity continued to grow and their performances at T'N'T Raceways drew thousands of young fans who weren't old enough for the nightclub scene. At one of these gigs in 1965 Freddie Tieken and The Rockers recorded their second album, Live, which comprised teenbeat and soul covers. Ron Lepper joined the group about that time and played guitar on the album. Diane and Donna Rogan sang backup vocals for the album and eventually replaced Vernie Robbins in the band.

Later band members included Tieken's younger brother Dennis on drums, Ron Shumake on bass (he later left the band when he joined the army) but later returned to play Dennis Tieken's band a few years later. In the seventies, Ron moved to California and subsequently played with many famous artists including Willie Nelson, Roger Miller and Canned Heat. Rick Ruggerio, a Culver Stockon College student from New York, later joined the Rockers on guitar. Other band members included Rod Hibbert (of Rod & The Satellites) on guitar, Gary Hendron on bass and Curt Wacholz on keyboards. Les Fonza played baritone sax and Ron Schaller played trumpet during the last years of The Rockers. The members mentioned in this paragraph are not included in the personnel listing above.

In the late sixties Freddie Tieken changed the band's name to Freddie Tieken's American Music Band and re-modeled it to an eight-piece with a very tight horn section. They covered songs by groups such as Blood, Sweat & Tears and Electric Flag, but also experimented with a lot with original material that combined traditional soul and R&B.

The Tieken brothers were later in Ilmo Smokehouse. (VJ)

Although recorded and released in Decatur, Georgia this may be a rogue entry. Some promo copies of this single went out in April 1971 with a cover letter, which appears to say (from a very poor scan) that this duo met in 1969 and played around Europe before being discovered playing in the Atlanta area. ... so they may not have been American after all, despite the appearance of The Way on Psychedelic States: Georgia (CD). This light'n'fresh psych-pop band from Lakewood, Ohio played melodious tunes similar in style to bands like Yellow Balloon or Millennium, but with the occasional trippy guitar moments and quite an Anglophile sound. Their album was presented in a classic period psych sleeve and is now a collectable.

This Jacksonville, Florida trio was originally known as The Bitter Ind and recorded their debut single at Ardent Studios in Memphis in 1967; you can hear Hands Are Only To See on Thank You Friends: The Ardent Story (2CD).

They changed their name to Tiffany System for their next release. Let's Get Together is the Dino Valenti song, cheekily credited to the band members. The flip is another harmonious Byrdsy folk-rocker written by R. J. Benninghoff, who arranged both sides and was involved with label-mates The Berkeley Kites before going solo as Benninghoff and releasing some classical-themed albums in the early seventies.

The band changed their name yet again to The 31st Of February. All three members went on to more successful outfits: Butch Trucks to the Allman Brothers Band, Dave Brown to Santana, and Scott Boyer to Cowboy.

Both sides of the Minaret single appear on Byrds Won't Fly Today (LP); Wayward One is on The Electric Coffee House (CD); and Let's Get Together is on The Electric Coffee House Volume 2 (CD). (MW)

From Olean, New York The Tigermen formed in 1964 and lasted until August 1966 when college and the draft led to the band's demise. They played around the southern tier of New York, and north-western Pennsylvania, with regular spots at Cuba Lake Pavilion. The Tigermen mostly appeared at teen dances, roller domes and high school proms.

Both singles were recorded at a Buffalo studio in October 1965 and were produced by Art Detrick (later the brains behind Free Design). Close That Door is a pretty typical garage punker. The flip to the second single Runaway is a cover of the Del Shannon hit.

Compilation appearances have included: Tiger Girl on Scum Of The Earth (2-CD), Scum Of The Earth, Vol. 1 (LP) and Follow That Munster, Vol. 2 (LP); and Close That Door on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/MW/JFI)

45: We're On The Move/Rick-O-Shay (Sara 6641) 1966

According to Tim Warren's sleeve-notes for Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP), this quartet was formed at the University of Wisconsin, in Madison, in the fall of 1965. After about six months they headed to James Kirchstein's Cuca Studios in Sauk City and laid down two originals for their single. The band lasted through the rest of the school year but was history by fall 1966. Bass player Bill Scherek (who wrote the single) then put together The Talismen and cut a cool version of Glitter and Gold on Rampro. He stayed in the music business through the seventies and eighties and was involved with many national artists. In 1995, Bill relocated to Australia.

NB: (1) also released in the U.K. (Elektra K 42093) 1971.

This California group deployed female/male vocals; heavily influenced by The Band on most of their material (their 10 songs were written by Berry and Clinton). Their album was produced by Don Gallucci (from Don and The Goodtimes and Touch) and contains some good tracks with interesting lyrics (e.g. Canada about a man leaving Illinois to avoid the draft, Remember and the title track about pollution and corruption, and Witch Hunt with people "all up in the hills, taking little pills"). George Clinton (not the Funkadelic leader) was a renowned session musician and also worked with Griffin. Wayne Berry became a songwriter (notably for Tom Rush) and released a decent country-rock album in 1974. In 1976 Judy Elliott would work with Hoyt Axton. (SR)

ALBUM:	1(A)	BEFORE THERE WAS...TIME	(Shadoks Music 054) 2004

NB: (1) is a numbered limited edition of 350 with two insert sheets.

Time was formed in 1967 by McFaul, Newton and "a hippie called Jim" at the University of Illinois in Urbana. By the following year, Jim had departed and the band had relocated to Buffalo, New York where they honed their act. In January 1968 they travelled to Bay Sound Studios in Toronto, where they recorded the 11 tracks unearthed on the Shadoks album.

This set captures their tentative explorations of psychy soft-rock with proto-prog tendencies. Lute and harpsichord add a baroque flavour to several cuts and the dulcimer-infused finale, Elin Experience, could be compared to a mellowed-out Kaleidoscope.

Their story is partially recounted by Lynn David Newton on the inserts, wherein he alludes to a fuller history of the band in the notes of another release of demos, Dog Days. Time would be rechristened Think Dog and presumably the other retrospective covers that period. (MW)

45s:	Make It Alright/Take Me Along	(Liberty 56020) 1968
	What Would Life Be Without It/ Tripping Into Sunshine	(Liberty 56060) 1968

A competent quasi-psychedelic band from the Los Angeles area, Time evolved out of Hardtimes which had included Byrom and Richardson. The opening track to their debut album, Tripping Into Sunshine, starts with a typical psychedelic introduction, although the remainder of side one is comprised of rather mundane rock material. However, the standard improves on side two, particularly with I Really Love You and the closing track Take Me Along. Three of their single tracks are taken from this album.

The two opening tracks on their second album released as LBS 83232 in the UK, were featured on the Gutbucket sampler helping to give the band international exposure, which they failed to exploit. Their blues influence is evident on tracks like Lazy Day Blues, while See Me As I Am, Trust In Men Everywhere and Flowers are examples of their attempts to get to grips with the predominant psychedelic influences of the time. The group made considerable use of phasing techniques; their second album was the better of the two. What Would Life Be Without It, a non-album cut, is a catchy pop-rock ditty with some tasty guitar.

45:	All Or Nothing/Take It Slow And Easy	(New Sound 1) 1967

This band was formed in Seattle, Washington by Wolfe and Letterman upon the demise of their previous band American Dream. Their sole single, which was a hit in the U.K. for The Small Faces, was a pretty strong, if straight forward, version of the song. Sadly, the band fell apart after appearing regularly at The Embers Club.

Mike Allan: - "A group of wealthy gentlemen heard us play at a debutante ball and thought it would be fun to get into making records. Take It Slow And Easy had a jug band flavour complete with kazoo solo. It was my first time in the studio and it was very exciting. In September 1994, The Time Machine's original line-up got together in Seattle to play for Milo Johnstone. He had just written a limited edition book called 'The Magic Decade', about Seattle music from 1960 to 1970. Milo was also responsible for the first concert with a Light Show in Seattle."

Paul Gillingham is now an attorney in Seattle and still plays with a bluegrass group, whilst Mike Allan went on to The Magic Fern. (VJ/MW/DR/TWg/MAn)

The Time Machine was formed in 1965 in Sacramento, California. Willie Kellogg, who had recently left Joel Scott Hill's band, had agreed to drive The Misfits to a gig in the area which by coincidence was attended by ex-Wailers, ex-Rooks guitarist Rich Dangel. The Rooks had played a West Coast circuit that stretched from Seattle to San Diego and therefore the two knew each other. Dangel asked Kellogg to join his group.

The new band rehearsed in nearby Roseville and soon made their way into a local studio to cut a couple of tracks for a single. Moments into the session, Dangel stepped on his fuzz pedal and the engineer stormed into the room. "What in the hell are you tryin' to do? BLOW UP my equipment?!" The band packed up and left!

Following a residency at a club in Sparks, Nevada (they took a night off to check out The Charlatans in nearby Virginia City), The Time Machine moved to Seattle where they rented a house. They got another residency, this time at The BFD Hall, alternating sets with The Page Boys. They were playing mostly covers of Yardbirds, Stones, Butterfield Blues Band, Beatles and Howlin' Wolf but with a very high degree of musicianship, and their shows were well-attended, mostly by awestruck local musicians! Inspired by the release of Norwegian Wood on The Beatles' Rubber Soul album, Rich Dangel hunted up a sitar and played it live on stage during 1966. "That thing sounded great, but man - what a pain in the ass it was to lug around!" remembers Kellogg.

When their residency concluded and another wasn't immediately forthcoming, Kellogg accepted Gary Puckett's offer of $300/week to drum for The Outcasts back in San Diego and The Time Machine evaporated.

Doubleday went to The Electric Flag, composing music for The Trip movie soundtrack, then on to Buddy Miles' band and Mike Bloomfield's. Dangel and Johnson assembled a blues group that eventually became The Floating Bridge. Kraus joined the Merchant Marines in the early seventies and died of a bleeding ulcer while at sea and Johnson died in the early eighties.

While all that remains now of the original Time Machine is a photograph taken in 1965 at an Air Show in Sacramento, they played a role in ushering in the psychedelic movement in the Northwest, and apparently in tribute, the band immediately above this entry adopted their moniker when they split. ALBUM: 1(A) STRANGE BUT TRUE (Pear LX 502/3) 1972 R4

NB: 300 copies of (1) are thought to have been pressed originally. (1) reissue on vinyl (w/insert) (Rockadelic RFRLP-001) 2001, with non-LP 45 'B' side Maybe I'm High added. 300 copies were pressed.

45s: α A Woman/Maybe I'm High (Pear 500/1) 1972
β Jamaica/
I've Got To Find Out Your Name (Big Willie 466) 1978

NB: α 'B' side is non-LP. β shown as by Timmothy Ward.

This ultra-rare Bay City, Michigan home-made folk-rock album was recorded by Tim Ward, the former leader of Blues Company. Two-thirds of the album is dark folk with Tim on vocals and acoustic guitar, but two tracks are electric with a full band. The Rockadelic reissue is recommended and comes with an insert with group history. (CF/SR/MW)

Bands of this ilk are often touted as 'psychedelic' by dealers presumably to boost collectors' interest and asking prices. Pleasant flowery folk-rock-pop with occasional sound effects it may be, mind-expanding it isn't. Just a slightly hipper version of the Fifth Dimension in many cases and (I) include the likes of Forum, Split Level and Yankee Dollar here too. If you like trendy but slightly fabricated MOR sixties pop, then you'll enjoy this.

From New York, they included Elliot Randall, who went on to be a highly-rated session man.

You'll also find Sunday Kind Of Feeling on Soft Sounds Present He & She (CD). (MW)

NB: Promo copies exist.

The band was formed in 1969 when Cole, Logan, and Radford broke away from their former band, a sextet called Marshmellow Steamshovel.

Produced by Rick Derringer, this Orlando, Florida-based band issued an excellent heavy blues-rock album in a style similar to Third Power with lots of distortion, wah-wah pedals etc. Radford was a member of White Trash and would later play with Johnny and Edgar Winter.

An "oldies lounge band" from Detroit, Michigan Tino and The Revlons did occasionally cross into garage-beat territory as on I'm Coming Home (hear it on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD)) which is the flip to an excellent party swinger. NB: α Promo only 45 sent to radio stations featuring four different spots advertising the God Bless Tiny Tim album. β Why is a duet with Miss Vicki. χ also DJ copy with regular True Records labels.

Born Herbert Khaury on 12th April 1930 in New York City 'Tiny Tim' was a novelty singer and ukulele player who associated himself with the late sixties hippie movement. Before he became famous he was a well known eccentric around Greenwich Village and 'Tiny Tim' was one of several pseudonyms he used. He achieved some success with his falsetto renditions of his favourite twenties tunes, none more so than with Tip-Toe Thru' The Tulips With Me, (which had originally stayed at No. 1 for 10 weeks when originally issued by Nick Lucas back in 1929). His first album also made No. 7 in the U.S. Album Charts and he was back in the public eye again in 1969 when he married 'Miss Vicki' on the Tonight Show (they later divorced in 1977). His 1971 single Why was a duet with her. This was recorded on his own Vic Tim label that he started after leaving Reprise Records in 1971. In 1973 he set up another label, Toilet.

Many of us would put down his music but as a 'character' of the era he deserves a mention.

Tiny Tim died of a heart attack in November 1996.

Two of his tracks appeared on the EP accompanying 'Ptolemaic Terrascope' issue 18, Devil May Care and a live 1968 version of Tiptoe Thru' The Tulips. (VJ)

NB: α shown as by 'Dale Allen and the Rebel Rousers'.

From Duluth, Minnesota and initially known as of (Dale Allen &) The Rebel Rousers, they became The Titans in 1963 and would see out the sixties with a few personnel changes.

Predominantly a rock'n'roll, instrumental and surf-oriented band rather than post-Invasion garage, plenty of their efforts have been compiled of late to check out: The Noplace Special on Soma Records Story, Vol. 1 (LP); Summer Place on Soma Records Story, Vol. 2 (LP); Reveille Rock and Tchaikovsky Rides Again on Soma Records Story, Vol. 3 (LP); Reveille Rock on Wail On The Beach! (LP); an unreleased 1965 track Skokiaan on Free Flight (Unreleased Dove Recording Studio Cuts 1964-'69) (2-LP); and To Covet The Turf on The Best Of Metrobeat! Vol. 1 (LP).

The Fun Seekers single is bouncy beat-pop with a sunny disposition backed by a weepy Paul Anka teen-ballad.

CD: 1(A) MOD PSYCH POWER POP FROM CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA (Arf! Arf! AA 052) 1995

This Harrisburg, Pennsylvania band featured a very young Erik Lindgren (Mr. Arf Arf). The CD above consists of covers of songs by Chocolate Watch Band, Left Banke, Choir, Moving Sidewalks, Balloon Farm and their own mod infected material which was recorded between 1974 and 1976.

In addition to the band's core personnel, some tracks on the CD also feature Simon Clement (gtr), Robin Cole (vcls), George Mahar (gtr), Mindy McGeary (flute), Bart Roberts (bs, vcls, synth) and Kirk Wynn (ld vcls).

Confusingly that there was an earlier TNT from Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania that started out in the early sixties as Eddie Day & The Starfires, and released a single on Laurie in 1966 as The Star Fires. By 1967 they were known as Eddie Day & TNT and put out some singles in the late sixties as Eddie Day & The Nitetimers/Night Timers and Trials'n'Tribulations.

ALBUM: 1(A) TOAD HALL (Liberty LST-7580) 1968

The Toad Hall album is typical but mediocre pop with the occasional track that catches the ear. There's some reasonable fuzz guitar work on Elegy On A Brick Wall and some Byrds-influenced guitar playing on Storybook Love. Some of the pop, notably On The Beach and A Thousand Years is quite melodic, but the rest is eminently dispensable including an awful cover version of Bobby Hebb's Sunny. Tommy Marcus wrote most of the material but not surprisingly it's yet to capture the interest of many collectors.

The band seems to have gotten their initial break after being booked as house band for New York's Cafe Wha?. (VJ/SB)

Babe, While The Wind Blows Goodbye (Decca 31847) 1965

An outfit from San Mateo, California giving the Gary Usher treatment of Byrdsy folk-punk on Leaving - quite excellent but sounds like you've heard it somewhere else and is not surprisingly rather like the L.A. Teens. The flip has a more Dylanesque quality. This may not be their only waxing - another Toads share a single on an L.A. label with The Golden Boys - Backaruda/Modernistic (Brent 7050) 1966.

Leaving It All Behind has now appeared on, and lends its name to, a moody folk-punker compilation (Leaving It All Behind (LP)) on Misty Lane. (MW)

45: Krista/Stop And Say You're Sorry (Decca 32408) 1968

From Great Neck, New York originally, this act evolved out of London and The Bridges and The Savages.

They cut a few songs written by 'Bridges members Johnny Miller and Richard Weintraub (who also sang backing vocals on some tracks, though he was never a full time member), which were produced by Eddie Simon (Paul Simon's brother).

Jon Sholle went on to become a bluegrass performer of some note with records such as Catfish For Supper and Out Of The Frying Pan. He also played with acts like Melissa Manchester and Meatloaf, performed with Bette Midler in the movie "The Rose" and is still doing his own thing, a combo of bluegrass and jazz, regularly in New York City. TOGETHER - Self Titled LP.

ALBUM: 1(A) TOGETHER (Ransom Recording 1) 1969 R2

NB: (1) issued in white cover with "Together" rubber-stamped on the front and with a booklet insert. A later printed cover edition also exists.

This New Jersey/New York area band recorded their album in a church. The booklet insert seems to suggest that the album itself is called "Together" and was the product of an informal group of friends that was not a performing band, so that may not be their proper name. Mostly acoustic material is on offer, with the highlight being Harris' The Blind Prophet, an up-tempo folk raver, and Isle Of Islay which features Leslie Robinson's vocals and sounds like an outtake by the UK group Trees. The album includes covers of Spoonful, Summertime, Train Time, and of particular interest, a version of All Along The Watchtower which opens side one. The line-up is reputed to contain former members of The Hermon Knights. (CF/VJ)

45: Now/Ask Me No Questions (Scorpio 403) 1965

This mid-sixties Merced, California-based outfit managed just one single. Now is a soft harmony minor mooder reminiscent of The Zombies; the flip is a thumping beat ballad. Both tracks were composed by 'Geil' and, while more pop than garage, are decent nonetheless.

Two unreleased tracks, Hole In The Wall and Time, also appear on The Scorpio Records Story (CD).

There's another Tokays single, supposedly by a different band from nearby Stockton: Lost And Alone/Out Of Hand (To-Kay 273) 196? (VJ/MW/AP)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Oglio/BT Puppy) 2001. (1) reissued on CD (Rev-Ola CRREV37) 2004.

Some of you may know The Tokens for their version of The Lion Sleeps Tonight, but Intercourse is an experimental soft-psych album that utilises compressed drums, omnipresent tape saturation and the like and is worth investigation if you like Pet Sounds and albums of that genre. It seems that only a handful of copies were over offered for sale. (VJ)

Walkin' Man/Summertime Blues (Paula 242) 1966
Good Good Lovin'/Nothing In This World (Paula 253) 1966

Only the second single above has been heard to date but it justifies an entry. The band origins are unknown although Paula/Jewel/Ronn records were based in Shreveport, Louisiana. Walkin' Man is catchy pop-beat with raucous vocals. Summertime Blues is converted to a mid-sixties garage-rocker with great vocals, fuzzed guitar and a smokin' break - definitely one of the best versions.

You can also hear Summertime Blues and Good Good Lovin' on Born On The Bayou (LP). (MW)

45: I Want You/You'll Regret It (Grave 1001) 1966

Originally out of Greenville, South Carolina they cut a pounding punk number I Want You for Grave Records in September 1966. Well worth a spin, you'll also find it on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP). In the liner notes Bill Nadolny reveals that: they were really tough rock'n'rollers with a good live act centred around a real tombstone they'd ripped off and used to set up on stage. When their leader, a very able vocalist/lead guitarist, was drafted in 1967 they re-grouped and entered the 'National Battle Of The Bands' up in Braintree, Massachusetts. The double/triple album-set of that event, Battle Of The Bands, captures them covering The Doors' Light My Fire.

Stanley Ward of The Bojax played with the band at one time. (VJ/BN)

45: Times Will Be Hard/Mary Jane (Capitol 5997) 1967

Times Will Be Hard is frantic Monkees-like pop, except for the strong fuzzy guitar break. Mary Jane is bouncey pop with a Zorba The Greek flavour; it IS about a girl and the briefest fuzz outburst on this sounds even more out of place.

The single was produced by Alexis De Azevedo, best known in these quarters for his services to The Human Beinz. Perhaps this band was from Ohio too? (MW)

They would later be known as Creedence Clearwater Revival. (SR)

45: Diggin' Out/Right Size (Fantasy 573) 1963

This band was part of San Francisco's music scene prior to the San Francisco-based rock revolution and the hippie movement. Theirs was the first rock single to appear on the Fantasy label. Diggin' Out, is a pretty good instrumental rocker, but it really predates the era of this book. 45: Keep On Truckin'/Jazz On The Rag (Hemisphere 101) 1972

Paul Rabbitt and Bob Collins formed this band at the University of Wisconsin, Menomonie in 1967. Their album was recorded at Scott Sound Studios in Eau Claire, Wisconsin in 1969. It blends both hard-edged rock with gentler ballads. Their music was characterised by guitar, organ and screaming vocals, displayed on tracks like Get Your Shit Together, Slap Her Down Again Paw and Homely Man Blues. The album includes their unique interpretation of Morning Dew.

TONGUE - Keep On Truckin' LP.

In 1972, they relocated to Wisconsin where Larson and Rabbitt were joined by Clark and Mueller. They recorded a lot more material but it remains in the can.

Mickey went on to front his Mickey Larson Band who released an album in 1982. Rick became bassist for the Wisconsin-based Boilerhouse Blues Band in the late nineties. Paul was working as a guitarist and praise leader at the Pacific Christian Center in Manhattan Beach, California. Dick became a photographer and Bob Collins was last reported to be a director of packaging design for Gillette. (VJ/SR/RM)

TONTO AND THE RENEGADES

TONTO AND THE RENEGADES.

This garage teen combo operated out of Lansing, Michigan and played frequently at the Sceen Club there, which issued their singles. The five-piece had teamed up with local producer Dick Wagner (Bossmen, Frost) to record the first single which is light'n'poppy teenbeat. It also features some guitar overdubs by Wagner. Little Boy Blue, from their second, is a fine example of the garage genre, written by lead guitarist Terry Slocum.

The band first jammed together at a Grand Ledge high school talent contest in 1963, with the core of the band being augmented on keyboards by Jeff Keast ('65-'67) and then Dave Pung.

When Tom Kirby was drafted in August 1969, the band subsequently split. Terry now lives in Memphis, Tennessee and is still very much alive and rockin'. After the band split, he too joined the army, got to jam with Dave Mason and has played in several blues bands since.

The retrospective EP offers up both singles and adds some cool photos, an overview by Mike Dugo, and an interview with drummer Thomas Kirby on the insert, to complete a neat package.

Little Boy Blue can also be found on Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD), Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD); The Easy Way Out is compiled on Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday 1 (CD); and Anytime You Want Some Lovin', The Easy Way Out, I Knew This Thing Would Happen and Little Boy Blue all figure on Scream Loud!!! The Fenton Story (2-CD). (VJ/MW/TSm/TK)

This Mansfield, Ohio combo's album, which leans more towards heavy rock than psychedelia, is an ultra-rarity likely to appeal more to 'progressive' rock fans. Like many albums of this genre it primarily utilises guitars and keyboards. All the cuts are self-penned. Middle Class America is a social commentary song that derides middle class values: 'Middle Class America, you don't know how to live; Middle Class America, you don't have much to give'. Messed Up continues the social commentary theme and What's In Store has a catchy riff. Sweet Memories is a mellow number and the finale Lies is much more abrasive. Don't mortgage your home for an original but seek out one of the reissues is heavy prog-rock is your bag.

One track, the evocative opener Song For A Sinner, has reappeared on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 6 (CD). (VJ)

	Jungle Song/Topsy Turby	(Liberty Bell 45-101) 196?
	Hey Tiger/Snake Woman	(Liberty Bell 45-102) 1965

Starting out as a jazz-pop combo The Charles Johnston Quartet, this group of Arizona State University. students was approached by entrepreneur Charles H. Anderson. He suggested they adopt Sam The Sham's Middle-Eastern turban-and-robe couture as an alternative to the prevalent mop-top and Beatle-boot fashion. Renamed The Topsy Turbys they released two cool swingin' garagy-beat singles, and a very rare EP whose details are lost in time.

In 2001, Lee Joseph's Bacchus Archives released an EP coupling their two singles and telling their story. It reports that Noble teaches in Mesa, Arizona, Smith teaches guitar in Mesa, Forman is a studio musician in L.A., and Johnston is President/CEO of Select Artists Associates who book and promote major shows across the US.

Compilation appearances include: Hey Tiger on Tougher Than Stains (LP) and Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP); and Topsy Turby on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 5 (LP & CD). (MW/DN)

	Sounds Of Summer/Motate	(Royal R 003 6/R 001 2) 1967

This fascinating outfit, from L.A., put out one album that encompasses a variety of influences and styles from frat-rock, British Invasion-style beat, folk-rock, Everly Bros style harmonies to garage fuzz-rockers. Highlights of this eclectic platter for garage fans are: the frat-fuzzer Black Coffee; garage punkers Blue Blooded Lady and 'Cause You Don't Love Me (the same songs as by The Odds And Ends on Boulders, Vol. 2 and Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 3); a good cover of The Beau Brummels' Still In Love With You Baby, and the cool beat-ballad She's Gone with its Jaggeresque intonations. She's Gone has been compiled on Fuzz Flakes & Shakes Vol. 7 (LP & CD).

Note for completists: The Merry-Go-Round Song on the fourth single above is just an alternate title for the album cut Sounds Of Summer, which was also issued on single under the Sounds Of Summer title. Other single tracks are to be found on the album but it's unknown how Didn't It Rain, Pts. 1 & 2 differ from the album track. (MW/JG)

	She's Gone/ Rainy Day Fairy Tales (+ pic insert)	(Phalanx 1014/1015) 1966

The short-lived Phalanx label from Portage, Michigan has become a minor treasure trove for obscure and sometimes superb garage punkers and ballads by the Ethics, Pastels, Troyes, Blues Inc., Olivers and Rainmakers to name a few. This outfit's debut Alone is a soppy ballad with echoes of Unchained Melody and featuring soft sax solos. Its flip is much better - subdued garage-beat borrowing heavily from Baby Let Me Take You Home.

The follow-up She's Gone, found on When The Time Run Out (LP & CD), kicks off with an encouraging burst of fuzz but thereafter is pretty average garage fayre.

Another Toronados single from 1966 - Hey Baby/Next Stop Kansas City (Date 1519) isn't confirmed (or thought to be) the same band. It comprises a pair of confident upbeat poppers, featuring a Four Seasons style rendition of Bruce Channel's Hey Baby. (MW)

	Harmonica Man From London Town/ Our Teenage Love	(Original Sound 66) 1967
	Heart Of Love/ Somethin' Else Kind Of Woman	(Bellman 711) 1967

This outfit started out as a surf band in San Bernardino, California in the early sixties. They recorded numerous singles on Bill Bellman's local labels (Rock-It and Bellman). Two of the above were big 'local' hits and were leased to larger labels (Colpix and Original Sound). Stolen Moments got to No. 26 on KFXM in early 1965 and Harmonica Man made the charts again in 1967. They later recorded a local rural-rock album as Travelers Aid.

Other Torquays were around to confuse the collector: from Memphis (one single on ARA) and Detroit (a single on the Hideout subsidiary Punch and another on Gypsy).

Freddie Cisueros was previously with the Overlanders and the Nightmares. He and Jim Jones would go on to form Jim Jones and The Chauntneys.

Compilation appearances have included: Somethin' Else Kind Of Woman on Sick And Tired (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD); Harmonica Man on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 4 (CD); and Stolen Moments on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP) and Garage Beat '66 4 (CD). 	I've Been Hurt/Bumpin'	(Lemco 1007) 1966

Released on a Lexington, Kentucky's label, this rare album captured The Torqués (with a French "accent grave" above the E, hence it is pronounced Tor-kays) performing two side-long live sets on 31st December 1966. Fronted by the resounding tones of Copeland, their all-cover repertoire tackled beat, dance, soul, and garage with some noteworthy moments.

TOTTY - Self Titled LP.

The first side is predominantly in a soul-pop-dance groove, including a couple of Tams covers, a brassy version of Los Bravos' Black Is Black, and winding up with Lou Rawls' soulful ballad Love Is A Hurtin' Thing.

The second side/set is better by far, from our viewpoint. A solid version of Tom Jones' It's Not Unusual leaps into a kickin', fuzzy version of the Monkees' Steppin' Stone. The Raiders' Hungry features more fuzz, although Copeland sounds more like a garagy Elvis than Mark Lindsay, before the brassy soul-strut of James Brown's Out Of Sight. The finale is a five minute version of the Young Rascals' Come On Up; it begins in the usual soul-garage mode but then The Torqués let their hair down and ratchet it up to a freak-out climax with fuzz soloing, random keyboard pulses and reverbed vocals. This is their "own psychedelic expressions" alluded to in the sleeve notes and is worth the price of admission alone.

Their singles would appear to be mainly 'soul' and 'northern', given some of the rabid asking prices by specialist dealers, although It's Me Not You has turned up on Gravel Volume 5 (CD). (MW/VJ)

Totty was a heavy psych/hard-rock trio from Tulsa, Oklahoma. It comprised Byron and Dennis Totty supported by a number of different drummers. Only 50 copies of the demo album were allegedly pressed and the album came with a sticker, a set of promo photos and four inserts. It was then reissued later the same year in a colour cover. The album is full of fine riffy guitar but the vocals are drowned in the mix. It ends with a fine rendition of Somebody Help Me. 45s: Round Trip/Light My Fire (Cinema 6904) 1968
Day To Day Man/Stormy Monday Blues (Cinema 6906) 1968/9

Only 100 copies of this local St. Louis, Missouri band's album were pressed originally and the above two non-album singles were often given away free with it. We're talking an ultra-rarity of the highest order here. There are a couple of throwaway country tracks (Happy Face and Got To Keep Travelling On) and the finale, Gettin' Off, is marred by a tedious drum solo but the rest is for the most part mind-blowing psychedelia. The best of these are Catfish, with some bluesy psychedelic guitar work and two social commentary songs, Get A Gun and Let's Keep The Children On The Streets, a song about the riots of the sixties.

'Get a gun, our new generation must take lead
Get a gun, with a clenched fist we are crying to be free
When someone gets it in their heads to do away with freaks
Get your gun and show them that our game is not defeat
Get a gun, do yourself a favour, get a gun'
(from Get A Gun)

Ray Schulte had earlier played in Bob Kuban and The In Men in 1962, before helping to form The Guise and, with his brother Jerry, an act called The Sheratons. Tiring of the pop and R&B scene, Touch were formed in mid-67, to create a more powerful fusion of psychedelic blues and they quickly picked up support slots for acts such as Steppenwolf, Cream and Iron Butterfly, also playing at a free festival with Big Brother & The Holding Co. and Hour Glass in 1968.

Shortly after their album was recorded, Paulette headed west to join a commune and Ovid quit. A new line-up recorded two further singles, which feature some good fuzzy guitar work and in particular their version of Light My Fire, which is slower and fuzzier than The Doors', comes off well.

One final session in 1970, with Royal on electric harpsichord and lead vocals and David Surkamp (later of Pavlov's Dog) on rhythm guitar, resulted in three songs that have been included on the Gear Fab reissue. In particular The Magic Inside You is noteworthy for some fine lyrics, echoing the changing times. Incongruously, the band then landed the job as back-up band for Tony Orlando & Dawn, who were riding high on a wave of commercial success from hits such as Tie A Yellow Ribbon.

Today, Royal and Ray Schulte are still performing in the St. Louis area as The Essence.

45: Miss Teach/We Feel Free (Coliseum 2712) 1969

NB: both sides taken from the LP. Also issued in the UK (Deram DM 243) 1969.

All five members of this band had previously played in Don And The Goodtimes, a popular club band from Portland, Oregon. Prior to that Gallucci, who later became a staff producer for Elektra, was with The Kingsmen, Newman with The Liberty Party and both John Bordonaro and Hauser with Connecticut's 'Gretschmen'.

Their album was a really exploratory effort with touches of psychedelia (Down At Circes Place), jazz, avant-garde and progressive rock. The vocals sound rather like Tim Buckley in his Starsailor period - amazing! It was produced by Gene Shiveley, who also produced the Elyse Weinberg album for which Hauser and Bordonaro also provided the rhythm section and on which Gallucci and Joey Newman also appeared.

Renaissance also put out a sampler CD - Buried Treasures - containing three further Touch tracks: a 1968 demo of The Spiritual Death Of Howard Greer, We Finally Met Today from an unreleased single, and The Second Coming Of Suzanne a previously unreleased track from 1973.

Hawks and Hauser were later in Stepson who made an album in 1974 along with Newman, who had been in Blue Mountain Eagle in the interim. Newman later played with Shaun Cassidy. John Bordonaro also was assistant A&R Director at Elektra Records Los Angeles in 1972-1973. John had toured with James Taylor, Carole King and Dan Kortchmar, working as a road manager and concert mixer, before going to Elektra. (VJ/MW/SR/JB)

ALBUM: 1(A) TAROT (United Artists 5563) 1972

Here's a pleasant enough progressive instrumental album with lots of strings and keyboards which is now a minor collectable. The band was from New York City. Tom Constanten is better known for his involvement with Grateful Dead and Gary 'Chicken' Hirsh was previously with Country Joe and The Fish.

Constanten went on to compose soundtracks and recorded with Jorma Kaukonen in the nineties. Paul Dresher worked with Steve Reich and Terry Riley and released several albums on very small labels. (VJ/SR)

45: Walk Out In The Rain /
Give Me Leeway (Sound Machine 10051) 1970

Michigan was a haven for hard'n'heavy guitar rock outfits in the '68-'71 period as demonstrated on several compilations including the Michigan Mixture series. Whether such outfits fly the 'garage' or 'psychedelic' freak flags is open to contention, but there is no doubt that some excellent post-Hendrix sounds abounded from the region. This bunch hailed from Kalamazoo and while Walk Out may be too poppy for Michigan fanatics, the flip is punctuated by some fine fluid acid-tinged guitar.

Don Bassey's webpage biography reveals that this band was formed as a new 1969 version of The Tiers, one of Kalamazoo's top bands, around original members Blowers and Harding. Halman came from The Velvet Machine, Bassey had been in a succession of local bands, and Underwood had previously been in The Thyme. In the end they decided to call this new band Touchstone. They gigged frequently at venues like the Grande Ballroom and Roostertail, sharing bills with Alice Cooper, Brownsville Station, The Byrds, Iggy & The Stooges, The Rationals, and Bob Seger. Bassey left in 1971 and relocated to California. (MW)

45: Searchin'/Shard (Epic 5-10369) 1968

Heavy soul with a psychedelic aura from a San Leandro, California outfit. Their cover of Lieber & Stoller's Searchin' enters Fillmore territory in the break where guitars intertwine joyously. Cream's brand of bluesy acid-rock provides the template for the hard riffin' Shard.

A 1967 unreleased recording of Away Girl is on You Got Yours (CD). (MW)

The Town Criers cried out from Houston in Texas. They weren't a full-time professional band but their main claim to fame is that they included Marty Balin (later of Jefferson Airplane). He was working in his father's print shop at the time. They wrote their own material but like many of their contemporaries that hadn't made it big they were shoved aside by the British invasion. 45: What Is A Youth/Honey Forever (Avco Embassy 4533) 196?

Despite the psychedelic apparel the band wear on the album cover, the vinyl consists largely of sickly pop ballads. There are a couple of more experimental tracks (particularly Things) and they do a passable cover of George Gershwin's Summertime, but overall this album cannot be recommended.

The group may have been Canadian but as it wasn't in 'Dreams Fantasies and Nightmares Revisited' I've left the entry here. (VJ)

45: Goodbye Good Times/Ally Or Enemy (Dellwood 3239) 1970

A Saddlebrook, New Jersey band, you'll also find Ally Or Enemy on the Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP) compilation. It's a protest song in a similar vein to Barry McGuire's Eve Of Destruction. The band's leader, TP, was a guy called Tom Prigorac, who had a really angry vocal style. (VJ)

45: She Said Yeah/Watch Me (Sully 928) 1966

NB: initial copies shown as by The Stones.

Originally from Minot in North Dakota, where a serviceman saw their act and offered to move them to Texas to possibly record with Ray Ruff who owned a management company and the Amarillo-based Sully Records. En route to Amarillo they stopped off in Oklahoma City, where they recorded Watch Me which they saved for the flip side of their 1966 single, She Said Yeah. The first pressings were released as by The Stones. She Said Yeah was a hard-rocker and included a long drum solo from the band's 15-year-old drummer. However, after a few months gigging at small teen gigs around West Texas they became disheartened and returned to Minot.

Just six months later Thibert persuaded them to return to Texas again, this time to Fort Worth. They spiced up their act and changed their name to the Try-Cerz when another group called The Tracers threatened legal action. Later still they became Sweet Smoke.

Compilation appearances have included: Watch Me and She Said Yeah on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD); Watch Me on You're So Square (LP) and Fort Worth Teen Scene! Volume Three (CD) ; She Said Yeah and a previously unreleased version of Gloria on *Fort Worth Teen Scene! 45: One Of The Crowd/Who Do You Love (All-American 363) 1967

This is a different Tracers, from California, on Bill Holmes' label that brought Thee Sixpence, later the Strawberry Alarm Clock, to the world. Their cover of Who Do You Love is a decent snotty punker but lacks the aggression of The Preachers' version, which may have inspired it.

NB: (1) was issued with a 12-page booklet of pictures and lyrics titled "Tracks 69/74". The booklet also mentions a "poster" included with the package but existence of this item is unconfirmed.

This is an incredibly ambitious private release from the New England area. The three albums feature mostly original tracks (written by Pinkston, a few by Aldrich) in a progressive rock style with very professional musicianship throughout. Some of the tracks really fly, instrumentally - comparisons could be made to Todd Rundgren's Utopia at times. There's a remarkable interpretation of The Rolling Stones' Street Fighting Man and a unique version of Dylan's All Along The Watchtower offered as the only cover songs. Apparently, the band had continual financial backing throughout their six year existence, as the box set features pristine studio recordings of all four line-ups detailed above. The earliest recordings are dated February 1970, the last September 1974. (CF)

From Leesburg, Florida this act is best known for featuring pre-We The People members Wayne Proctor and Randy Boyte. All except Randy had earlier played with Nation Rocking Shadows (of Anesthesia fame) and the Trademarks were formed in October 1964, after Ron Skinner was ousted from the 'Shadows.

Don't Say You Love Me is Beatlesque beat, with little hint at the shape of things to come, but you can find it, along with the previously unreleased rocker Everything'll Be All Right on the awesome We The People 2-CD retrospective, Mirror Of Our Minds (Sundazed SC 11056) 1998. (IT/MW)

Coming from Providence, Rhode Island, Anders and Poncia released a single on a local label as the Vidals in 1960 and then moved to New York, where they signed to a national label. Their second single, Mr. Lonely, made the charts but its follow-ups failed. The duo were then signed as contract writers for Hill & Range and penned some hits and played for the Ronettes, The Crystals, Darlene Love and other Phil Spector productions. After a brief stint with Red Bird Records, they became The Tradewinds and signed with Kama Sutra as writers, producers and singers. The Tradewinds were a pop duo who occasionally became caught up in some of the psychedelic trappings of their era, most notably on Mind Excursion, which can also be found on Nuggets, Vol. 5: Pop Part III (LP).

They also recorded as The Innocence, the Mulberry Fruit Band, The Penny Arcade, The Treasures and Pete and Vinnie. They even worked on an Elvis Presley film score. In 1968, they formed Map City Productions with Frank Mell and used this label to produce and release some East Coast groups, including Yesterday Children, Purple Image, the Blue Jays and Mardi Gras.

In 1969, they had a further self-titled album as Anders And Poncia (Warner Bros WS 1776). This was produced by Richard Perry, but despite some excellent guitar from Ry Cooder, isn't very good overall.

Peter Anders also released a solo album, Peter Anders (Family Productions FPS 2705) 1972. A competent California folk-rock album, it's notable for featuring Hamilton Wesley Watt, ex-Euphoria, on guitars. Poncia went on to produce several albums for Ringo Starr and Melissa Manchester and also wrote Kiss' I Was Made For Lovin' You!

Mind Excursion and New York Is A Lonely Town were also featured on the 1970 Buddah sampler album, Incense And Oldies (LP). (VJ/SR/MW)

45: Nobody Loves The Hulk/Better Things (PS) (QNS 101) 1969

This novelty record Nobody Loves The Hulk (presumably after the U.S. TV show 'The Hulk') has a certain charm and punk energy. Not connected to either Houston's (Roy Head &) The Traits or the outfit from Pelham, New York as far as we know.

You can also locate Nobody Loves The Hulk on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP) and Glimpses, Vol. 4 (LP). (VJ)

The Traits (NY)

From Pelham, New York their High On A Cloud is a classic garage track, built around a repetitive Seeds-like riff. High On A Cloud originally appeared on the 1967 sampler album Battle Of The Bands (Ren-Vell RV-317) amongst a dozen local New York bands:- the Gyrations (from Yonkers), Hangmen (Eastchester), Henchmen (Pleasantville), Mystics (Valhalla), Night Crawlers (White Plains), Night Riders (Portchester), Orphans (White Plains), Raunch (Briarcliff), Reptiles (Ossining), "The" (Yonkers), and Vectors (Bronx).

In the eighties, The Pandoras also covered this track to great effect.

High On A Cloud has also been compiled on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 3 (ESD) (CD), Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Relics, Vol. 1 (LP). (MW)

45: Why Me/Irahs (Phoenix PH 2) 1968

This is one of those fabled 'San Francisco sound' bands of whom many may have heard or read about in books and articles on that particular scene, but whose recordings have been heard by very few.

The band assembled at San Rafael High School in Marin County, California in 1965. Their first gig was at Sausalito Heliport for The Warlocks, who decided that night to change their name to The Grateful Dead.

Starting out doing covers like Midnight Hour, Spoonful and Smokestack Lightning, they were soon joined by vocalist Jim Monroe. In 1966, they went through a Beau Brummels phase, which is captured on two unreleased Housman compositions cut at Golden State Recorders in San Francisco - Good Times and Now She's Gone. These have turned up on What A Way To Come Down (CD), which also features two cuts by a different Bay Area outfit called Transatlantic RR.

They continued to gig all around the Bay Area; although not on the premier-venue circuit they did get to perform at The Fillmore on audition nights. When it came to the festivals they had a chance to shine, playing on the same bill as top acts including Jefferson Airplane, Grateful Dead, Big Brother and The Doors.

In 1968, they released their sole folkie single on Phoenix, a very short-lived subsidiary of Seymour Stein's Sire label. What was not known until recently was that they were recording an album to follow the single. They'd done five demos and got studio time to lay down more. Unfortunately they couldn't get Geoff Mayer's massive Hammond RT-3 organ through the studio doors. It got stuck and would not budge; neither would Mayer, who refused to use other keyboards for the session. What turned out to be their biggest chance was lost.

This is recounted in the notes for the limited edition album, which houses the original quintet of demos and recollections by Housman, Lindt, Vanbianchi and others. The demos are free-flowing extended workouts as was the vogue of the times. The main mid-section of Elephant has echoes of East West (Paul Butterfield Blues Band) with its shuffling rhythm and piercing lead. Mayer's Hammond adds rich reedy textures throughout, but was it really worth sacrificing the album for?

After the fat Hammond incident the band continued, with personnel fluctuating around Housman and Lindt, until 1971 when they decided to disband. Housman would later turn up in Blue Cheer, The Ducks and SFO.

You'll Never Find Her (Silverado Records SR 101) 1967

From the Napa Valley, north of San Francisco, the Transatlantic Winkham Chicken No. 5 was a popular attraction on the local teen scene and played music in the folk/psych style. Their single was recorded at Quinn Custom Recording Studios in Napa and just 500 copies were pressed. Due to a typographical error the name was misspelled as "Chiken" on the label. Despite its proximity to the San Francisco Bay Area, this is the only sixties single known from the city of Napa!

They performed at various venues throughout northern California and Nevada, supporting the likes of Country Joe and the Fish, Quicksilver Messenger Service and Moby Grape, before splitting up when Jim Stanley was drafted into the army. Reed Stubbs went on to join Fort Bragg's Living Children just before they evolved into Truman Coyote.

Both sides of their incredibly rare single appear on the Frantic Records compilation CD Luv's So Free. (GN/JS/CF)

Forming in Minneapolis, Minnesota they set out as a surf-rock quartet. Andreason, Winslow and Wahrer had all previously played with Jim Thaxter and The Travelors, who'd operated out of Minneapolis between 1959-62.

Their finest moment was Surfin' Bird which made No. 4 in the National Charts in 1963. Later in 1964 they enjoyed a minor U.S. hit with Bird Dance Beat. Ironically both songs were taken from tunes by The Rivingtons, Papa-Oom-Mow-Mow and The Bird's The Word.

Steve Wahrer later died of throat cancer on 21st January 1989 aged just 47.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Surfin' Bird on Born Bad, Vol. 3 (LP), Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 1 (CD) and Like Nothing Your Ears Have Ever Heard 5 (CD); New Generation on Pebbles, Vol. 4 - Summer Means Fun (LP); Ubangi Stomp on Ear-Piercing Punk (LP); Green, Green Backs Back Home (a novelty record based on Tom Jones' U.K. hit the Green Green Grass Of Home but with entirely different lyrics) on *The Best Of Metrobeat! 	β	What's A Man/She Understands	(Viva 637) 1969

NB: α shown as by Act III. β also issued in Brazil (Equipe CSV-689).

San Francisco's Travel Agency formed in 1966. They were billed as Act III on the first Kookaburra single, which couples two versions of the jangley Made For You. The flip side, M.F.Y., is an almost-instrumental version, i.e. the vocals are mixed down to near inaudibility. At the tail-end of '66 it appeared again on the Tanqueray single backing Time, a breezy West Coast romp with crystalline guitars, superb harmonies, restrained fuzz solo, and an Eastern-infused denouement.

Some time later, and prior to the album, Lupica joined, presumably replacing Busby. Lupica had previously been in Us, a Bob Segarini-led garage band who'd recorded for the Autumn label in 1965, but whose sole single was not released due to a dispute over arrangements between Segarini and the label - read the full story on Nuggets From The Golden State: Dance With Me (CD). Us split soon after, and Segarini went on to lead a succession of bands - Family Tree, Roxy, Wackers.

When Beal left Travel Agency, the band carried on as a trio. Haehl, Aydelotte and Lupica recorded the album, which was produced in L.A. by sessioneer James Griffin (later of Bread) on Snuff Garrett's Viva label. Side one is the stronger: a haunting and stately neo-prog keyboard intro blossoms into the poppy What's A Man; Cadillac George features strong fuzztone; and there are gentler moments on Lonely Seabird and So Much Love. There are also fast commercial rockers (Make Love and Old Man) and catchy pop (That's Good). Perhaps because of this diversity and the complete lack of band identity/credits on the sleeve, the album was overlooked then and remains underrated even now.

Steve Haehl and Frank Lupica reappeared in 1971 in Shanti, whose eponymous Eastern-influenced album included two compositions by Aydelotte, from the time he was with them in Travel Agency.

Lupica went on to a solo career, as Francisco, performing one-man shows all over California with an array of exotic instruments including a self-built electrified I-beam; adorned with keyboards and other devices, he dubbed it the Cosmic Beam. In 1976 he released his proto-new age album, Cosmic Beam Experience.

45:	Jailbait/Hard Times	(Zordan 107) 1967

This good punk disc is by a Chicago band, which formed in 1966 when the bassist's earlier project, The Fourbidden Pleasures, folded. Jailbait, is a pounding punker about the dangers of fooling with underage nubiles. The band folded in June 1968 when its members graduated.

In 1966, radio station WONE sponsored a three-day Daytonian 'Battle Of The Bands', which attracted 29,000 fans. A dozen bands were selected by the judges and were duly booked into Mega-Sound Studios (at 49 Heid Avenue) to lay down a track each for the souvenir album of the event - WONE, The Dayton Scene (Prism PR-1966).

The Travelers open the album with Beachboy, a slow teen ballad with Four Seasons harmonies and falsettos. A Message For You has subsequently figured on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD).

They released two singles, one on Prism and another on the Mega-Sound custom label 'RoX'. The latter is of more interest - A Message For You puts Four Seasons harmonies atop an Invasion beat-ballad and adds a touch of fuzz. The flip reverts to teen ballad mode, dreamy Everlys-style. (VJ/MW)

Most vocalists in the 'garage genre' fall into certain well-established styles - the bright-eyed pop style of the Beatles/Hollies, the throat raspings of a Jagger or Eric Burdon or the sneering nasal twangs of a Sky Saxon, occasionally however the more mature deep-throated tones of the macho-men of pop, yer Tom Jones school, cross over to produce a strange hybrid. Examples that spring to mind are Denny Provisor's It Really Tears Me Up, Preston's This World Is Closing In On Me and Backgrounds' Day Breaks At Dawn.

Here's another from a cabaret-style balladeer who had at least three singles. The third is of most interest, although the top side is a kind of mellow folk-rock with Dylanesque harp break, the flip is somethin' else. Those deep tones with Presleyesque mannerisms put the icing on a tough pounding punker with atmospheric busy keyboards and choppy chords - and somehow it works pretty well, giving it more power than a spotty adolescent would have done. Sadly the second single is pretty dire, Presley style pop, whilst the first single remains unheard.

Last Night... is compiled at last - on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), which also features the aforementioned Backgrounds' Day Breaks At Dawn. (MW)

Jack Traylor was a friend of Jefferson Airplane and can also be found on the albums of Grace Slick and Paul Kantner: Manhole, Sunfighter and Baron Von Tollbooth.

A decent songwriter, he got offered the opportunity to record an album on the 'Airplane's label and his Child Of Nature may interest fans of the West Coast sound with its male/female vocals and good flute and guitar solos. Nothing outstanding but this album is pleasant enough and some lyrics are interesting: Gone To Canada is another song about people escaping the Vietnam draft, Smile (probably the best track) is about American politicians and several songs deal with nature protection and pollution.

Traylor apparently vanished from the music scene after this album, whilst Craig Chaquico would later join Jefferson Starship and Diana Harris worked with Terry Allen and Tom Rapp. (SR)

In addition to one solo punk single, Treadway recorded several singles with The Salados including the organ led garage punker listed above (the flip was an instrumental). His father, who was also connected with the Waco-based Mark VII label, ran the T.S.M. label, which was based in Hamilton, a small town in north central Texas. Treadway later recorded some country singles for T.S.M. before his tragic death in a car crash.

ALBUM: 1(A) THE CHRIST TREE - A MUSICAL MEDITATION
(w/lyric insert) (Pomegranate 001) 1975 R2

Here's a rare Christian folk-psych album. These Trees consisted of a group of men and women dressed in robes, singing and playing an assortment of sitars, zither, dulcimer, flutes, guitar, gong, tamboura... Housed in a black sleeve with pictures on the back, the album contains two long cuts on side one and seven on side two. A few hundred copies were pressed.

Katheryn Krupa (nee Ruetenik) recalls: - "We lived on a bus (several actually) and toured around the US and Canada in the seventies. The group began in New York City, changed, grew, lost and gained members - then was based at the Cathedral of St. John The Divine in New York. (Dean Morton may recall us or may not these days). Two members of the group Shipen and Ariel are now dead, but the rest of us are still around and spread around the country. I went on to be in an art-rock band playing pedal harp called Art in America (CBS/Pavillion records 1981/2?). I also have another tape of older music, in the same genre (folk with many bizarre instruments from around the world) which was recorded before The Christ Tree, although the recording quality isn't as good."

David Lynch: - "We were more than just a 'music group' as such. Our lives intertwined around a five-year journey or 'pilgrimage' in our various bus homes, setting up 'camp' in diverse locations around North America, being a resident "society" or community in New Mexico and New York City, where we attempted to explore the concepts of monasticism and spirituality; Christ centred in attitude and immersing ourselves in the deep wisdom of the worlds cultures and spiritual practices. From this journey and its meaning evolved our musical compositions. Whether from sources of Gregorian plainchant or hypnotic Balanesian rhythms, our musical sessions struggled with the psalms and melodies of antiquity and the challenges of our instruments and lifestyle, working with a constantly evolving ensemble to allow the Music of the Tree to take root and its branches to ring with songs and sounds. I now live in Cincinnati, Ohio with my wife and we are involved in composition and playing. In fact from Shipen's example perhaps, I have been playing sitar for several years along with my collection of wind instruments and both playing and composing with my wife Shari who is a violinist and plays keyboards and percussion, under the name Luminaria."

The band is thought to be planning a reissue of old material and the Christ Tree album on CD. (SR/KK/DL)

45: Jennie Lee/Listen To Love (Record Records Inc. 20013) 1966

A Cleveland, Ohio band whose sole single, featuring a pair of Ron Jankowski songs, appeared on their own label in May 1966.

Around 1967, the Jankowski brothers departed and in 1969 released a soft-pop single as Audi Badoo - Troubles/I Don't Know How You Do The Things You Do (United Artists 50627). Later they formed Springwheel and Ron Jankowski remained in the music industry after relocating to the West Coast.

Meanwhile the Tree Stumps went through several line-ups and did not record again until after their final line-up (X) changed their name to Silk. Of other members who passed through the ranks - Harrington went to Kicks Inc., and Howarth formed Renaissance Faire with Leffel (who was in several other bands including Granicus and Pi Corp).

45: Chains On My Heart/
Travel With Me (Impact Sound UA 23667/8) 1967

Formed in 1965, Minot, North Dakota's Trenchmen would last until 1968, producing just one sought-after single in August 1967. Both sides were written by guitarist Greg Jordahl; Travel With Me is a typical class-of-66 garage fuzz-punker, whereas Chains On My Heart taps into the emerging psychedelic sounds.

The band split when the members left school. Jordahl joined the final, short-lived line-up of Dickinson's Lost Souls.

The full story is on the Break-A-Way EP, which gathers together the entire released output of both bands.

Chains On My Heart has also reappeared on Garage Dreams Revisited Vol.1 (EP). (MW/WV/VJ)

Good Day/Judy (Metromedia MM-203) c1970

Good Day is catchy rock-pop, originally a local hit for Ormandy on the Kasaba label which had been picked up by Decca for national exposure.

Judy is a haunting lament with husky vocals and plaintive guitar. You can also find it on Come Fly With Us.. (LP). The very same track had appeared on the previous Ivanhoe release under the artist's real name, (Rudy) Von Ruden, formerly a member of (Johnny and) The Shy Guys who were based out of LaCrosse, Wisconsin (they were formed originally in Winona, Minnesota). Mike Mankey (originally from Fort Wayne, Indiana) formed Triad after the Olivers broke up and he'd relocated to Minneapolis. His next outfit was Thundertree before he joined a regional company performing 'Jesus Christ Superstar'. In the noughties, he's still performing - as a one-man band around the Twin Cities.

45: I'm Beginning To Feel/Goodbye Flying (Mercury 73154) 1970

NB: double A-sided promo copies also exist.

The album, which was recorded in Chicago, ranges from mellow folk to harder rock. The first side is the best and includes the highlights; Three Blind Mice, Removing Myself and Goodbye Flying. Rick Barr guests on drums on one track. Berni Parsley (from Lightning) and Tom Richards assisted on the album, but weren't really part of the core group. (VJ)

The Trippers (SD)

45s: Have You Ever/Kaleidoscope (Milltown M-101) 1968
Watch Yourself/Pictures Of Lily (Fulltone 8-9260) 1968

A progressive late sixties outfit from Sioux Falls, South Dakota that produced these two singles. Sad to report then that, on their January 1968 debut, the Paulak-Goldberg composed Have You Ever is terrible (bouncy, knees-up, "music hall" pop with rinky-dink piano and kazoo), redeemed only by a decent cover of Procol Harum's Kaleidoscope with droning organ and a nimble guitar solo. Taking Care Of Business/Charlena (Ruby-Doo 5) 1967
Taking Care Of Business/Charlena (GNP Crescendo 387) 1967

An L.A. garage outfit whose Taking Care Of Business is a superb up front fast frenetic fuzz-laden belter that would blister paint. The flip covers The Sevilles' Charlena in a frat-party style with a rasping sax break. This band also backed Don's brother Ken on his single he released as Ken & The Fourth Dimension

Taking Care Of Business has been compiled on Lost Generation, Vol. 1 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD) and Psychotic Reaction Plus Ten (CD). (MW/DG)

The Trips (CA)

45: There Was A Girl/At Least She's Happy (Score T-069) 1966

A California combo with a yearning garagy teen-ballad reminiscent of London Knights' Go To Him or the mid-sixties Cascades output. At Least She's Happy is up-tempo Byrdsy folk-beat and can also be found on Love Is A Sad Song, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ)

Tripping Out (OH)

ALBUM: 1 TRIPPING OUT (No label) 1970 R2

This is a spoken word record privately pressed for the University Of Toledo to use for drug education purposes. The record was designed to acquaint its audience with the 'Drug Experience' without exposing them to its dangers. It is narrated by Ivan Harvey of Ohio's Toledo University and includes music written and preformed by David Corbin. Titles on side one are: What Tripping Is Like, A Simulated LSD Trip, The Psychedelic Movement, A Second Awakening and Marijuana. Side two comprises: Simulated Hashish Experience, Psilocybin, Mescaline, and STP, Simulated Heroin Nod, Simulated Cold Turkey, Goof Balls and Speed. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1(C) TRIPSICHORD (San Francisco Sound T-12700) 1970 R6
2(C) TRIPSICHORD (Janus JLS-3016) 1971 R2/R3

NB: (1) demo disc issued in thick white jacket with front and rear stickers applied. These stickers are in various colours, all with the same psychedelic artwork and logos for "Tripsichord Music Box" and "San Francisco Sound". The front sticker is considerably larger than the one on the rear of the jacket, but otherwise identical. The label on the record itself is the same red and black design found on the original pressing of the Fifth Pipedream - San Francisco Sound Vol. 1 compilation. The labels show the band simply as 'Tripsichord'. Three of the tracks on this demo album are known by slightly different titles than appearing on the Janus editions, and three tracks are slightly longer. (2) is an authorised reissue of (1). Two different legitimate pressings exist on Janus: (i) Tan label, Janus logo, no mention of "San Francisco Sound" on label. (ii) Tan label, Janus logo, large "San Francisco Sound" logo at bottom of label. These two versions are otherwise identical and command an equal value, however, the version with the Janus logo only on the label seems to be considerably rarer. A white label promo edition exists on Janus. (2) counterfeited on vinyl in the eighties with a black and white San Francisco Sound label. (2) reissued on green vinyl with the tan Janus/San Francisco Sound label. (2) reissued on vinyl as a 2-LP set (Akarma AK 077) 1999, adding the three tracks from the Fifth Pipedream - San Francisco Sound Vol. 1 compilation and the two non-LP cuts from the 1969 single. (2) reissued on CD (Eva B31/852124) 1993. (2) reissued on CD (San Francisco Sound 07680) 1999. (2) reissued on CD (Akarma AK 077) 1999, adding the three tracks from the Fifth Pipedream - San Francisco Sound Vol. 1 compilation and the two non-LP cuts from the 1969 single. Curiously, the two legitimate Janus pressings (as well as all subsequent reissues) were not mastered from the original tapes! To date, only the rare demo album (1) is a confirmed first generation issue from the master tapes, and has correspondingly 'clearer' sound than all other pressings.

45s: α Times And Seasons/
Sunday The Third (San Francisco Sound 115) 1969
β She Has Passed Away/
Fly Baby (San Francisco Sound 127) 1970

NB: α both sides non-LP. β 'A' side title is not a misprint, this is how it appears on the 45 and on the demo album. It was re-titled We Have Passed Away on the Janus edition of the LP. Fly Baby is the LP version, but radically edited due to its length.

Tripsichord Music Box (name shortened to 'Tripsichord' in 1970) was one of the Bay Area's most enigmatic and amazing bands. Despite being one of the least documented and least commercially successful of the San Francisco Sound family of groups under producer Matthew Katz' control, the music they left behind is quite stellar and easily ranks alongside the output of stablemates Moby Grape and It's A Beautiful Day from the same period (1968-70).

Tripsichord Music Box started life as The Ban before changing names to Now. The group was managed by Randy Guzman's parents, so he took the name Gordon, for business reasons. The Guzman's had shopped the group around to all of the L.A. record companies and local promoters, while the band played high-profile gigs at places like the Sea Witch and Pandora's Box on the Hollywood's Sunset Strip. Despite playing the same circuit as the Seeds, Strawberry Alarm Clock, Yellow Payges et al, and building a considerable following, it was not until they came to the attention of Matthew Katz that they were taken seriously as a viable commercial entity. Katz relocated the band to San Francisco and re-christened them Tripsichord Music Box. They played live (along with most of Katz' other bands) frequently at his San Francisco Sound Ballroom in Seattle and in California.

In December 1967, Tripsichord Music Box was the first group to record on eight-track equipment in San Francisco (prior to the arrival of state of the art multi-tracking equipment, most S.F. bands were going to Los Angeles to record). This session produced the three tracks that were included on the rare Fifth Pipedream - San Francisco Sound Vol. 1 (LP) compilation: It's Not Good, You're The Woman and Family Song.

When Katz lost the group Moby Grape, he had Tripsichord Music Box play a number of shows as the now infamous "fake grape". Gregg McKinney (Oliver's brother) recalls: "They did the free show in Encanto Park, Phoenix, Arizona, where our 93-year-old grandmother came to the "love-in" to see her grandson play. Oliver ended up playing guitar on stage, something he truly hated! For the record, the guys did not like deceiving other people's fans and would rather have kept playing their own music."

Oliver McKinney left the band during 1969, moving with his family to Pensacola, Florida. He played music locally into the mid-eighties and is now a commercial artist and plays cello in a church orchestra.

Oliver McKinney was replaced by guitarist Bill Carr and as well the band was often augmented by Zandonatti's high school buddy Ron McNeeley on vocals. It was this more aggressive dual-guitar line-up (with and without McNeeley) that recorded the band's most spectacular music. Listening to their 1969 recordings today, it's clear that they alone carried the dual-guitar torch that year that was once shared by Quicksilver Messenger Service, Frumious Bandersnatch and Moby Grape. The Tripsichord album is essentially what the world was hoping Shady Grove would be! Fly Baby sounds like Quicksilver at their ethereal best, and throughout, the guitar interplay is breathtaking on this underrated gem. A dark vibe permeates the album through an obsession with death and the afterlife in the lyrics:

"The life that I lived and the image I reflected Still remains in the eyes of those who I protected
And now I rest eternally...
The dim light shines from the black door where I have just passed through."
(from Black Door)

The Narrow Gate has creepy lyrics "Lovely, lovely living souls, blowing warmth from purple heat... now I'm cold" backed by a stunning instrumental track loaded with unusual percussion. Aside from the rather pedestrian Short Order Steward, every cut on the album is killer and required listening for all fans of sixties music. The recent Akarma package (also issued on CD) collects all the released Tripsichord Music Box recordings 1968-70 and is the most economical way to investigate this fine little-known band.

In 1970, Tripsichord left California for Utah, where Dave Zandonatti and Ron McNeeley joined a Mormon traveling musical troupe called The Sons Of Mosiah. This collective was managed by Orrin Hatch, now a well-known politician in the State. Several concerts were recorded during 1970, and a double album was issued that year: The Sons Of Mosiah Live! In Washington, D.C. (Lab Productions). Zandonatti and McNeeley appear on the album as a folk duo, and given about 25 minutes, perform five songs including both sides of the 1969 Tripsichord Music Box single. In between the tracks, they explain in some detail how the lyrics relate to Biblical texts. Ironically the emcee of the show introduces Zandonatti as "a former member of the acid-rock group Moby Grape"!

In 1971, Dave Zandonatti produced a recording for singer Marvin Payne which was released in album form by Mike Curb (Curb Records). Zandonatti also plays on the album, as does Tripsichord drummer Randy Gordon and violinist Danny Colletti who was a member of a seventies band with Zandonatti called Natty Bumppo.

Dave Zandonatti (aka John E. Smorgasbord) is currently fronting a swing band called The Blue D'Arts, and Randy Gordon has (no kidding!) been playing drums for the real Moby Grape in recent years!

Compilation coverage has included: Sunday The Third and Times And Seasons from their non-album single, on Filling The Gap (4-LP box); Matthew Katz's Then And Now, Vol. 1 (CD) includes You're The Woman and Fly Baby, whilst Then And Now, Vol. 2 (CD) includes Family Song and On The Last Ride. (CF/GMy/DZ)

	Better Come Get Her/Monicia Baker	(Pacemaker 238) 1966

Formed in Rosenberg/Needville, Texas in the mid-fifties; all bar Don Drachenberg met at Lamar Consolidated High School in Rosenberg. Garner St. Park was a local hit in the Houston area around 1964 and also figured on Swinging At The Go Go Club! (LP).

After B.J. Thomas quit the band, Drachenberg took over vocal duties and The Triumphs continued all the way through to 1983, with John Perry taking over bass duties and Doug Griffith's joining in the early eighties.

In 1993, The Triumphs had a successful re-union and they're still performing to this day, whilst B.J. Thomas too is also still performing as a solo act.

Sadly Denny Zatyka passed away in 1997.

There was also a different Triumphs from Houston in the early seventies (with singles on Master and Wand) who'd formerly been The Inside Trax.

Better Come Get Her has been compiled on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD). (MW/TD/VJ)

From Ashtabula, Ohio their first single was recorded at the famous Chess studios in Chicago.

Compilation appearances include: Lovin' Cup on Off The Wall, Vol. II (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 10 (LP & CD); The Walk on Bury My Body (CD); and People Try My Mind on Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ/GGI/MW)

This Hamburg, Pennsylvania bunch changed their name from this all too used moniker to The Razor's Edge. They subsequently found that their new name had also been bagged so after one further single they became Pat Farrell & the Believers.

Arf! Arf! has unearthed this band's output - both singles can now be found on Eastern PA Rock Part One (1961-'66) (CD), and five unreleased cuts are unearthed on the Pat Farrell & The Believers CD.

Other Triumphs of interest include the Milwaukee bunch whose Surfside Date (I.F.F. 151) graces Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); and an uncompiled Chicago garage outfit with two singles on the Cha Cha label. (MW/VJ)

Previously known as Phantasia, this band was from the Norborne area in Missouri. The Trizo 50 album was recorded in the band's rehearsal studio on a four-track recorder and was intended as a songwriter's demo, including re-recordings of some Phantasia-era tracks. Some of these recordings were included on two collections of Phantasia material issued in the nineties. See their entry for details.

David Johnson and John De Pugh had previously played together in a mid-sixties covers/dance band called The J-Walkers. De Pugh retells the history of these bands in the 36-page booklet which accompanies the CD retrospective featuring 22 originals recorded 1973-1974.

Until they recorded this Mequon, Wisconsin teen quartet was known as B.E.A.T. Ltd. For their sole single they combined folk-rock with fake British accents on Don't Follow Me, which you'll also find on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP).

This Pacific Northwest (from Seattle) act's single consists of a hypnotic jingle-jangle melodic and melancholy pop ballad backed by an excellent, though restrained, punker along the usual girl-put-down lines. They were sometimes known as The Peppermint Trolley, but shouldn't be confused with the Acta Recording act of the same name.

Peter Sack went on to play with Merrilee Rush.

The Trolls inhabited Chicago, Illinois and issued several noteworthy singles. They kicked off with Every Day And Every Night, forceful beat modelled loosely on Gloria, backed by a Beatlesque ballad. The follow-up was more overtly Invasion pop, with two upbeat ditties similar to Herman's Hermits. They Don't Know continued in the same vein and added a slightly fuzzy guitar. There Was A Time is a frantic fuzzy popper with harmonica, Cryan' Shames harmonies and a rousing ending. Until that point all had been written or co-written by Richard Clark. Then Richard Gallagher came up with Baby, What You Ain't Got... and they let RIP with a storming fuzz-fest of heavy pop - awesome! The flip is harmony-pop and sounds exactly like The Critters. A recording of I Got To Have You from February 1968 has also been included on the Early Chicago (LP) compilation.

THE TROLL - Animated Music LP.

They may have been having an identity crisis around late 1967 because a single appeared by The Carnival Of Sound - Don't Come Around/I Can't Remember (USA 892) - shortly before their early 1968 release of the identical track (according to the Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP) notes). In any event the Trolls' USA single is decent pop with Don't Come Around being the stronger cut by far, a real catchy popper with pumping Diddleyesque riff. After that they retreated to their underground lair...

They re-emerged towards the end of the year as psychedelic-pop-rockers The Troll, with a very interesting album. This included the powerful Werewolf and Witchbreath and a number of other psychedelic numbers such as Satin City News and Everybody's Child, alongside the lighthearted Professor Potts Pornographic Projector and Have You Seen The Queen?. The album had a smattering of slower numbers, too, notably A Winter's Song and I've Only Myself To Blame. The album is recommended but originals are not easily obtained, as it's now a mini-collectors' item.

Compilation appearances include: Don't Come Around on Mindrocker, Vol. 2 (LP); Every Day And Every Night on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection Vol. 1 (2-CD) and Pebbles Vol. 7: Chicago 2 (CD); Are You The One? on Gravel Volume 2 (CD); Something Here Inside on Gravel Volume 4 (CD); Laughing All The Way on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD); They Don't Know on Gravel Volume 1 (CD); and There Was A Time on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol. 1 (CD). How Do You Expect Me To Trust You (No label 23267) 1966

This San Jose band's debut appeared on a Century custom press in early 1966. Both sides were written by Jim McPherson and demonstrated a flair for snappy contemporary sounds with an Anglophile accent. In short order they secured a deal with RCA and the 'B' side reappeared on their next release, as by The Stained Glass.

Walkin' Shoes strode onto Son Of Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) and Pebbles Vol.11: Northern California (CD). (MW)

45s:	That's The Way Love Is/Into My Arms	(Rum 1010) 1966
	Stupid Girl/I Don't Recall (PS)	(Warrior 173) 1966

Here's another Trolls, this time from Pueblo, Colorado. That's The Way Love Is was erroneously included on the Texas compilation Flashback, Vol. 1/Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD). Some copies of the follow-up came in a picture sleeve. It was a Rolling Stones cover, the flip, Into My Arms, was written by R. Gonzales.

Later That's The Way Love Is appeared on Monsters Of The Midwest, Vol. III (LP) whose sleeve-notes say the band later became White Lightnin' and issued a single on Sandoz and then Jade with a single on Jade. However, according to the sleevenotes of Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 18 (LP), which features both sides of the Warrior single, they became Baby Magic! Can anyone set the record straight?

Other compilation appearances include: That's The Way Love Is and I Don't Recall on Psychedelic States: Colorado (2-CD); Stupid Girl and I Don't Recall on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box); and I Don't Recall on Now Hear This! (CD). (VJ/MW)

	Everywhere I Go/ Baby Doesn't Live Here Anymore	(Kapp 714) 1965
	Leave My Girl Alone/You're The Queen	(Kapp 750) 1966

From the Greenfield, Massachusetts area, Richard Eriksen left his early 60's frat-pack The Busters to form this garage band. Their first single features good rockin' versions of Rufus Thomas and Eddie Cochran classics. By their third single they'd smoothed out some of the rough edges to put down a slick garagy folk-rocker ballad in The Knaves' The Girl I Threw Away mould.

Somethin' Else was originally compiled on Swinging At The Go Go Club! (LP) and can also be heard on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 9 (CD); and Baby Doesn't Live Here Anymore figures on The Lost Generation 3 (LP). (MW/BC)

NB: α shown as by Chipper.

This revered St. Petersburg/Tampa, Florida outfit was also known as Chipper, whose members would go on to outfits including White Witch and Bacchus. Their finest moment is probably the stunning As Time's Gone, a dangerous punker, punctuated by a strange 'whoop'. It is one of Florida's finest contributions to the genre and was written by Albert Schweikert and Karl Lamp of The Raven(s). They were obviously a diverse act as their previous single, For A Long Time, verges on Byrds/Beatles-influenced folk-rock.

I Want More, from their debut single, is a fuzzy Invasion-flavoured stomper. The liner notes to Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD) reveal that the group had already cut several demos including Solomon Burke's Stupidity and that an earlier incarnation of the band had released a limited press album (details unknown).

By their last single they'd moved into the seriously heavy school of post-Cream/Vanilla Fudge sounds to deliver a rather pedestrian version of The Kinks' hit backed by a melodramatic fuzz-rocker.

Dave Burke left The Tropics to join The Standells. The Fuzztones later covered As Time's Gone on their Lysergic Emanations album.

Compilation appearances have included: This Must Be The Place on The Lost Generation, Vol. 2 (LP); As Time's Gone on Mind Blowers Vol. 1 (LP) and Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & 2-CD); I Want More on Pebbles Box (5-LP), Trash Box (5-CD) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 2 (CD); You Better Move on Riot City! (LP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 (LP & CD) and I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP); and For A Long Time on Destination Frantic! (LP & CD). 10" EP: 1(A) GOING AWAY WITH THE TROUP (Break-a-way BREAK 004) 2002

45s:	I'm Going Away/I'll Be Back	(RTB #1/3) 1968
	Teenage Girl/Jungle Jive	(RTB #2/4) 1968

Both singles by this Pierceton, Indiana high school band are on the 10" 45rpm EP which reveals their full history. The Obregon brothers had played in local bands since 1964 - Moe's Combo, DeArMos and Tre-Mendez; the last of whom released a single on the Jessieca label, You Belong To My Heart/Wild Free And Twenty Three. They assembled The Troup in the summer of '66 and over the following year honed their chops by performing at local school hops, wedding receptions and private parties. In December 1967 they trooped off to Chicago and recorded four tracks, which were released on a pair of custom photo-label singles in early 1968. I'm Going Away was written by Art & Moe; the rest were by Dennis Puckett, a friend from another band, who also provided back-up guitar on their sessions.

Their sound harks back to the clean-cut pop/beat/dance sounds of 1964-5 with a strong frat flavour: - I'm Going Away is a frat-mover and their most garagy effort; I'll Be Back mixes Merseybeat with frat; Jungle Jive is a twangy dance number with animal noises and a twist of calypso; and Teenage Girl is a tribute to Dion & The Belmont's Teenager In Love.

I'm Going Away has reappeared on Grab This And Dance (LP). (MW/WV)

This Battle Creek, Michigan mob also recorded an unreleased album at United Sound Systems in Detroit. Their excellent fuzz-punker Rainbow Chaser is NOT the UK Nirvana song.

On one of the acetates for the album, Morning Of The Rain the band was backed by Ray Anthony, the famous big band leader. Gary Linke: "He was trumpeter for the Glenn Miller and Jimmy Dorsey bands and recorded hits such as Peter Gunn and the theme from the television show, Dragnet. He also wrote The Bunny Hop. Mr. Anthony was in the studio with The Troyes when the cuts on this acetate were recorded. He actually tried to direct the group as if he were leading a big band!"

ALBUM: 1(A) BREAKAWAY (Reprise RS 6469) 1971

45s: Bluegreens/Bluegreens On The Wing (Reprise 0935) 1970
α Roller Derby Star/Pat And Joe's (Reprise 1149) 1973

NB: α shown as by Willy Truckaway and Magic.

William Truckaway was in fact William Sievers, former member of the Sopwith Camel. His only solo album was produced in 1971 by Erik Jacobsen and sounds very similar to the Norman Greenbaum albums, the main musicians being the same. His first single Bluegreens is a very catchy ditty built around a chunky synthesiser and simple hippie-dippy sentiments with some blissed-out vocals. It was enough of a hit that Taco Bell used it for an ad campaign and it got Truckaway an album deal with Reprise. Breakaway, which contains Bluegreens, is a mellow album with a relaxed and easygoing sound with tender vocals and inventive arrangements (synths, sitars, congas, flutes, strings, backing vocals). Truckaway penned all the cuts. The tracks cover territory like leaving the city (Hard and Cold City Life), living a laid-back lifestyle (I Go Slow), finding Jesus (Leave It There), lost love (Where's My Baby) and new love (Way To My Heart and Be The One).

The lyrics of Hard, Cold City Life are particularly noteworthy:

"I came to San Francisco
Got into the music scene
There hippie girls and acid swirls
Filled my head with dreams
I used to think that love was free
But that's just what it seems"

The music is mainly mid-tempo with good melodies and some unusual moog interventions.

Bluegreens On The Wing was a hit in New Zealand, reaching No. 20 on October 16th 1969 and staying in there for a week.

Norman Mayell was with Sievers in Sopwith Camel, Richard Greene was in Seatrain. Terry Dolan and David Hayes would later form Terry and The Pirates with John Cipollina. (SR/WF/VJ/All Music Site)

This pop outfit worked out of San Francisco. The Boy I Left Behind kicks off with some riffs very similar to Animated Egg and launches into some 'hip' lyrics - "I'm sinking in a morass of idiotic slime, whose cadence is the temple of our time". I'm Back features some anti-drug lyrics, and provides a neat 'comedown' concluding the Psychedelic Experience (CD). Reputedly from Oklahoma, they seem to have also spent time in California. Bill Daffern was previously with Hunger! In 1973, Glenn Townsend resurfaced with Johnny Rivers and Daffern played with a later line-up of Captain Beyond. (CF/SR)

45: A Day Like Today/I Can (Cadet 5627) 1968

NB: some copies of this 45 have the band name "The Truth" blacked out on the label and replaced by "The Acid Sette" in psychy-font above the song titles.

Confusingly, this outfit's release came out on Chicago's Chess label and at a time when there were several other bands around called Truth or The Truth. That might explain why some copies of the single appeared with label alterations as noted above. Then again, it has also been said that the band were originally known as The Acid Sette but that Chess refused to have that name on their label. Whatever the truth, this band was not from the Windy City but from St. Louis, Missouri and played support slots at Keil Auditorium for the likes of Big Brother & Holding Co. and Cream.

This keyboard-driven soft-rock single appears to have been their only release under either name. Marks says that Chess only pressed up 500 copies and cancelled the contract. Anyway, they made no more and evolved into Jake Jones, who in turn became Full Moon Consort.

Ed Jenny's I Can has resurfaced on Mindrocker Vol. 13 (LP). (MW/VJ)

From Cedar Rapids, Iowa came Truth and Janey. This is essentially a driving hard-rock power trio with some progressive rock trappings. If you like killer guitar work and/or hard-rock, check out their first album which is now very rare. The guitar work on tracks like the nine-minute Remember is stunning. This album is widely considered one of the very best privately issued hard-rock albums of the 1970s and is not to be missed. Their Live album was recorded in 1976 and has a sound very similar to their debut.

They were previously known as Truth, releasing two singles locally. The group played live in Iowa and they toured the Midwest and Canada extensively as a support band for the likes of Leslie West Band, Kansas and Cheap Trick during the mid-seventies. The original band split in 1977.

More recently Steve Bock appeared on a record in the eighties with southern California band, Nowhere Fast. Guitarist Billy Janey (who now goes by the name Billy Lee Janey) has also released at least four solo blues-rock CD's during the late eighties and nineties. (VJ/DBb/CF)

Housed in a homemade cover, Mark Tucker's private Illinois album Batstew is the product of a tortured and mixed up mind. It features lots of mayhem and tape manipulation and is certainly unique.

It's probably no surprise then that Tucker suffered mental breakdowns and re-emerged to start a new life in California before his 1982 In The Sack album appeared, on which he penned all 11 tracks, sung all the vocals and played most of the instruments too. As one might anticipate it's another mixture of tape manipulations, more mayhem and unstructured experimentation. (VJ)

NB: α is a bootleg miscredited as The Talula Babies. β first press of Tema 125 shown as by Tulu Babies, second press shown as by Baskerville Hounds.

Hurtin' Kind is a superb hand-stamped double-sided single, strongly influenced by The Kinks. Although they actually came from Cleveland, Ohio both sides of the single were included on Eva's Florida Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP). Mine Forever (from the Mar release) can also be heard on The Magic Cube (CD) and Valley Of The Son Of The Gathering Of The Tribe (LP) (from the Tema release) and Hurtin' Kind (from the Mar release) can be found on Open Up Yer Door! Vol. 1 (LP). Both sides are worth checking out, but the 'A' side in particular has a fine guitar break and a good organ sound. Debbie can also be heard on Pride Of Cleveland Past (LP).

The group also recorded as The Baskerville Hounds, re-recording versions of both Hurtin' Kind and Debbie.

It should also be pointed out that their first single was bootlegged at the time and miscredited as The Talula Babies... three decades on and it's still appearing miscredited on some bootlegs. (MW/GGI)

This soft-rock-pop-psych was from Islip, Long Island, New York. The band was discovered and championed by Jay And The Americans originally. Their music was arranged by Artie Kornfeld. They were just in their mid-teens when Island In The Sky was released. The album features fuzz guitars, oboes, melodic Beach Boys-style harmonies, and garage pop sensibilities. Most of their material was self-penned.

The CD reissue of their album is supplemented by rare mono single mixes, none of which have ever been issued on CD. The album comes with a 16-page colour booklet featuring rare, previously unpublished photos and comprehensive liner notes that feature the participation of original band members. Turnquist Remedy formed in 1968. Produced by Barry Kane and Al Schmitt, their album was recorded in Hollywood. Michael Woods wrote all their material except Last Cigarette co-written with Dennis Hudson and Douglas Benson and an excellent cover of Richard Farina's Reno, Nevada.

Although some dealers try to give this album a psychedelic tag, in fact only the cover art (with an inner sleeve) and the song All Gone Blues Act II are worthy of it, the other tracks being faithful to the specific sound of Pentagram, a short-lived label founded by Al Schmitt, the former producer of the Jefferson Airplane, which specialised in West Coast acts with fluid guitar and vocal harmonies (Redeye, Rex Holman, Red, Wilder, Blue).

The band split in 1971. John Maggi later played with String Cheese. Michael Woods played with America in the late seventies and early eighties. Larry Knechtel was a prominent session musician who is best known for his work with The Beach Boys, The Byrds, Simon and Garfunkel and Bread. (VJ/SR)

An obscure band from Oxnard, California that was apparently also known as Captain Speed. They appeared on bills with The Doors, Yardbirds, and Dave Dee Dozy Beaky Mick & Tich around Santa Barbara in 1967. Drummer Dan Gustafson was known as "The Ravioli Kid". Interestingly one track includes a composer credit for a Howard Dumble - now, would that be THE Howard Dumble, secretive maker of Dumble amplifiers??

Both singles were produced by Kim Fowley and are excellent Doorsy garage-psych. Only Hello Bill has been compiled so far, on Seeds Turn To Flowers Turn To Dust (LP). (MW)

They formed at Westchester High School in Los Angeles in 1961. Their founding members were Mark Volman, a native of L.A. (he'd been born there on 19th April 1947) and Howard Kaylan (real name Howard Kaplan), a New Yorker, born in June 1947. They were originally known as The Nightriders, then The Crossfires, until in 1965 their name change to The Turtles was a condition of their contract with White Whale. In their early days they were very much part of the L.A. folk-rock boom. Their first single was a Dylan song and the next two were P.F. Sloan compositions. All three achieved considerable commercial success. Their first album, which climbed to No. 98 in the U.S. Charts, contained two other Dylan compositions: - Love Minus Zero and Like A Rolling Stone, in addition to the title track and P.F. Sloan's Eve Of Destruction. They had a few good originals, too: - Wanderin' Kind was a good folk-rocker and Let The Cold Wind Blow a protest song. Their second album, too, was a similar blend of originals and Dylan and P.F. Sloan compositions.

WHITE WHALE

THE TURTLES - Battle Of The Bands LP.

As 1967 came they underwent some personnel changes and Bonner and Gordon, formerly with The Magicians became their new songwriters. Inevitably there was a change of style and initially a more commercial pop sound. With Happy Together, a classic love song, they enjoyed a No. 1 U.S. hit (and it also made 12 in the UK). They issued an album of the same name which was in many respects a compromise between commercialism and their own progress. It made No. 25 in the U.S. Album Charts. They followed the single success of Happy Together with She'd Rather Be With Me, a bouncy pop song with pleasant harmonies which made No. 3 in the U.S. and No. 4 in the UK. Their next single Guide For The Married Man was written for a Walter Matthau film but withdrawn after just one week and replaced by You Know What I Mean which peaked at No. 12 in the US.

Golden Hits, which contained most of their single releases and two previously unissued tracks, Is It Any Wonder? and So Goes Love, became what would be their best selling U.S. Album peaking at No. 7.

In 1968 they recorded a Christmas single with Linda Ronstadt as Christmas Spirit.

From 1968 their music became more experimental, although when White Whale became impatient for another big hit Volman and Kaylan came up with the brilliant Elenore, which was a big transatlantic hit peaking at No. 6 in the U.S. and No. 7 in the UK. Their Battle Of The Bands and Turtle Soup albums are both worth investigation. They enjoyed further minor hits, of which Lady O, a Judy Sill composition, was the last single released with their approval. Many of these later singles were included on their More Golden Hits album along with two previously unissued tracks:- We Ain't Going To The Party and Cat In The Window. The first of these was intended for an album, Shell Shock, they were working on which was never released. Now heavily immersed in the flower-power movement they were recording numerous deranged tapes which White Whale wouldn't release. The record company continued to release their own choice of material but none of it met with much success commercially and, in September 1970, the band disintegrated.

Volman and Kaylan both later joined The Mothers Of Invention, then in 1972 they worked as a duo first as Phlorescent Leech and Eddie and later as simply Flo and Eddie. Much of The Turtles' material has stood the test of time quite well, and whilst they were most successful as a folk-rock/harmony outfit The Turtles main significance for this book was as part of the flower-power movement, even though that movement was ultimately to prove their downfall.

Save The Turtles: The Turtles Greatest Hits is a 20-track hits collection handpicked by Mark Volman and Howard Kaylan who also contribute some entertaining sleevenotes, which reveal for instance that Elenore was intended as a send-off of Happy Together to get at their record company. All in all this is a good collection of their finest moments.

The nineties saw a spate of retrospective releases: Happy Together: The Best Of The Turtles (Music Club Records) 1991 in the UK: Elenore

		Dirty Ol' Man/This Weeks Children	(Date 2-1550) 1966

NB: α 'A' side as The Electras.

This was a continuation of The Electras, the top sixties band from Ely up in northeast Minnesota. Indeed, they had first recorded their best known song, Dirty Ol' Man, when they were The Electras. Both of these singles are now quite rare and sought-after.

Dirty Ol' Man has also turned up on Eva's Litter - Rare Tracks (LP) along with other Electras tracks due to the mistaken assumption that this was a Litter offshoot - not so, see The Electras entry.

Dirty Ol' Man has been compiled on 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 2 (7"), Acid Dreams Volume Two (LP) and Changes (LP). (VJ/MW/LP)

ALBUM: 1 FANTASTIC (GREATEST HITS BY EILRAHC ELDDEWT) (No label) 197? R2/R3

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Companion CR2) 2004 with bonus tracks.

Charlie Tweddle's rare, but really inept and stupid (intentionally!) local Bay Area album dates from circa 1974. The incredibly beautiful psychedelic gatefold sleeve belies the fact that the contents are largely sound snippets and crickets chirping in the night - the very epitome of a record whose impossible rarity is fully justified. 	I Want Her To Know/We Got Time	(Coral 62551) 1968

This was Buffalo, New York's answer to the Beatles judging by their brace of singles, which are manna for fans of Invasion-beat. All four sides are band originals, produced by Mike Jacobs and notable for keen two- and three-part vocal arrangements. In pre-Revolver days they surely would have cracked it but by 1967/68 they were probably considered 'old hat', making the title of their debut flip side cruelly apt. Lack of success meant that Decca/Coral lost interest but the band carried on with new personnel and eventually evolved into The Talas.

Constantino was inducted into the Buffalo Music Hall of Fame in 1983 and has reformed both the Tweeds and Talas since. (MW)

Four young Orlando teens started out in 1963 as The Emotions, playing youth clubs and school hops. Two years later, still only 16/17 years of age, they changed their name to The Twelfth Night and put out their own single on a label set up for them by friend Bob Benzing.

The following year they acquired a manager and another name change to Covington Tower. Maguire joined the USAF at this point and was replaced by Steve Jay (bassist for Weird Al Yankovic for over 20 years). Covington Tower lasted until 1969.

Grim Reaper, a charming lo-fi fuzzer with a frantic solo, is also on The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 1 (CD). The equally enchanting I Don't Believe You reappeared on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD). (MW/DHI/RM)

Rainbow/Bullfrog (Vault 948) 1969
Only Thing That's Wrong/Stallion Of Fate (Vault 961) 1970

NB: α A few copies came with a picture sleeve, which now command high prices.

Thought to be a Los Angeles band they were actually from Phoenix, Arizona and were known until late 1967 as the Bittersweets, releasing three locally successful and now sought-after singles before they added Ladd (from the Laser Beats) to the line-up and changed their name. Bennett was drafted in late 1967 and replaced by Randy Wells (ex-Sounds Incorporated/Solid Ground).

You Don't Remember was re-recorded when they signed to Vault in 1969. Their last single, Only Thing That's Wrong is a non-album country-rocker. The Sundazed EP features three of the four Caz single tracks - Clean Old Man does not appear on this release. Still, a welcome reissue and a chance to sample their earlier rampant fuzz-heavy-garage sounds that were somewhat diluted by the time of the album. The Sundazed CD contains all extant recordings by the band and is recommended.

Their album is predominantly bluesy with a splattering of sound effects. Its better tracks include Rainbow and It's All In My Head.

Compilation appearances include: Bullfrog (45 version) and Only Thing That's Wrong on Mindrocker, Vol. 13 (LP); You Don't Remember (45 version) on Psychedelic Disaster Whirl (LP) and An Overdose Of Heavy Psych (CD); and Stallion Of Fate on Filling The Gap (4-LP box). (VJ/MW)

This limited edition blue vinyl release was recorded by a bunch of crazy Californians based in Sebastopol, and will interest some readers. The album frequently appears in sales lists of the psych and garage recordings of this era, but it doesn't quite fit into either category. It does have a lo-fi production sound, expressive vocals and lots of guitar solos. They also utilised echoed vocals and laughter to good effect. It all comes together best on the nine-minute finale, Sleeping In A Technical Bed. They existed as a band in northern California since the late sixties. (VJ/MW)

45: My Love Bathes In Silence/Generation 70 (Philips 40677) 1970

This is a decent and inexpensive psych-pop album with tracks like The Finest Poet, She Catches Me Running and the strange My Love Bathes In Silence (What No Rubber Duckie?), also issued on a single. The duo were backed in the studio by session players including Drake Levin (Paul Revere and The Raiders, Friendsound, Brotherhood, Cosmic Travelers), Larry Knechtel, Mark Tulin (Electric Prunes), and Rusty Young (Poco).

If I Knew You Were The One is a good dreamy pop-psych ballad that has resurfaced on Fading Yellow, Vol. 7 (CD). (SR/VJ)

Appearing on the Jerden label suggests that The Twiggs were a Pacific Northwest band, but the single was engineered by Arnie Rosenberg who was based in Cleveland, Ohio at the time. Flowers And Beads is a tame cover of Iron Butterfly but they let rip on the flip - Moon Maiden is hard-rock with a rich vein of fuzz and wah-wah throughout. 45:	Nothing Can Bring Me Down/I Need You	(Mark VII 1023) 1968

The Twilighters hailed from Waco in Texas. Nothing Can Bring Me Down is a strong song with effective vocals, superb fuzz guitar, great lyrics and catchy chorus... "Well my mind is so messed up, nothing can bring me down, Nothing is strong enough, to save me now..."

Nothing Can Bring Me Down later appeared on Austin Landing, Vol. 2 (LP), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD), Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP), Gone, Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Experience (CD). Highly recommended. (VJ)

Yet another Twilighters, their album was released on the same label as Easy Chair, and some of the band members attended the Washington State School for the Blind in Vancouver, Washington. Their records are often found with braille lettering on the covers or labels. According to this album's liner notes, Dave High was the only sighted member of the group. The album includes two killer cuts, which also featured on their first single, Out Of My Mind and I Need Your Loving. Otherwise the material consists of middle-of-the-road songs including Winchester Cathedral, Hello Dolly, Truck Driving Man, Fiesta In Acapulco, Kansas City and My Heart Is An Open Book. They issued additional records which are in a straight country direction and therefore fall outside the remit of this book. (SR/VJ)

45:	She's There/Take What I Got	(Parrot 45013) 1965

This North Miami trio issued one fine Searchers-flavoured single. She's There, a sultry beat ballad, is backed by a chiming Joe Tex cover.

A few months later Steve Palmer brought the Moss brothers together with Travis and Coventry Fairchild and named them the Clefs of Lavender Hill. (MW/JLh)

NB: α shown as by The Twiliters with Bill Kennedy.

These Invasion-influenced garage rock'n'rollers came from upstate New York. Bill Kennedy, an air policeman stationed at Plattsburgh Air Force base, had heard Johnny Kidd & The Pirates' Shakin' All Over while on tour-of-duty in Europe.

He met up with Peter Guibord, who had set up the town's Empire label in 1962, and they assembled a band to back Kennedy from the local talent. A trio of Mersey-infused releases duly appeared in 1964-5, including a cover of the Cliff Richard hit Move It and their own sultry Mersey-beat number The Girl From Liverpool.

Compilation appearances include: The Girl From Liverpool on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 2: You Treated Me Bad (LP & CD); Move It on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 11 (LP & CD) and It's Finkin' Time! (LP); (Everybody's Goin' To) Rollerland on *Wild! CD:	1	TWIN ENGINE	(Rev-Ola CRREV57) 2004

NB: (1) also issued on CD (Sound City Music 9019) 2004.

This was a short-lived L.A. duo that included Randy Naylor (Poor/ Ballroom) and also featured guest players such as Chris Hillman, Clarence White, Randy Fuller, Michael Clarke, etc. The CD features 12 songs recorded by Twin Engine in 1971 for a projected United Artists album, but they didn't see the light of day until 2004! The music has feel of 1970 particularly in the guitar sound of Give My Love A Chance, The Time Is Now, and Mistress Of The Morning, indeed a riff in Time Is Now seems very similar to part of Neil Young's Cowgirl In The Sand. Overall the album has nice harmonies but lacks originality. The musical menu comprises soft pop with taints of psychedelia and Americana, and the album will appeal to fans of West Coast music. (VJ)

Oh What A Lovely Day (Decca 32353) 1968
I Think I Know Him/Turn Down Day (Decca 32403) 1968

The identical Hopkins twins came from Helena, Montana originally, but this album seems to have been recorded in New York City. Dressed in trendy Ivy League suits and backed by many musicians from the Carolyn Hester Coalition, this album is very lavishly arranged/produced but consists of very lightweight easy-listening fodder. The lyrics are mainly innocent, groovy love/teen anthems. Notable for the version of The Cyrkle hit Turn Down Day (Jerry Keller/Dave Blume), this also features some fine guitar work by Steve Wolfe, but overall it is pretty dispensable.

Produced by Jerry Keller, all selections were written and arranged by Jerry Keller and Dave Blume.

After Twinn Connexion, Jay became a metal trader for various companies including Prudential and Merrill Lynch. He was a vice president of the latter when he died in September 2001 of heart failure. (CP/SR)

Released on one of the rock subsidiary labels of Motown, this album was one of the last known productions by Tom Wilson. It's composed of melodic tunes with vocal harmonies plus strummed acoustic guitars and an electric backing provided by famous session men (Jim Keltner, Mike Rubini, Ray Neopolitan, Joe Osborne), etc. The material recalls the style of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, but it tends to be rather tedious. The best tracks can be found on the single. (SR)

A Daytona Beach, Florida band that acquired several members of The Hungry I's (Haney, Dresser and Citrullo) after that band folded in 1968.

In April 1967, they released All Cried Out, a slow bluesy number, backed by 2/3 Baby, a cantering beat-punk number with a nifty bass and piano motif. The latter can be heard again on Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD).

A late sixties outfit from Burlington, Iowa. They were active during 1967-68 and played at venues like 'The Club', 'Spider Web' and 'Chatter Box' as well as participating in several 'Battle Of The Bands'. Their music was an amalgam of both prog and psych with prominent organ. They parted two months after their January 1969 single was released.

The members of this garage-punk combo all attended north-western Regional High School in Winsted, Connecticut. They recorded an acetate in 1966 which consisted of Cry For The Trees backed by Land Of 1,000 Dances but it got next to no airplay and with their recording career never taking off they concentrated on their popularity as a live band giving many of the hits of the era their own rather unique garage-punk interpretation. 22 years later Land Of 1,000 Dances made vinyl on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP). This high school quintet from Chino, California formed in 1965. Their debut single appeared in 1967, the reward for winning a local 'Battle Of The Bands' contest. Given their name, one might have expected kerosene-fuelled hot-rod instrumentals, yet they cranked out some decent suburban garage-beat.

For the follow-up they were rebranded The Young Californians, not exactly a contemporary name, it sounds more like a beach/surf group. Still, their sound was on the button - slick L.A. garage-pop with a flowery fringe. Their third effort in 1969 was released as by Buffalo Nickel. Sadly, by then the first psychedelic era was pretty well over ... so their light pop-psych missed the boat. (MW)

	(Just Like) Romeo and Juliet/ Some Days You Just Can't Wait	(MGM 14023) 1969

Originally known as Underground Cinema, this band was discovered by producer Alan Lorber, who changed their name and signed them to MGM. Part of the emerging 'Bosstown Sound' of 1968, they were the brainchild of group member Ian Bruce-Douglas, who also wrote all the material on their first two albums. Barbara Hudson's beautiful voice gave the group a distinctive vocal sound.

Their debut album was a very trippy affair. The double fold-out cover contained highly pretentious sleeve-notes by Bruce-Douglas. This pretentiousness was evident, too, in the album's lyrics. For example, its opening track Ego Trip begins:

"Mindless credence
Gropes through idiosyncrasies
Up - rising up
Down ... (echoes)"
(from Ego Trip)

and again at the beginning of the Hip Death Goddess, which captures Hudson's vocals at their best:

"See the glazed eyes
Touch the dead skin
Feel the cold lips
And know the warmth
Of the Hip Death Goddess".
(from Hip Death Goddess)

Instrumental numbers, like Sacrifice Of The Moon, sound similar to their equivalents on the early Country Joe and The Fish albums. The album is liberally endowed with wind chimes, bells and sound effects and the lyrics are tailored with flower-power mythology:

"I saw a funny freak parade
Marching down the street
They were acting very strange
Kissing everybody they meet
With eyeballs hanging out of their eyes
And daffodils in their hands
Someone asked what's happening here?"
(from Funny Freak Parade)

ULTIMATE SPINACH - Behold And See LP.

ULTIMATE SPINACH
STEREO

ULTIMATE SPINACH - Self Titled (3rd) LP.

The final track, Pamela, which has a similar wind chimes intro to Country Joe's Grace, is intended to illustrate 'the intense beauty that can be seen and felt if one's senses are fully employed'. Once again acid was the inspiration behind those lyrics:

"Moonbeams and sapphires
Vibrate as one
I hear prisms
Crystal rainbows fill my sky
Shattered, they glisten
And blind the sun."
(from Pamela)

The album met with considerable commercial success peaking at No. 34 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Their follow-up album, Behold And See was in a similar vein. The lyrics were less impressionable, though, and their music had become more mystical, particularly on the excellent Genesis Of Beauty Suite and Fragmentary Marches Of The Green. Other tracks like Mind Flowers, may be seen as an extension of themes from their earlier album. Once again, Barbara's vocals glisten with beauty. This reached No. 198 in the Album Charts. Be aware that on the Big Beat CD the tracks are resequenced and Visions of Your Reality has been dropped, leaving this track unissued on CD prior to Akarma's box set. Both albums are classic acid-rock period pieces and highly recommended, if one can excuse their more pretentious trappings.

Bruce-Douglas' departure after their second album had a profound effect on the band's musical direction. All the material on the third album, apart from the opening cut Romeo and Juliet, was written by the new band and lacked the imagination of Bruce-Douglas' work. For the third album, Jeff Baxter, who later had a spell with Steely Dan, came in on lead guitar and Ted Myers and Tony Scheuren joined from Boston label-mates Chamaeleon Church. Curiously, Mike Levine, who was listed as bassist didn't actually play on the record. Tom Caulfield who had been a lifelong pal of Mike's and who'd previously played for the soul group The Three Degrees, instead played impeccable bass and a super harp solo on Eddie's Rush, the blues jam that concludes side one. Only Barbara Hudson remained from the original line-up, and although their final album is overall less interesting, it is still worth hearing.

Also of interest is a limited edition live album The Unicorn. Only 50 copies of this album were pressed, it was issued in a plain textured dark green cover. The recording is from late 1967, at Boston's Unicorn Coffeehouse. The songs include covers of Hey Joe and Get Together, a long version of Hip Death Goddess and an extended freak-out entitled Rush. Fans of the band may be interested in checking out neo-psych/acid-goth band Babylonian Tiles cover of Hip Death Goddess, which appears on the St. Thomas Records sampler CD Saints & Sorcerers Vol. 2 - It's even been approved by Ian Bruce-Douglas as "fulfilling his vision of 'Hip Death Goddess' personified"... Hip Death Goddess has also been covered by Lithium X-Mas (on their Bad Karma and Helldorado CDs).

Ultimate Spinach also appear on a couple of compilations: the The Best Of Bosstown Sound (2-CD) features (Ballad Of) The Hip Death Goddess, Baroque #1, Fragmentary March Of Green, The World Has Just Begun, Happiness Child and Eddie's Rush; and the Family Circle - Family Tree (CD) contains Back Door Blues and Happiness Child. Finally, a live version of (Ballad Of) The Hip Death Goddess features on the CD that came free with Timemazine # fanzine. (VJ/MS/JMe/MW)

From Detroit Lakes in northwest Minnesota The Unbelievable Uglies were one of the State's most popular live acts. Their shows were wild and unpredictable, centred around Winston Fink and their singles are not too hard to find. Bobby Vee produced their fourth single and Spider Man which is usually considered to be their finest moment, is best described as an organ-led up-tempo punker.

Dave Hoffman and Mike Gilson later recorded an album and single with Friendship, whilst Alan St. Pierre also recorded a solo single in 1967. Bob Eveslage also released a single using the pseudonym Robby Jay in 1966. All this underscores the depth of their musical talent. The original band folded in 1972.

Bob Eveslage now resides in New Ulm, Minnesota and still writes and records music. He was the founding member of The Unbelievable Uglies: "The other four original members were Dave Hoffman (Winston Fink) on stand-up electric bass, Greg Paul on lead guitar, Mike Shannon on drums, Dave Prentice (a very, very funny front man who worked hand-in-hand with Winston), and me on the keyboards. Al Spears was a later addition, and a very good R&B vocalist. Members came and went, but the five of us held the band together for about 11 years."

Bob also took a couple of years out of the group, when he moved to Seattle, "I was part owner of a studio and with a studio group called Today we had a single on Jerry Dennon's label called We've Been A Bad, Bad Boy. After a couple of years I came back to the Uglies and Minnesota. The original members are all still living in the Minnesota area and are doing different things. All but Greg are still involved with music as a profession."

Bob had a single released in 1987 on the Clowd label, which was partly run by the late Fred Heggeness (the well-known record collector and author from Detroit Lakes). Entitled You're The Only One (Patty's Song) and written for his wife, it received quite a bit of airplay in the upper Midwest. The flip was recorded by Dan Holt with Bob on backing instruments and was an old Ral Donner cover entitled You Don't Know What You've Got (Until You Lose It).

Gone but not forgotten, in 2004 they were inducted into the Rock & Country Hall of Fame and in 2005 Bob Eveslage reformed the band. Yeah, unbelievable!

A teen pop quartet from LaCrosse, Wisconsin whose best moment is a cover of Traffic's Hole In My Shoe, compiled on Everywhere Chainsaw Sound 1 (LP). The fuzz lead gives it a garage flavour and they replace the little-lost-girl-vocal passage with a rambling keyboard solo. Their dynamic version of Wayne Cochran's Going Back To Miami is worth hearing; the rest of their output is light pop.

	Let's Be Happy/Lover Boy	(National 19241) 1967

This Coralville, Iowa outfit was fronted by Larry Barrett, the son of a major Midwest jazz musician and DJ, whose earlier band had been The Countdowns. Apparently the new Uncle and The Anteaters name was the suggestion of a drunk at a frat party! Kathy Ran Around has a typical mid-sixties Farfisa organ solo and sincere vocals, Lover Boy contains some nice layered harmonies and Let's Be Happy, a much slicker song than the other two, is an attempt at Turtles-style rock. All three songs have resurfaced on the Dirty Water (LP) compilation and are well worth a listen. Barrett was later in the XL's and Rox (a post-Daybreakers project).

45:	Spy Girl/ Hold On (comes with lyric sheet)	(Blue Onion BO-103) 1967

Uncle Sam and the War Machine was from Springfield/Amherst area of Massachusetts. Although how they came to record for a label based in Cleveland, Ohio is unknown. Spy Girl is an upbeat popper that's somewhere between garage and bubblegum sounds - it also borrows from Wild Thing. Hold On is a pleasantly haunting garage - folk-rocker.

Greg Bullen went on to found a band called Bald Mountain Road, consisting of blues and honky tonk. He was a killer piano player. US & the WM also once opened for Frank Zappa at Fillmore East. There were a lot of strange double bills in those days.

You'll also find Spy Girl on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box) and The Magic Cube (CD); and Hold On on From The New World Vol. 1 (LP). (MW/JSr)

45:	Make Her Cry/I Never Forgot Her	(Dearborn 542) 1966

A garage punk outfit from Dearborn, Michigan whose Make Her Cry is highly-rated by many, with great catchy vocals and typical "girl put-down" lyrics.

You can also check out Make Her Cry on Mind Blowers Vol. 1 (LP), Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 1 (LP) and Michigan Mayhem Vol. 1 (CD); and I Never Forgot Her on Highs In The Mid-Sixties Vol. 5 (LP). (VJ)

	Surprise Surprise/ Get Down On Your Knees	(Hideout 1011) 1966	-
	Love's Gone Bad/Mo Jo Hanna	(VIP 25040) 1966	122

This popular sixties band came from Grosse Pointe, one of the richer Detroit suburbs, in Michigan. They were one of the top live attractions at the Hideout teen club which was run by local promoters Dave Leone and Ed ‘Punch’ Andrews. To promote them further Dave Leone decided to put them onto vinyl. He got a poem from a ‘friend’, put it to music and the result, Man In The Glass was issued as the first single on Hideout. It was energetically promoted and picked up by Reprise for national distribution, but when Leone later discovered the lyrics were taken from a poem used at Alcoholics Anonymous he had to stop plugging it.

In 1965, the Hideout club label issued the sampler album Best Of The Hideouts (LP) (Hideout 1002), which saw a limited vinyl reissue in 1990 - it features Friday At The Hideout, Man In The Glass, Surprise Surprse and Get Down On Your Knees.

Thereafter, they became the first white act to sign for Motown. Love's Gone Bad issued on the VIP subsidiary was quite a popular cover of the Chris Clark composition and actually made No. 122 in the U.S. Charts. Some members would form Nickel Plate Express.

Other compilation coverage has so far included: Get Down On Your Knees, Don't Pretend, The Man In The Glass, Friday At The Hideout and Surprise, Surprise on Best of Hideout Records (CD); Love's Gone Bad on Nuggets, Vol. 6 - Punk (LP) and Nuggets Box (4-CD); Man In The Glass and Love's Gone Bad on Michigan Brand Nuggets (2-LP) and Michigan Nuggets (CD); Friday At The Hideout and Don't Pretend on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP); Surprise, Surprise on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 5 (LP) and Michigan Mayhem Vol. 2 (CD); and Friday At The Hideout, Little Girl, Don't Pretend, The Man In The Glass and Surprise, Surprise on Friday At The Hideout (CD). The Underground (?)

ALBUM: 1 PSYCHEDELIC VISIONS (Mercury Wing WC-16337) 1967 SC

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Gear Fab GF-242) 2010, along with More Psychedelic Guitars.

On this album a group of unknown musicians do fuzzed-up instrumental cover versions of classics like Psychotic Reaction, Shout, Tobacco Road, Turn On Your Love Lite and We Ain't Got Nothing Yet, along with five originals; Psychedelic Dream, Psychotic Vibrations, Mind Jammer and Psychedelic Visions and The Warper (which are all written by Merk Currie). It's not a bad album.

You'll also find Psychotic Reaction on Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Relics, Vol. 1 (LP). (VJ/MW)

THE UNDERGROUND - Psychedelic Visions LP.

Produced in Hollywood by Kim Fowley and housed in a magnificent Rick Griffin skull cover, this album contains covers of Beatles songs (Get Back, Norwegian Wood), a Dylan track (I'll Be Your Baby Tonight), plus Stax material (Grab This Thing, Don't Fight It, The Hunter, You Don't Know Like I Know) and Louie Louie. The only original song is Fowley's Happy Meadow Trail Dance. Kim Fowley sings on some tracks. (CF/SR)

45s:	(Heart) Made Of Soul/Grass In Grenner	(Scope XX1/2) 1967
	Where Can I Go/The Musicians	(Music Factory 101) 1971

This Pennsylvania outfit was previously known as The Balloon Corps and before that The Snaps. Both sides of their debut were written by Hummel; (Heart) Made Of Soul is a restrained keyboard-driven punker, which has resurfaced on Let's Dig 'Em Up Vol. 3 (LP), Let's Dig 'Em Up Vol. 1 (CD) and Teen Blast Volume # 2 (CD). Grass Is Greener (the typos above are as on the label) is a Cascades-meets-Everlys harmony-ballad.

It's not a dead cert that the second single is by the same group. Apart from a four year recording gap, there's no mention of Hummel. It was touted as 'psych' but certainly isn't. Where Can I Go? (composed by Orr) is full of dramatic keyboard swells and hard prog-rock moves, not unlike Salisbury-era Uriah Heep. The Musicians (composed by Bott, Hage & Orr) is similar in style with hard, fuzzy riffs. (MW)

Underground Cinema (MA)

	SKIP TULL	A

Myths have abounded about a pre-Ultimate Spinach outfit thought to have been known as Underground Cinema. In 1996 Arf! Arf!'s New England Teen Scene Unreleased 1965 - 68 (CD) finally uncovered some proof - two 7" acetates featuring Blackbird, Sunday Morning, Where Has Time Gone To and Moondog Blues (the first three appear on the CD).

Recorded at AAA studios in Dorchester, Massachusetts by Bruce-Douglas, Tull and others in 1967, a set of the acetates survived thanks to Al Lorusso (of The Bourbons). They were given to him in appreciation of his loan of equipment for the session. Whether they used the name Underground Cinema is still unconfirmed. Other musicians rumoured to be involved include guitarists Richie Bartlett (Brother Fox and Tar Baby, the Fools) and Steven Cataldo (Saint Steven, Nervous Eaters) who recorded as the Front Page Review around the same time. (MW/ELn)

The Underground Electrics (CA)

ALBUM:	1	HEY JUDE	(Crown CST-588) 1968

Here's another exploito-album from the budget label that issued The Firebirds, aka The 31 Flavors.

The contents bear little resemblance to the sleeve - a paisley-bedecked hippie chick sitting cross-legged with arms aloft. After the Beatles' cover with plastic beaker vocals, the remainder is a strong selection of heavy blues-rock in the style of Cream and Led Zeppelin's first album, exploiting the legacy of the likes of Robert Johnson, John Lee Hooker and Elmore James (Crossroads, Boogie Chillun and Dust My Blues). Connors and Little were both from Montello, Wisconsin; whilst the other two members were German. They first attracted attention when their cover of Lennon-McCartney's Birthday made the U.S. Top 30. Their album has become a minor collectors' item and actually made No. 161 in the U.S. Album Charts back in 1969. 9 To 5 (Ain't My Bag) also appears on I'm Trippin' Alone (LP) and Take Me, Break Me is also on Soft Sounds For Gentle People (CD).

Their full story is told in 'Do You Hear That Beat' (Hummingbird, 1994, ISBN 0-9643073-9-1) by Gary Myers, who provided the personnel details above. (VJ/MW)

This A&M label album never made it past the test-pressing stage. It's a typical West Coast effort with acidic guitar and male/female vocals etc, in the mould of It's A Beautiful Day and Tripsichord Music Box.

First reissued on vinyl by the Fanny label in Belgium, Akarma has now reissued the album on vinyl in a fine art sleeve and the CD is in a mini-gatefold sleeve. (VJ)

ALBUM: 1 UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

An obscure mellow pop-psych offering with male/female vocals and some horns on tracks like Step Out On The Sea or There's A Light Within Me. The album is of interest mostly for the anti-cult number Forget Your Hexagram and the fuzzy version of Mother Freedom.

Fourmost also released an album by the Trust Company. (SR)

This was another of Texas' classic punk singles. Unchain My Heart, a Ray Charles cover, is a classic punk version, whilst the flip is in a garage-psych vein. The single was recorded at Cox Studios in Amarillo.

Compilation appearances have included: Unchain My Heart on Off The Wall, Vol. 1 (LP), Texas Psychedelic Punk, Vol. 11 (Metal Acetate #4), Flashback, Vol. 3 (LP) and Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 3 (LP & CD); and Unchain' My Heart and It's My Time on Texas Punk Groups From The Sixties (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 2 (CD) and Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). 45s: Searching/The Reason Why (PH 110) 1967
Love So Dear/Loneliness To Happiness (PH 115) 1968

These garage beat-ballads were the work of an Orlando, Florida band. Charming but unexceptional, they were at least a year out-of-date when they were released. The group also backed H. F. Gore on No One Will Ever Know/Washington Report (PH 117), a mediocre country recording.

Searching originally appeared on the local 1967 sampler Bee Jay Demo, Vol. 2 (LP). Retrospective compilation appearances have included: Love So Dear on Pebbles, Vol. 17 (LP); and Searchin' on Acid Dreams Volume Two (LP) and Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW/JLh/RM)

45: Rosalyn/Double Shot (Scene No #) 1966

This band is thought to have been based in Honolulu, Hawaii thanks to its contribution of three tracks to the rare album, Live At The Funnyfarm - Rosalyn, Bye Bye Johnny and Stupid Girl. Other artists featured thereon are the Casuals, Manchesters Spirits and Val Richards V.

Rosalyn has since appeared on Diana's Rootin' Tootin' Wild Teenage Rock 'N' Roll Party! (LP), Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 14 (LP & CD) and on Grab This And Dance!!! (LP). (MW)

The Undertakers (PA)

Here's another Undertakers, this time from the Philadelphia area. They don't appear to have released any singles but laid down two tracks at the Sound Plus Studios in 1967 which were preserved on a Frankfort/Wayne acetate - Can't Break Away and Little Girl.

You'll find Little Girl on Crude PA, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW)

Composed by David Dalton, this album was the work of a studio group organised by Audio Fidelity records from New York City. The album has been likened to The Deep on a bad day and is recommended to those who find bad records great! Side one - Acid Rock - includes Play Your Game, which is the most commercial track and can also be found on the Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD). Side two - Meditations - is really weird, full of strange chantings on tracks like Prana (an excerpt from this is the 'Bonus track' on Pebbles, Vol. 3 - The Acid Gallery (LP)): Electric Buddha; Hare Krishna; and Parable. The album came with an order form for a "Freak-Out Party Accessory Kit" said to include incense, sunglasses, decals, bells, etc., all for $1.00! The liner notes are very much of their era. (VJ/MW)

CD: 1(A) THE COSMIC STORYTELLER (Platform CD 4780) 2005

Folkie guitarist Young left Detroit for L.A. in late 1965, where he met up with his drummer cousin Parker. Other encounters led to the formation of Unicorn who began to developing a varied repertoire. In the fall of '66 they appeared at the Hullabaloo, and there are rumours of a Fillmore appearance too. In 1967 they recorded their concept album but all was not peace and love that year - the band broke up and their magnum opus was never released; the 'lost' master tapes were not relocated until 1999 (for full details go to: www.cosmicstoryteller.com).

The title track is encouraging; a sitar intro bursts into a driving pop-rocker. Sadly it's nearly all downhill from there - the album is slickly-produced, orchestrated, mainstream pop-rock with folkie overtones and a variety of styles, at one point even straying into MOR crooner territory. Anyone touting this as 'psych' is out of order. Just because it was unreleased and 'lost' doesn't mean it's suddenly become 'brilliant' or 'legendary' - buyers beware of the attendant hype to avoid inevitable disappointment. (MW)

Good Things/To Be Unkind (UME 101) 1968

A Houston band, whose forte was bright 'n' bouncey beat-pop with good harmonies as on the Orbit and Radel singles. The exception is Love??, written by Steve Hitt, which is rather special. It's a trippy garage-ballad, with a droning quality, on a frequency that can precipitate goosebumps, with doomy chimes and haunting Cryan' Shames-like backing vocals. Leavin' In The Morning (Columbia 45678) 1972 -

NB: α shown as by Gary Puckett and The Union Gap.

From San Diego, California but they were named after a town in Washington State, The Union Gap was a commercially successful pop-rock group in the same style as the American Breed or the later Paul Revere and The Raiders. Like this band, they were also wore old army uniforms and their lead singer gradually took the control of the group, who after 1969 became known as "Gary Puckett and The Union Gap". Their finest moments were Young Girl and Lady Willpower, which showcased Puckett's superb vocals.

GARY PUCKETT & THE UNION GAP'S GREATEST HITS

Puckett was born on 17 October 1942 in Hibbing, Minnesota. He grew up mostly in Yakima, Washington and started playing guitar as a teenager and then featured in various lifetime bands whilst at college in San Diego. He then had a spell with hard-rock group The Outcasts. After cutting a demo in LA they were signed by CBS producer Jerry Fuller on condition that they lean more towards a soft-rock sound. They were re-named Union Gap and recorded their debut single Woman Woman in August 1967. It was a No. 4 hit and became a million-seller in February 1968.

Then in spring 1968, the Union Gap achieved their biggest hit, Young Girl, an ageless ballad about temptation of underage romance: "My love for you is way out of line/you better run, girl, you're much too young, girl". Further hits followed Lady Willpower, Over You, and Don't Give In To Him but by now the band was feeling restricted by CBS's prescribed ballad format and wanted to write their own material. In 1969, Fuller assembled a 40-piece studio orchestra for a new song he had written, but the band refused to record it. The session was ultimately canceled, and Fuller never again worked with the group.

The Dick Glasser-produced This Girl Is A Woman Now would be their last Top 20 hit. The follow-up, Let's Give Adam And Eve Another Chance, bombed and Chater and Withem left the band. Bement assumed bass duties, keyboardist Barry McCoy and horn player Richard Gabriel were added, and gospel vocalists the Eddie Kendrick Singers also signed on. The Civil War gear was removed, but things did not get better. In 1970, Puckett began recording solo, but his efforts weren't particularly successful; the Union Gap remained his live backing unit, but was sacked following an appearance at the 1971 Orange County Fair. Puckett's contract with CBS was terminated one year later.

Puckett continued his solo career, but by 1973 he opted for acting and dance rather than continuing to pursue a music career. Despite participating in theatrical productions in and around L.A., his acting career never really took off, so in 1984 he became part of a oldies package tour. In 1986 he opened for The Monkees on their 20th Anniversary tour, and he has continued as a revival circuit figure since. Chater relocated to Nashville, where he worked as a songwriter. Bement later joined Flash Cadillac And The Continental Kids, while Wheatbread became a concert promotion and Withem returned to San Diego.

There are a number of compilations, some of which are detailed in the discography. (VJ/SR)

Pop-punk outfit The Uniques came from Springhill, Louisiana and Texas and enjoyed some national chart success. Ronnie Weiss was later briefly involved with the band after his spell in Rio Grande before reforming Mouse And The Traps. Uniquely Yours has a garage feel and all the material is penned by Joe Stampley who later became a country star. 45: Hard Love Coming/
Osamus Birthday (PS) (Sundazed KS704) 200?

NB: Pressed on yellow vinyl.

Joe Byrd, who master-minded this group of experimental California musicians, was born in Louisville, Kentucky. He is a descendant of the famous Byrd family of Virginia and he grew up in Tucson, Arizona. During high school years, he played in country-and-western and pop music bands, but by the time he entered the University of Arizona he had begun playing vibes with a jazz group.

After graduation, Byrd received Stanford University's Sollnit Fellowship for graduate study composition, but Byrd chose to split for New York, where he had already begun listening to electronic music and meeting far-out Berkeley composers. While there, he worked as a conductor, arranger, teacher and assistant to critic-composer Virgil Thompson. It was during this era that he developed his interest in experimental music and his works were often performed abroad.

Influenced by events in California in the late sixties, he decided to quit New York and head for the University of California at Los Angeles. Here he worked as a teaching assistant, also finding time to study acoustics, psychology and Indian music. He eventually dropped out of UCLA to work full-time on his musical enterprises. After working on Phil Ochs' Pleasures Of The Harbor, he put together The United States Of America, whose other main asset was vocalist (and Byrd's ex-girlfriend) Dorothy Moskowitz, who possessed possibly one of the most attractive singing voices in rock. Other original members included political radical Michael Agnello and bassist Stu Brotman, but both left before the band signed to Columbia with Brotman joining Kaleidoscope.

The group's sole album was erratic but often brilliant, with Byrd and Moskowitz writing most of the music and lyrics between them. Opening track, The American Metaphysical Circus parodied Sergeant Pepper and the unusual, but commercial I Won't Leave My Wooden Wife For You, Sugar became well-known here in England by virtue of its inclusion on the CBS compilation The Rock Machine Turns You On (LP).

Overall the album was one of the most successful attempts to marry experimental electronic music with rock lyrics. Instruments used included a Durrett synthesizer and Tom Oberheim's ring modulator, an electric violin and an unfretted bass. The beauty of the lyrics was matched by the excellence of Moskowitz's voice on tracks like Cloud Song and Love Song For The Dead Che.

Other tracks like The Garden Of Earthly Delights and Coming Down appear drug-inspired:

"Poisonous gardens, lethal and sweet
Venomous blossoms
Choleric fruit deadly to eat
Violet nightshades, innocent bloom
Omnivorous orchids
Cautiously wait, hungrily loom
You will find them in her eyes,
In her eyes, In her eyes"
(from Garden Of Earthly Delights)

"I think it's over now, I think it's ending
I think it's over now, I think it's ending
A thought of coloured clouds all high above my head
A trip that doesn't need a ticket or a bed
And everything is smelling sweeter than the rose"
(from Coming Down)

The album is a minor collectors' item, but has also been reissued. It climbed as high as No. 181 in the U.S. Album Charts when it was first released. The cover was originally planned to be an American flag dripping with blood but, understandably, Columbia bailed out of the idea.

Live, the band played an exact reproduction of the album but had trouble getting suitable gigs. One, in which they were paired with The Troggs, was an unmitigated disaster and they also had an ill-tempered coupling with The Velvet Underground (in fact, after leaving the Velvets, Nico tried to join the USA). In addition, tension between band members was rife, with Byrd, who the album's producer David Rubinson describes as "one of the most insane examples of a control freak that I've, to this day, ever experienced", attempting fruitlessly to dictate policy to the other strong personalities in the band. Every rehearsal became, in Byrd's words, "group therapy". When three of them were busted for marijuana at a gig in Orange County, California, only Byrd and Moskowitz remained and they soon split into two factions with each leading their own group.

After the group split, Byrd made a further album with a bunch of 12 musicians called The Field Hippies. Although not as successful as the USA album, this was a strange voyage into the world of mystical and quasi-religious music. Once again he found three female vocalists - Susan de Lange, Victoria Bond and Christie Thompson - with seductive voices. The lyrics often paralleled themes on the earlier album.

"Waitin' to die for the seventeenth time
Etched on a mirror in the back of your mind
Trapped on a mountain nobody can climb
You can't ever come down..."
(from You Can't Ever Come Down)

Susan de Lange's beautiful rendering of Moonsong-Peloc paralleled the Cloud Song on the earlier album. Victoria's beautiful Patriot's Lullaby was in similar vein, but unfortunately most of the material on side two failed to again the same standard.

Today, Joe Byrd is a recognised composer and arranger who plays electronic music, organ, electric harpsichord and, occasionally, calliope. In 1975, he released a synthesizer album, Yankee Trancendoodle and followed this with Xmas Yet To Come in 1980. In 1978, Byrd also co-produced Ry Cooder's Jazz album, with Stuart Brotman on bass.

The retrospective Sundazed single is interesting. It contains two previously unissued versions of works-in-progress, both recorded live in the studio and also featuring violinist Gordon Marron, bassist Rand Forbes and drummer Craig Woodson. Hard Coming Love, raw and rocking here, became a highlight of the band's only album. The flip features Osamus Birthday, whose eerie vocal track was sung phonetically backwards by Moskowitz, then reversed, creating an other-worldly effect.

You'll also find The Garden Of Earthly Delights on Psychedelic Dream: A Collection of '60s Euphoria (2-LP). (VJ/LP/SR)

Wonderful folk-rockers from Portland, Oregon The United Travel Service landed a distribution deal through the New York-based Rust label. Both sides of their first single are excellent soft psych-rock songs, Wind And Stone being a classic 'back to the wilds' theme song with a glorious spirit-lifting raga-esque break, and lyrics reflecting the rejection of "the plastic society". The Gypsy Eyes single contains two more melodic folk-rockers with the odd effect and is full of dewey-eyed romantic yearning.

The Break-A-Way CD compiles their rare singles, along with five more, previously unreleased studio recordings, plus three home demos. There's also a detailed history of the band stuffed with rare photos and labels from the member's scrapbook. This is all contained on a four-page album sized insert printed on fully glossy paper.

NB: It's Unfair and It's Not Fair are the same song. α recorded June '67. Story Of My Life + 5 (Sundazed SEP10-167) (102) 2003 includes their entire output and is a vinyl-only release.

A stunning outfit from Detroit, Michigan who may be the only band in history to take their name from economics jargon. Ron Stults had earlier been in a band called the High Tones who had opened for the Four Seasons in 1963. After they broke up, he joined classmate Rory Mack in the Village Beau's, but after their demise in September 1966, Rory invited him to be lead singer in a new band he was forming. This became The Unrelated Segments.

The band had only been together for about 10 days when they recorded Story Of My Life on 26th November 1966. The song, a rather interesting fast-tempo rocker, went Top 10 in Detroit and the 'Segments became one of the more popular live acts in the City, playing gigs with Bob Seger, Terry Knight and The Pack, SRC, Frost, and the MC5. In 1968, they supported The Who in concert, with The Amboy Dukes opening for the show. Their second stunning single, Where You Gonna Go? was unfortunately released the month of the Detroit race riots when the city was virtually shut down so sales were limited. After the release of their long-delayed third single, Cry Cry Cry, Andy was fired because of differences with the band's manager, Louis Torock (John's father). Six months later Barry was drafted and shipped out to Vietnam and the band changed their name to U.S. and recorded two songs, including the infectious Hey Love with its get down soul-groove. Shortly after, Rory decided to leave the music business for good and by the end of 1969 the band decided to call it quits.

All five of their compositions were composed by Mack (music) and Stults (lyrics) and are collected together on S.V.R. Rock Hits Of The Sixties (LP & CD) and on Eva's Swamp Rats vs. Unrelated Segments (LP) compilation. The Collectables CD, however, is the best compilation of their output, including all three of their singles, the two U.S. recordings, alternate backing-tracks for three songs, five post-U.S. Ron Stults tracks (sounding a lot like Blue Cheer), as well as six tracks by SVR stable mates, the Tidal Waves - all in excellent sound and with extensive sleevenotes and band photos.

Ron Stults went on to form the Lost Nation whose album Paradise Lost is pretty decent progressive rock. He now claims to have written over 2,000 (!) songs.

Its Gonna Rain has been covered by eighties garage-psych act The Broken Jug on their William album.

Other retrospective compilation appearances have included: Cry Cry Cry on Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD), The Magic Cube (Flexi), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (LP) and Garage Kings (2-LP); Where You Gonna Go? on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD), Michigan Brand Nuggets (2-LP), Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part II (LP), Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Michigan Nuggets (CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); Story Of My Life on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP & CD), Nuggets, Vol. 12: Punk Part Three (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box); It's Unfair on Boulders, Vol. 10 (LP); It's Gonna Rain on Gathering Of The Tribe (LP); Cry Cry Cry and It's Unfair on Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Testament (CD); Story Of My Life and It's Unfair on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 1 (LP); It's Gonna Rain and Where You Gonna Go on Boulders, Vol. 9 (LP); The Story Of My Life and Where You Gonna Go on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 8 (CD); Story Of My Life (stereo), It's Not Fair (stereo), Where You Gonna Go (stereo), It's Gonna Rain (stereo) and Cry Cry Cry (stereo) on SVR Rock Hits Of The Sixites Vol. 1 (CD); Story Of My Life on Garage Beat '66 5 (CD); and Where You Gonna Go and Cry Cry Cry on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD). This Long Island, New York band was produced by Tony Michaels and Vinny Gormann and engineered by Warren Schatz. Their first album is basically folk-rock with a hint of psychedelia with Waking Up one of its finest moments. The format mixes jazz, folk, electronics and psychedelia with male/female vocals. A truly beautiful album - it's worth checking out for fans of this genre. All their songs were penned by the group.

Released two years later and produced by Shel Kagan, the second album is heavier and more rock-blues in style, but still contains some good tracks: Sleeping Prophet, Personal Manager (an Albert King cover) and Sleepy Mountain Ecstacy. The voice of Dede Puma, their female singer, is still really impressive.

In 1972, Gene Stashuk played cello on Bonnie Raitt's Give It Up album. The other members apparently vanished from the music scene. (VJ/MW/SR)

The Untamed (IL)

45: Someday Baby/Lonely Boy (Royal Scot 824 R-103) 1966

The Untamed came out of Chicago with this mid-sixties punk single that features some twangy guitar and a brief drum solo in the middle.

45: Baby Let's Wait/Don't Go I'm Beggin' (Wasp 105) 1967

From Elma, Washington this band's single on Wasp is fittingly tough buzzin' fuzz-garage, at least on Don't Go I'm Beggin', which is also featured on Diggin' For Gold, Vol. 7 (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume 4 (CD). Baby Let's Wait is a Young Rascals cover.

Coincidentally other Untouchables recorded a Young Rascals cover in Memphis in 1970, but their origins have yet to be confirmed - Now Is The Time/Love Is A Beautiful Thing (Psychedelic 101). (MW/MM)

		Summer Is Over/I Could Go On	(Mainstream 653) 1966

NB: α with Kathi McDonald.

From the Bellingham, Washington this band evolved out of The Bellingham Accents. The second single features two strong West Coast ballads led by the particularly forceful female vocals of Kathi McDonald, whilst I'm Walkin' Babe is a snarling punker with vocals by Harvey Redmond.

Laurie Vitt recalls: - "I believe (but I'm not sure) that Jay Hamilton suggested the name The Unusuals. Jay was a local Bellingham DJ and we got to know him through dances that we played. By this time Kathi was in for a full cut and we had replaced Doug Ling with Harvey Redmond, a student at Western. Harvey was a much better musician and good singer. The first single, I'm Walking Babe received almost no air play, but the flip side, Babe It's Me, a Sonny and Cher-like tune that Kathi and I did, was No. 1 in Bellingham for 26 weeks straight, but never got national attention."

"Between this record and Summer Is Over, we went on the road as a back-up band for Dewey Martin (pre-Buffalo Springfield). He had a hit at the time (White Cliffs Of Dover) and he and his band had been billed as British. Dewey was a good singer and a better drummer and I recall that he occasionally played drums while on the road. Eventually we dropped our drummer, Pat Jerns, and picked up a guy named Gary Ramsey. Gary Ramsey transformed from being a businessman-type manager of a steak house to a full blown hippie within about a year of joining the band. The story behind Summer Is Over was that we drove to San Francisco, recorded it at our expense and returned to Washington. Within a week, the owner of the studio called and said that Rene Cardenas of Time-Mainstream wanted the record but we would have to come down and re-record it, at their expense. So we went back, were ready to go the studio and then an airline strike stopped all commercial flights. Rene was stuck in New York. He bought a small jet and flew to San Francisco, we recorded the record and he auditioned a bunch of groups. The only two he picked up were us and Big Brother and The Holding Company - he liked our tapes better and released Summer Is Over within four weeks. It was a '4-star Pick' in Record World and got a lot of national play but never really took off."

TUESDAY, APRIL 19TH. THE UNSPOKEN WORD

THE UNSPOKEN WORD - Tuesday, April 19th LP.

"The Unusuals broke up in 1967 when Harvey and I graduated from Western. Harvey took a job teaching in Oregon and I got a job at a research lab in Seattle. Kathi and Gary Ramsey, meanwhile, drove to the Bay Area in Gary's psychedelic truck that we had all painted, in the hope of joining the Bay Area scene".

Gary had gotten pretty far out and as it turned out, he came back to Bellingham and when I went back to Western for a master's, I put together a bar band with Gary, Bill Capp plus a bass player. Gary got farther and farther out and eventually we fired him. I played with a number of bar bands while a master's student, including Clever Baggage, a 10-piece band that emulated Chicago Transit Authority (later Chicago), with Vic Bundy on keyboards. However, Boeing laid off thousands of people and the music market crashed in Washington so I ended up back with four-piece bands in Bellingham. When I moved to Arizona for graduate school, I first played in a soul band consisting of the remnants of Dyke and The Blazers, who reorganized after Dyke was gunned to death on the streets of Phoenix. I later played in several rock bands. Rainbow was the first and it consisted of me, Rod Pappas (gtr), a bass player who I can't remember, and Rob Rideout, the original drummer in the Bellingham band The Rebels. Shortly after, we replaced the bass player with Charlie Moss who was very good. Rod and Rob decided to go to Seattle and left. Charlie and I got together with two former members of Hillary Blaze, formerly from New York and kept the name Rainbow. We did some recording but when Rod came back from Seattle, Charlie and I quit, teaming up with Rod and a drummer named David Newberry to form Mantis. Although the "Rainbow tapes" were never released, years later when the Hillary Blaze Drummer, Jimmy Tirella died, the other guitar player, Sandy Napoli, put together a CD and sent me a copy which he called the Rainbow Tapes but under the name Hillary Blaze as a tribute to Jimmy. Mantis became very popular in the bar scene in Arizona during the mid-seventies and we started recording an album. We released a single locally and it did pretty well (Insane/Country Cowboy). Our music was actually a bit heavy for Arizona at the time and I suspect that had we stuck together a couple more years, we would have done great (we did pretty well financially, playing six nights a week). I was balancing music with my graduate education. I quit when I was offered a post-doc in Brazil, essentially making a major career decision. I have played with no bands since, but still play my guitars virtually every day."

Kathi McDonald later found some fame in the 1970s after joining Big Brother and The Holding Company. Lauri Vitt is now Curator of Reptiles and Professor of Zoology at Sam Noble Oklahoma Museum of Natural History.

You can also hear I'm Walkin' Babe on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 16 (LP), The Northwest Battle Of The Bands 3: I'm Walkin' Babe (LP), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD) and Northwest Battle Of The Bands Vol. 4 (CD). (GGI/MW/LV)

ALBUM:	1	KILLER UP! 1969-1972	(Total Energy NER 3002) 1995

45s: α Just Like An Aborigine/
Hassan I Sabbah (PS) (Sundance 22190) 1970
β Free John Now!/Prayer For John Sinclair (Rainbow 22191) 1971

NB: α pressed on red vinyl. β 'A' side by Up, flip side shown as by Allen Ginsberg and Peter Orlovsky 45s.

Up was formed in Detroit in the spring of 1967 by Frank Bach, who was stage manager and announcer at the newly-opened Grande Ballroom, where the MC5 was the "house band". The two bands were closely related, taking an active part in the John Sinclair-managed commune, variously known as the Detroit Artists' Workshop, Trans-Love Energies or the White Panther Party (WPP). When, after the assassination of Martin Luther King, the commune moved to Ann Arbor in May 1968, the band followed, playing many engagements and often opening for the MC5 or sometimes as a main attraction at local clubs and ballrooms. In Ann Arbor Up replaced Victor Peraino with Scott Bailey and continued to roll under the guidance of John Sinclair's brother David.

The MC5 and Stooges fans certainly remember the story about the seminal September '68 visit by Elektra Records president Jac Holzman who signed both bands after a wild show at the Union Ballroom. The opening act that failed to impress him was Up. As a result, while the two other bands started releasing nationally, Up got stuck in local small venues. Eventually, after the MC5 broke with the commune's ideals, they became the primary propaganda medium for the White Panther Party, following J. Sinclair's imprisonment in July 1969 for possession of two marijuana cigarettes. They disbanded in 1973.

Their retrospective album features both singles, live and unreleased material. Just Like An Aborigine is a stand-out track recalling rather late seventies British punk than the Detroit vein (but inexplicably suffers from poor hollow sound). The flip is not as exciting but features a mighty bass riff not dissimilar to Metallica's Enter Sandman. The second single, as the titles suggest, was one of the efforts for the release of J. Sinclair. Actually, it was given away for free at the John Sinclair Freedom Rally in December 1971. The flip, which features Allen Ginsberg's melodic recitation, was recorded by the poet himself in New York without the band's assistance (added as bonus track on CD). The album also features Come On planned for the 'A' side of their next single.

Judging by the rest of the material, musically they landed within the triangle drawn by the MC 5, the Stooges and Blue Cheer but without losing their clear-cut original style. There are also two '69 studio tracks I Don't Need You and Never Say Die sporting killer riffs that are pretty close to early Sub Pop grungy sound. John Sinclair was right when he wrote this to begin the liner notes: "It's common to name the MC5 and the Stooges among the forefathers of what they call punk-rock, but it was their associates in a third band, the Up, who could more accurately be identified as the real precursors of punk."

Compilation appearances include: Just Like An Aboriginie on Let 'Em Have It! Vol. 1 (CD) and A-Square (Of Course) (CD); and Just Like An Aborigine and Hassan I Sabbah on Michigan Mixture, Vol. 1 (LP). (MO/VJ)

45: Sing Hallelujah/Green Satin (Jerden 725) 1964

This had been suggested to us as one of the earliest folk-rock singles from the Northwest; however George Gell has informed us that it is a vocal group with little to recommend it.

The band is however notable for featuring Alice Stuart, who later relocated to California and had a solo career, issuing several albums. She still performs locally in the Seattle area, though her music has moved largely from folk to blues.

The "U. District" in the band name refers to an area adjacent to the University of Washington in Seattle. The flipside, Green Satin, was written by Frank Lewis and produced by Jerry Dennon. It is a pleasant folky number. (VJ/MW/ANH)

45: Your Groove/Mimi Von Lark (Gotcha Co 2048) 1967

This was a college band at the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut. Formed in 1964, they were popular on the college circuit around New England and the East Coast until they dissolved upon graduation in 1967.

Just one single was released, but it turns out that they recorded more at Trod Nossel in Wallingford. Two of them, 'SSS' Happening Here and Nothing, have reappeared on Don't Press Your Luck (CD/2-LP). Your Groove appears too but only on the 2-LP version; it's good soulful garage-beat, like the Zombies meeting the Young Rascals. Unfortunately Mimi Von Lark is one of those corny "vaudeville" pop larks - kazoos, piano, plastic beaker vocals and all that dreck.

Owatonna, Minnesota-based, band US was originally known as The Rogues when they formed back in late 1964. By mid-1966 they were calling themselves the U.S. Rogues and by late 1967, just before their single was recorded, they reverted to simply US. Both their songs on their single were originals. 1,000 copies were pressed and early ones came in a rare promotional picture sleeve. They played quite extensively around the Midwest. Tom Krause was drafted in 1968 and a few months later the band re-recorded their two single cuts in a Minneapolis studio along with four new songs - Please Be What You Are/Land Of Goodness, Isn't Your Life Funny, Honey and Talkin' 'Bout Love - which never saw the light of day. The session even included some kids from the Owatonna High School orchestra! Greg Hammel left the band in 1969 and they finally split in 1970.

They took part in the 1966 "IGL Roof Garden Jamboree", which resulted in a rare 1967 album on IGL and more recently a (2-CD) IGL Dance Jamboree '66. The latter dusted off the original tapes of all the bands that took part and includes three tracks by US - Mona, Heart Of Stone and The Last Time. (VJ/MW)

This was another Shelby Singleton project, after The Rugbys, Heather Black and David Allan Coe. U.S. Apple Corps released an album of psychedelic gospel rock, with a powerful male singer and fluid guitar solos. The SSS album and Prayer For Peace single were pressed on transparent blue vinyl. The 'band' was apparently 15-year-old singer Denis Bryant backed by a bunch of studio musicians, Singleton having dispensed with the rest of the original band.

The second album was recorded in Nashville with Singleton in charge again. Denis (or "Dennis") Bryant is there too, in the writing credits at least. Get High On Jesus gets another outing and they rock hard on several tracks. Overlooking the religious aspects, it's an OK mid-seventies rock album. The southern-styled Dead features some good triple guitar playing. Another cut, Get High On Jesus also appears on the mega-rare Earthen Vessel album. It's presented in a colourful psychedelic cover. (SR/VZ/VJ/MW)

From New York City/New Jersey region, their Pull The Wool deserves attention. It's a later sounding garage fuzz-punker that's probably '68 rather than '67 - plenty of fuzz but it's kind of 'laid-back' with swirling organ and the vocal style has that post-Fudge soulish arrogance. Despite that this ditty works pretty well, but not for the "class of '66" I suspect. The flip is forgettable as you guessed all along.

From the Fairfield suburb of Cincinnati, their finest moment is I'll Leave You Crying, a particularly good slab of strong melodic pop with a tough edge, melodramatic arrangements with some tasty scorching fuzz and cool vibes. The "Jinx" single features a different version with a teen combo sound and strong organ whilst the reissues feature an interesting use of flute on both sides.

The band's first Counterpart single contains light-weight up-tempo pop and a soft slow beat-ballad, whilst the Pleasure Seeker single is also good late sixties pop, on the light side again but with some flashes of searing heavy guitar on the flip.

Len Gartner was both vocalist and drummer in the band, switching roles with another band member. Another early member of the band was John Faris, who was later in Zephyr with Tommy Bolin.

Curiously the Maelstrom single came out without the band's knowledge!

Compilation coverage has so far included: I'll Leave You Crying on Mindblowing Encounters Of The Purple Kind (LP), Psychedelic States: Ohio Vol. 1 (CD) and Gravel Volume 2 (CD); and The Girl With The Golden Hair on Lost Generation, Vol. 1 (LP). (GGI/MW/MM/VJ)

ALBUM: 1(A) UTOPIA (Kent KST-566) 1970 R2

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl and CD (Akarma AK 154) 2001.

Here's an under-rated heavy blues-rock album from the Los Angeles area. The musical format is based around a dual guitar assault and harmonica. The same band issued an album as Growl in 1974, which curiously contains some of the same recordings on the Utopia album from 1970. The master tapes were shared with Bob Smith during recording of The Visit album, which confirms that Utopia's album was recorded during 1969-70. (VJ/CF/MW)

A wonderfully wacky and unforgettable name for an unknown outfit; surely someone remembers them? Doomy keyboards and waspish fuzz with a Doorsy vibe circa 1967-8, Loneliness appeared on Acid And Flowers (CD) back in the nineties yet nothing more has come to light. (MW)

THE VAGRANTS - I Can't Make A Friend LP.

Here's an historically interesting punk band from Forest Hills, Long Island, New York. Leslie West later helped out Jolliver Arkansaw (a quartet with Felix Pappalardi, who evolved out of Bo Grumpus), Mountain and West, Bruce And Laing. He also issued three solo albums and has done session work for Bo Diddley, Bobby Keys and Mylon Lefevre, among others. Younger brother, Larry West went on to Haystacks Balboa, who issued an album on Polydor in 1970. Jerry Storch went solo and released one album on RCA.

Respect is now their best known track due to its inclusion on the classic Nuggets - Original Artyfacts From The First Psychedelic Era 1965-1968 (2-LP) compilation and later on Nuggets Box (4-CD). Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP) included the 'A' sides of their first two singles. Their later singles tended towards a heavier sound but were still punkish and occasionally stunningly powerful, especially A Sunny Summer Rain which knocks spots off other East Coast 'heavies' at the time. Beside The Sea and And When It's Over are also decent fuzz-crunchers. Somehow success always seemed to elude them but thankfully Arista's retrospective collection goes some way to redress that. It contains three of the four sides released on Vanguard, all six of the Atco sides and an unreleased My Babe. The pirate collection on Southern Sound includes both sides of their rare debut single, the Vanguard track omitted from the Arista album and an amazing 13'00" studio version of Satisfaction with backwards guitar segments and demented echo effects. Both collections are recommended.

Later recordings and post-West line-ups of the band included Mark "Moogy" Klingman from Glitterhouse, Stu Woods, and Tom Cosgrove. Those three were also heavily involved in the 1969 "long lost supersessions" (with Eric Clapton, Jeff Beck, Keith Emerson, Harvey Mandel, and Linda Ronstadt) which became known as the Music From Free Creek album. When The Vagrants finally split, Woods and Cosgrove formed The Brethren.

Other retrospect compilation appearances have included: - I Can't Make A Friend on Uptight Tonight (CD); Young Blues on The Vanguard Folk Rock Rock Album (CD) and Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD); Beside The Sea on White Lace & Strange Volume 2 (CD); and I Can't Make A Friend, Young Blues, The Final Hour and Your Hasty Heart on Storm In The Garage (3-CD box). Born in New York City in 1943, Dino Valenti (Epic misspelt his name as Valente on his album cover) began recording in 1964 for Elektra including two tracks (Black Betty and Life Is Like That) which can be found on Early L.A. (LP) in 1967. He also wrote (or co-wrote) Get Together, the classic hippie anthem made famous by The Youngbloods. A popular track, the song was well-covered: in 1966 by Jefferson Airplane on their Takes Off album; 1967 - by H.P.Lovecraft on their debut album and At The Mountains Of Madness, Tiffany System on single; 1968 - Cryan Shames Synthesis album, Dolphin single, Smith A Group Called Smith album; 1969 - Mission, Bonnie Dobson and Youngbloods singles; 1970 - Association 'Live'. Valenti's original (and unreleased) version of Let's Get Together can be heard on Nuggets From The Golden State: Someone To Love (CD) and on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book).

DINO VALENTI - Dino Valente LP.

Valenti was part of the first line-up of Quicksilver Messenger Service (his Dino's Song is on their debut album) but was busted twice and spent more than 18 months in jail. In 1968, before joining Quicksilver for good, he released one solo album of acid folk-rock, with a good version of John Phillips' Me And My Uncle. Reissued at least a couple of times since, the album has been highly acclaimed retrospectively for its chiming acoustic guitar, atmospheric brass and string arrangements and above all his distinctive reverberating vocals. This is showcased effectively on tracks like Something New, New Wind Blowing, Children Of The Sun and My Friend.

Valenti sadly died in the eighties of a brain tumour.

Other compilation appearances have included: Birdses on California Acid Folk (LP) and Mystic Males (CD); and Me And My Uncle on Rockbusters (LP). (SR/MW/BMk)

This Long Island, New York psychedelic rock group, named after a popular American ice cream, formed in 1966 out of the ashes of (Mark Stein and) The Pigeons and began by specialising in doing slowed-down versions of other people's compositions. Their debut album included organ dominated versions of Lennon-McCartney's Ticket To Ride and Eleanor Rigby, Rod Argent's She's Not There and Curtis Mayfield's People Get Ready. The remake of The Supremes' hit You Keep Me Hangin' On reached No 18 in the U.K. in the summer of 1967 and was later a U.S. hit. Their treatment of these songs was characterised by organ melodramatics and extravagant productions; the album sold quite well and the group had an uniquely distinctive sound. It is said that The Beatles were impressed with the band, with George Harrison playing their version of Ticket to Ride and Eleanor Rigby for anyone that visited them. Eleanor Rigby Pts I & 2 (Atlantic 584, 139) failed as a single in the UK, as did Where Is My Mind/The Look Of Love (Atlantic 584.170), a 1968 release. Their first album reached No 6 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Their next album, however, was over-ambitious and pretentious, failing in its attempt to provide a history of 25 years of musical development on one album! Nonetheless it still climbed to No 17.

Renaissance, which was released in 1968 and reissued in 1974 by WEA, showed some improvement, largely on account of their typically melodramatic nine-minute version of Donovan's Season Of The Witch which was somewhat surprisingly a minor hit in the U.K. in 1969. However, when the band attempted to write its own material, the result was usually a dismal failure. Vanilla Fudge described their music as 'psychedelic symphonic rock'. The 'symphonic' was an exaggeration, although one can detect a slight classical influence in their music. Renaissance reached No. 20 in the Album Charts and Near The Beginning made No. 16. Side two was live.

As the psychedelic era drew to a close, the band moved towards a more conventional heavy rock sound, finally splitting after their fifth album which reached No. 34 in 1970. Appice and Bogert went on to play with Cactus then Beck, Bogert and Appice and then Rod Stewart, while Stein formed an abortive band called Boomerang.

They reformed for a comeback album Mystery in 1984 and again in 2006 to release Out Through The In Door (a Led Zeppelin covers album) in their 40th Anniversary year. Led Zeppelin had once opened for Vanilla Fudge in their first US tour.

In 1999, Carmine Appice, Tim Bogert and Vince Martell got back together again, with Bill Pascali replacing Mark Stein. They released a new album Vanilla Fudge 2001 ( ) 2001, also available as Then And Now (Snapper Classics SDPCD193) 2004. This includes new re-works of their classics. Some recent live recordings may interest readers. Good Good Rockin' - Live At Rockpalast (CD) (Music Avenue 250159) was recorded live at the Crossroads Club Festival - Rockpalast (WDR) show at the Harmonie in Bonn, Germany on 24th March during the band's 2004 tour of Europe. Live 2004 (CD & 2-DVD) (Snapper/Charly CHFF1009SFD) was also recorded on the same tour at the same venue.

The Psychedelic Sundae: The Best Of Vanilla Fudge is a definitive collection showcasing the cream of the band's five studio albums, plus rare non-album single sides including the band's take on Lee Hazlewood's Some Velvet Morning, the unreleased cut All In Your Mind and more. It's accompanied by a detailed eight-page booklet.

You Keep Me Hangin' On, one of their finest moments, can also be heard on Highs Of The Sixties (LP) and Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP). (VJ/MW/AHr/EW/BK)

The album was produced by Barry Kornfeld and arranged by David Woods, who also wrote three tracks and later worked with Jake and The Family Jewels.

Dave Van Ronk returned to his solo career afterwards, but this album deserves to be heard.

A lifelong native of Brooklyn, Dave Van Ronk died of colon cancer at the age of 65, on 10 February 2002. (SR/MW)

An instrumental-cum-garage band, The Vaqueros came from Virginia, Minnesota. Growing Pains is notable for some fine fuzz guitar, whilst the flip is a groovy instrumental, again with some fine guitar.

Compilation coverage has included: - Growing Pains and 69 on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 4: The Go-Go (LP & CD); 69 on Everything You Always Wanted To Know... (CD); Don't You Dare on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 2 (LP) and Quagmire Volume 6 (CD); and Growing Pains on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 7: Get A Move On!!! (LP & CD). From Thomasville, North Carolina The Varcels were one of many area combos to record on Calvin Newton's Justice Records label. And, like most of the other Justice acts, their sole album contains the usual cover versions of the period, including Summertime, Money, House Of The Rising Sun, and In The Midnight Hour. In addition to two band originals - the instrumental Hang Loose and I'm Tired (Of Messin' Around) - the album also includes a decent, organ-dominated version of The Standells' Dirty Water. Another Justice rarity dusted off. This smartly shorn sextet resplendent in vampire capes posed in front of their coffin-topped red hearse for the cover of this effort. Under the lid there's an assortment of brassy instrumentals, frat and club sounds, lounge, soul and ballads - all covers and often the same as on many of the other lesser known "soul-garage" Justice albums. Not recommended. (MW)

Guitar playing, Native American brothers from Fresno, California Pat and Lolly Vegas had previously recorded for Chancellor, Regency, Apogee and Sapien labels. They were in the touring version of the Marketts. They recorded an album entitled Hotrodders' Choice under the name The Deuce Coupes for the Del-Fi label. They appeared in the 1965 surf movie It's A Bikini World and both were members of the "Shindogs" (with Leon Russell and Delaney Bramlett) which was the stage band on the Shindig TV show. Their songs were recorded by PJ Proby, Aretha Franklin, The Righteous Brothers, Bobby Gentry and Debbie Gray. At the time this album was recorded they were the house band at the famous Haunted House club in Los Angeles. They had also released surf guitar singles as The Avantis and at least one early Lolly Vegas solo single exists.

Produced by Leon Russell, At The Haunted House is a mix of garage and pop and contains renditions of Satisfaction, In The Midnight Hour, Papa's Got a Brand New Bag, Good Lovin'... plus six original songs.

The liner notes are a must-read: "The ingenious bandstand, designed especially for their act, features a monster's head fashioned into a shell which pushes the sound up and out-making a microphone unnecessary. The actual sound comes through the monster's nostrils, which blow hot steam which makes the sound even louder."

The Vegas brothers would later would later form Redbone. (SR/HS/CF)

Something's Wrong? (Track VIII X-1002) 1969

Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD) features Something's Wrong? by this obscure Bay Area band whom the compilers tracked down to Alameda. The single was co-produced by Norm Lombardo of San Diego's Brain Police who had relocated to that region in 1969. The composer and co-producer was Amadeo Barrios. It's a light, bouncey keyboard-led ditty, more pop than garage. More recently Something's Wrong has been featured on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD). (MW/GN)

NB: α withdrawn Jan Ashton 45.

This San Francisco five-piece had in Jan Errico the novelty of one of the very few girl drummers at the time, aside from Honey Lantree of England's Honeycombs. Formed in 1964, they soon secured a residency at the Morocco Room in San Mateo, following in the footsteps of The Beau Brummels, who'd gone on to better things. Very early in the residency they were discovered by the co-owners of Autumn Records, Tom Donahue and Bobby Mitchell, who signed them to their label. Rick Dey soon departed to join The Wilde Knights and was replaced by an older bassist who was known to everyone simply as Ron. The band soon became a popular live attraction during the spring of 1965 at all the teen nightclubs, teen fairs and 'Battles Of The Bands' in northern California's burgeoning music scene. Their first single, I Still Love You, was a jangly Beatles/Byrds'-type folk-rocker. It became a very minor hit peaking at No 84 and helped secure the band appearances on 'American Bandstand', 'the Lloyd Thaxton Show' and 'Where The Action Is'. They returned to the studio in October 1965 to record Tom Paxton's folk-rocker The Last Thing On My Mind. To help promote it they joined a West Coast tour with The Yardbirds and The Beach Boys. Later in the spring of 1966 they played at another 'Battle Of The Bands' in L.A. where they and the Buffalo Springfield were the only paid bands. The competition was actually won by The Doors. By now Reese Sheets had left the band to be replaced by Jim Sawyers, who'd previously been with San Jose band The Other Side.

Soon after Sawyers joined in 1965, Hollis and Ashton left (the latter for label-mates The Mojo Men) around the time of the second single's release.

THE VEJTABLES - Feel... CD.

A proposed Jan Ashton single Cold Dreary Morning was shelved when Autumn went under and their artist roster was taken over by Warner Bros. About My Tears was recorded after Jan had left The Vejtables, it's a demo that the songs author Sal Valentino asked her to sing upon. The flip of the proposed Autumn single would have been Smile Smile Smile.

Bailey recruited another female drummer called Kristy and they were augmented by Bob Mosley on guitar (from The Misfits), but he moved quickly on (to Moby Grape) and was replaced by guitarist Richard Fortunato, formerly of The Preachers.

By early 1966 Autumn Records were in financial difficulties. Its entire roster was transferred to Warner Bros. By then The Vejtables had nearly folded - in April 1966 Jim Sawyers left for The Syndicate Of Sound and Frank Smith had left to replace Mosley in The Misfits. Bailey and Fortunato were hanging tough and drafted in two more ex-Preachers when Leo De Gar Kulka of Golden State Recorders offered them a contract with Mercury.

This incandescent but short-lived line-up produced the superb Uptown single, featuring the raga-punker Feel The Music backed by Shadows, an excellent piece of experimental psychedelia.

Speculation over the years about the quality of the other tracks from these sessions had given them a legendary tag amongst collectors. Finally, in 1994, Big Beat's Nuggets From The Golden State: Good Things Are Happening (CD) unearthed this handful of previously unreleased nuggets - Good Things Are Happening, Time And Place, Better Rearrange, Hide Yourself and Good Times - and expectations were met in FULL (kudos to Alec Palao). These were five awesome proto-psych freak-out with strong sneering vocals from Fortunato and slabs of distorted guitar and feedback. Clearly influenced by The Yardbirds, The Vejtables had leapt forward to join that band in the musical vanguard at the dawn of the psychedelic era.

Bailey clung onto the band's name for another year but the personnel were erratic, as apparently was his behaviour. Another single did eventually surface in late 1967, with Frank Smith on board again, but was released as by the Book Of Changes. Fortunato had long gone onto a string of fascinating outfits - to George Caldwell's Bees, later the W.C. Fields Memorial Electric String Band, then ESB and finally Fields.

Compilation appearances have included: Feel The Music on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 12 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD); I Still Love You and The Last Thing On My Mind on Nuggets, Vol. 7: Early SFO (LP); I Still Love You on Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD); Feel The Music and Shadows on Sound Of The Sixties: San Francisco Part 2 (LP) and Crystalize Your Mind (CD); The Last Thing On My Mind on Sounds Of The Sixties San Francisco, Vol. 1 (LP); Anything on San Francisco Roots (LP), The Autumn Records Story (LP) and Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); Hide Yourself on Sundazed Sampler, Vol. 2 (CD); Shadows on Acid Dreams (LP); Shadows and Feel The Music on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD); Anything, I Still Love You and I Still Love You (alternate take) on Dance With Me - The Autumn Teen Sound (CD); The Last Thing On My Mind and Mansion Of Tears on Nuggets From The Golden State: Someone To Love (CD), and two unreleased Jan Ashton tracks - About My Tears and Cold Dreary Morning (the latter also on Nuggets, Vol. 7: Early SFO (LP)). Both sides of their first two Autumn singles also appeared on the Autumn Single Box compilation. (VJ/MW/AP/GN)

NB: α shown as by Georgy & The Velvet Illusions.

This seven-piece band was from Yakima, Washington but relocated to Los Angeles in 1967 to record an AWESOME series of psychedelic punk/pop singles in rapid succession. Their first and fourth single 'A' sides, Acid Head and Velvet Illusions are both superb garage-punk classics and have been heavily compiled. Acid Head shares similar ground with The Rolling Stones Mother's Little Helper, telling the tale of a young-girl's struggle with drug-addiction, with a memorable driving melody, military style drumming and raga-esque guitars. Velvet Illusions, the band's theme-tune, is more frantic, with a Red Krayola mechanical beat, upfront bass, shrill penetrating organ and great guitar work.

If you think the cuts that have appeared on compilations so far are great, wait till you hear some that have not. For example - Lazy is a pumping fuzz-punker with manic fretwork. Flip it over for The Stereo Song, an Arthur Lee-inspired punker with more pizzicato picking AND, wait a minute, it's all about record nerds (that's us, bub) - they were WAY ahead of their time and this should be a must-play at all record fairs!

The question today is - when is someone going to put out a proper retrospective to do this band justice?

Second drummer, Jon Juette recalls: - "I remember our studio was very close to the Hollywood Bowl and some of us would sneak over there dreaming of playing there someday. Randy Bowles was our lead singer and went by the stage name of Jimmy James. Our sax player was George Radford, the son of our group's manager and agent. The rhythm guitar was played by Bruce Kitt. I don't recall the original drummer's name, as he quit the group shortly after they located in Hollywood on El Centro Avenue."

"The real musical genius of our group was Steve Weed. He played several instruments and I remember many hours at his or my house as we were growing up watching him write one song after another. He truly was (and is) a great undiscovered talent! We played at some pretty great gigs, had press conferences with people like L.A. Mayor Sam Yority, Carol Burnett, Two-ton Tessie O'Shea and several other entertainers. Our producer was George Oliphant. Although Acid Head and Velvet Illusions (We Are The...) were the most played, my favourite was Town Of Fools, written by Jerry."

Compilation appearances have included: Velvet Illusions on Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California 2 (CD), Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (CD) and Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD); Acid Head on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); and Acid Head and Velvet Illusions on Acid Dreams (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 5 (LP & CD), 60's Punk E.P., Vol. 2 (7" EP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP) and Acid Dreams Testament (CD). In addition, Mini Shimmy has been compiled on Total Raunch (CD) and Hippy Town on Grains Of Time (CD). These last two are both credited to Georgy & The Velvet Illusions.

The liner-notes for Pebbles, Vol. 9 state incorrectly that Steve Weed would gain greater (and probably unwelcome) fame as the boyfriend of world-famous abductee Patty Hearst. This was a different Steve Weed. (VJ/MW/JJu)

45: Velvet Night/
I'm Sure He'll Come Most Anytime (Metromedia MM-110) 1969

The album contains passable cover versions of Season Of The Witch, If I Were A Carpenter, The Weight (with the Band's song miscredited to Tim Hardin!) and a Cream medley (I'm Free, The Sunshine Of Your Love, White Room and I'm So Glad). Only one song (Don't Let Me Stand In Your Way) is written by a band member (Vinnie Nisi). The best three tracks - Velvet Night, Freak Show and Edge Of The Woods were written by non-band members Jimmy Curtiss and S. Kanyon.

For the most part, heavy choppy psych, that'll appeal to fans of the Vanilla Fudge/Hassles school possibly but for some an acquired taste.

In 1971 the album was repackaged and reissued as by Would on Jimmy Curtiss' label. (MW)

NB: (1) issued in both stereo and mono. First pressings had peelable banana on front cover, and in the photo on the rear of the jacket, a man's head and arms are visible dropping down on the band from above (upside-down). For legal reasons, it was necessary to remove this image from all subsequent pressings of the album, but the copies that had already been printed but not yet shipped by the pressing plant were censored with a large black and white sticker. Currently, these earliest editions are in the R4 (mono) and R3 (stereo) categories. Early second state versions with the image removed from the photo on the back cover still have the peelable banana; these are in the R3 (mono) and R2 (stereo) categories. Promotional editions exist of (1)-(3) in both mono and stereo with yellow labels, and a white label mono edition of (1) is ultra-rare, said to have been distributed by Warhol himself. This particular item has changed hands in the R5 category. (1) was issued in the UK both in a single sleeve with a non-banana cover (mono/stereo) (Verve (S)VLP 9184) 1967 and later in stereo in a stickered US peelable banana gatefold censored sleeve (Verve 2315 056) 1968. (1) was issued in Japan with a peelable banana on a non-gatefold sleeve, and in Canada with the back cover photo moved to the front of a non-gatefold sleeve. NB: Their first four singles were produced in very small quantities, hardly promoted and were never local or regional hits. The last was the first to be issued in the U.K. and part of a batch of 45s to tie in with the acquisition of the MGM/Verve and Atlantic catalogue by Polydor International. The Who Loves The Sun release in the U.K. had Sweet Jane on the flip side. Other early seventies UK and European releases were:- I'm Waiting For The Man/Run Run Run/Candy Says (MGM 2006 282) 1973 UK; I'm Waiting For The Man/Run Run Run (MGM) Germany; and I'm Waiting For The Man/Candy Says/White Light - White Heat (MGM) Holland. Also Sweet Jane/Rock And Roll was issued by Atlantic (K 10339) 1972 in the U.K. and in Germany with a picture sleeve.

α issued on a Yellow M-G-M label, "SPECIAL DISC JOCKEY RECORD", "NOT FOR SALE". Singles 1966-1969 (Sundazed S 7002) 2009 is a box set of their sixties singles, faithfully reproduced in mono mixes with original artwork, with exact repros of the two rare VU picture sleeves, liner notes by David Fricke, rare photos, and an exclusive Sundazed postcard.

Velvet Underground was New York's answer to the California rock renaissance. Their main inspiration came from Lou Reed and John Cale. Reed, born on 12th March 1943 in Freeport, Long Island, New York was an accountant's son, the eldest of two children from a middle class Jewish family. He had dropped out of Syracuse University to write songs. Cale had been born on 5th December 1940 in Crynant, South Wales. He'd studied contemporary music in London prior to winning a scholarship to New York's Eastman Conservatory. The remaining members were Maureen Tucker who'd been born in New Jersey in 1945; Nico, who entered the world in Cologne, Germany in 1938 (her parents were Polish and later died in a Nazi death camp); and Sterling Morrison, who was born in the same year as Reed in New York and later attended high school with him. Reed and Cale first met each other in New York in 1964, but Cale did not play with Reed until the latter had gone on to assemble his own bands, The Warlocks and later The Primitives, which included Morrison and Tucker. Reed and Cale, also wrote a single for The All Night Workers.

When Cale joined in 1966, they changed their name to The Velvet Underground and played in various clubs around Greenwich Village. They soon came to the attention of Andy Warhol, who added the beautiful German model and actress Nico to their line-up and featured them in his Exploding Plastic Inevitable Media Show, which was a multi-media psychedelic event staged in New York in 1966.

The debut album, produced by Andy Warhol, was one of the most innovative and influential in the history of rock. The songs largely concentrated on the decadence of American city life, thereby countering the peace and love trip emanating from America's West Coast. I'm Waiting For The Man and Heroin dealt with the rising phenomena of heroin addiction, while Venus In Furs explored the dark world of sado-masochism. Nico's sexy but death-like voice was a big plus on tracks like Sunday Morning, Femme Fatale and I'll Be Your Mirror. The music on this album was effectively an assault on the listener's senses - comprised of throbbing, often discordant rhythms, riddled with electronic feed-back. Most of it was written by Reed, although Nico's vocals were also important to its appeal. Commercially, however, it was a non-starter as the subject-matter of many of its tracks prevented any radio airplay and it also spawned no hit singles. It peaked at just No. 171 in the National Album Charts and Reed and Cale were both upset by the indifferent reception it received, feeling it to be rather special.

Nico left the band at this stage to pursue a solo career and Warhol began to lose interest, withdrawing his financial support. Nico's departure inevitably affected their musical policy and their second album, White Light/White Heat which, lacking the gentle songs written for her on the first album, was aggressively harsh. It contained two stand-out tracks, Sister Ray, a 17-minute story about a group of sailors who are interrupted by the police while visiting a drag queen and The Gift based on a short story Reed had composed. In both songs, the lyrics were augmented by a storm of unorthodox electronic music. Commercially, the album represented another failure peaking at only No. 199 in the Album Charts and Cale quit the band to pursue a solo career. He was replaced by Doug Yule (bs, gtr, keyb'ds). From hereon, Reed became the dominant figure in the band.

The third album, The Velvet Underground again represented a change in musical direction being composed of softer, more harmonious songs. The album was based around a girl's search for significance through nihilism (Candy Says), religion (Jesus), adultery (Pale Blue Eyes) and ended with a jovial song about loneliness (After Hours). However, the band's repeated changes in style had left their audience way behind and this album failed to make a popular impact. Mid-1969 saw them without a record contract, but in 1970 they recorded Loaded, generally regarded as a dynamic rock'n'roll album. Unfortunately, Reed quit a month before its release, when the band, benefiting from a renewed wave of public interest, appeared on the brink of achieving commercial success. The album contained at least three further classics: Sweet Jane, the story of a resilient city girl, Sweet Nothing, an account of city kids able to live on next to nothing and Rock and Roll. The remaining members attempted to keep the band going with new recruits, but quit after the inevitably disappointing Squeeze was released in 1970. Posthumously two live albums were released, the poorly recorded Live At Max's Kansas City and 1969, a recording of gigs in Texas and San Francisco that year.

A comprehensive list of retrospective compilations appears in the discography. Some of the most notable include VU, which appeared in February 1985 but has been reissued several times since. It is a collection of unreleased studio recordings from 1968-9. It became their most successful album commercially, climbing to No. 87 in the U.S. Album Charts. This was augmented the following year by Another View, which has also been reissued a number of times and compiled another batch of previously unissued recordings by the 'B' and 'C' line-ups. Peel Slowly And See (5-CD box) that contains all four of the studio albums released by the Lou Reed line-up, and a wealth of previously unreleased goodies. The first disc features a drummer-less 1965 rehearsal tape that was found in John Cale's loft with very different almost folky versions of most of the important songs from their classic debut, as well as a song that only made it onto Nico's debut album (Wrap Your Troubles In Dreams), and the previously unreleased Dylanesque Prominent Men. There are also seven outtakes from Loaded as well as songs from Reed's early solo albums; various other unreleased live and studio items, highlighted by a scorching live 1967 Guess I'm Falling In Love and the 1969 demo Countess From Hong Kong as well as highlights from VU and Another View, longer versions of Sweet Jane and New Age from Loaded, and the set is accompanied by an 80-page booklet. Chronicles (3-CD) compiles their first three albums and arguably contains most of what you need by the band, though by contrast Peel Slowly And See contains everything you need. On the Velvet Underground Story (2-CD) disc one features recordings by the original line-up and material from White Light/White Heat, while disc two features cuts from the self-titled album and Loaded. Rock Legends compiles tracks from their first four albums; Playlist + Plus (3-CD) features tracks from their first four albums plus cuts from Nico and Lou Reed solo albums; and Velvet Underground and Nico: Rarities Edition contains the second disc from the 2002 double-disc Deluxe Edition of the classic 1967 album. This means that it's essentially the mono mix of the album - along with single versions of All Tomorrow's Parties, Sunday Morning and Femme Fatale, plus an alternate take of I'll Be Your Mirror.

Cale and Reed later achieved the popular success that eluded them with The Velvets through a series of solo albums. Nico, who had appeared in Warhol's movie 'Chelsea Girls' prior to joining Velvet Underground, also released three solo albums (Chelsea Girl, The Marble Index and Desertshore) with assistance from Cale before emigrating to Paris in 1971. Her career fell into disarray during the rest of the '70s and the '80s as she struggled with a massive drug habit and tangled personal life. She released several live albums on various labels, but only managed two more studio albums; Drama Of Exile (1981) and Camera Obscura (1985) and then tragically died of a cerebral hemorrhage in Ibiza in 1988.

In 2006 an acetate copy of the original, unreleased ("4-25-66") version of the The Velvet Underground album, with different running order and mixes, turned up on Ebay; this "N. Dolph" copy eventually went for over $25,000! It was made available on vinyl as Unripened (No label) 2009 with a tongue-in-cheek green banana cover design.

In retrospect, The Velvets' first album, with its harsh loud music and its lyrical obsession with decadence, was probably the most significant album of this era in that it previewed the aggressive punk sounds to emerge in the late seventies. See the discography above for details of some the compilations of their material.

The Venetian Blinds (TX)

45:	Just Knowing You Love Me/ Quit Your Belly Achin' Baby	(Grudge GR 1651) 1967

The Venetian Blinds operated out of San Antonio, Texas. Ric Jansen wrote, arranged and produced the flip, a raw garage number, which has resurfaced on Texas Punk From The Sixties (LP) and Sixties Archives 2 (CD). (VJ)

The Venturie '5' (NM)

45:	The Way You Feel/Good'N'Bad	(Venturie 1001) 1966

The flip of this Roswell, New Mexico garage band's solo bid for stardom, a raw and rather routine effort, can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 (LP), Quagmire Volume 8 (CD) and Now Hear This! (CD). They disintegrated when the lead singer was drafted after graduating from high school. (VJ)

45s:	Have You Ever/The Note	(Jaguar 103) 1967
	Have You Ever/The Note	(Mijji 3005) 1967

A California band based in Redwood City, The Venus Flytrap was formed in late 1966 by Sanchez. When Czapkay was drafted shortly after the release of their single, he was replaced by Bard Dupont, formerly of the Great Society and fresh from the Demon Lover, who had earlier included Pete Sessions. When Morgan departed Dupont's partner Michele Sevryn was brought in on vocals but Dupont himself quit soon after in early 1968. For the full story, check out Alec Palao's article in 'Cream Puff War #2'.

Have You Ever is a plaintive folk-punk ballad full of chiming guitars, which can also be heard on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 6 (LP & CD). The Note, full of angst and more tinkling tearful guitars, is also worthy of note (!) and has resurfaced on the Acid and Flowers (CD), Girls In The Garage, Vol. 2 (CD) and Girls In The Garage, Vol. 6 (LP). 45s:		Cyclothymia/Farmers Daughter	(Rickarby 106) 1967
	α	Somethin' Like A Man/Warm In The Rain	(Rickarby 107) 1968

NB: α also released with two versions of Somethin'... presumably a promo-only 45.

This cool-lookin' teen quartet from Mobile, Alabama was popular on the Port City scene in the late sixties, appearing at venues like The Stork Club and The Happening. Somethin' Like A Man is a sultry fuzz-popper with Eastern-flavoured guitar.

Cyclothymia, a sultry fuzz-punker clearly inspired by the Kinks' You Really Got Me, deserves the honour of being the opening cut on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). The uncompiled flip is a winsome version of Brian Wilson's Farmers (sic) Daughter. Somethin' Like A Man is now compiled on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (MW)

Very-Ations (AL)

45:	She Can't Be Won/I'm So Lonely	(Rink NR 541/2) 1966

This bunch of students from Birmingham, Alabama sole single was released on an Atlanta, Georgia label. She Can't Be Won also appears on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 1 (CD). (MW)

Vestells (PA)

45:	Won't You Tell Me/Please Walk Away	(Bo Jo 001) 1966

Out of Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania the band recorded the above single at the Cameo Parkway studios in Philadelphia. Won't You Tell Me, is a very routine garage-punk offering. The group split in 1967 when all three members were drafted for the Vietnam War.

Won't You Tell Me can also be found on Back From The Grave, Vol. 5 (LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD). (VJ)

EP:	1(B)	MIKE VETRO AND THE CELLAR DWELLERS (PS)	(Art 2006) 1966

A Florida outfit based in the Miami area whose rare EP contains That's Not True, You Got Me Running, I Want To Go Home, Summertime, Slow Motion and I Saw Her In A Mustang. The latter is a cover of Sambataro's previous band The Vandals (from Hollywood, Florida).

That's Not True, is a rollicking party swinger with a frenetically-fingered lead solo and impressive drumming. Sambataro would re-emerge a decade later in Firefall. Mike Vetro was previously in Fort Lauderdale's Continentals with Leckie; later he fronted Mike Vetro's Soul Brothers, became a lounge lizard, released a cabaret-style album in Live'n Kickin' At The Losers (Vetrix 8070) in 1970 and then became a booking agent.

Compilation appearances include: Mustang on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 1 (CD); and That's Not True on Psychedelic States - Florida Vol. 2 (CD). (MW/JLh/RM)

NB: (1) came in a plain white cover with a wrap around photo cover that has the lyrics on the inside. 1,000 copies were pressed. (1) reissued on CD (Left) 2002 with seven bonus tracks.

From Worcester, Massachusetts a "real people" acid-folk outfit with some electric tracks, fragile vocals and Eastern influences. Their sole album is beginning to interest some collectors.

Nowadays, Kevin Vicalvi's based out of Nashville and still very much a working musician. (SR/JAt/RB)

The Vice-Roys formed in Chicago and spent a decade (1960-1970) touring all across the US occasionally stopping off to lay down some tracks on wax. This has caused confusion amongst collectors ever since. Leader Richard Giannini was in contact with Gary Myers (author of the Wisconsin book 'Do You Hear That Beat') to straighten the facts, given that some of their singles have been attributed to Californian and Seattle outfits.

Their early forays were instrumentals. Seagrams was their most successful, bubbling up to No. 127 on the Billboard charts. For some reason the famous whiskey maker of that name did not appreciate the free publicity so the single had to be repressed, with an amended title of Sea Green.

Around this time there may have been an album released on Bethlehem, but this has yet to be confirmed.

In late 1967 whilst in San Mateo, The Viceroys put down their final waxing on a small Sunnyvale, California label D&C. Five Steps To Hell marked an update in style. It's a glorious slab of fuzzy distorted garage-psych and can be experienced on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD). The track was taken from a 12" acetate that gave no band identity, but this failed to defeat super-sleuth Mike Markesich. (MW/GM/MM/RM)

	Bacon Fat/Until	(Bolo 750) 1965
	That Sound/Tired Of Waiting For You	(Bolo 754) 1965

This was a significant Pacific Northwest outfit. Like early Paul Revere this was basically a rockin' instrumental group though they did use 'featured vocalists' including Jimmy Pigskins, Erin Stuart and Nancy Clair at various times. After founder Jim Valley left to join Don and The Goodtimes, a change in style took place resulting in the bouncy beater That Sound, backed by a solid cover of The Kinks song. The transformation was completed with the renaming to The Surprise Package, who redid That Sound as Out Of My Mind for good measure.

Keyboardist Mike Rogers also played in The Viceroys prior to them becoming The Surprise Package.

Compilation appearances include: That Sound on Boulders, Vol. 11 (LP); and Goin' Back To Granny's; and Granny's Pad on Bolo Bash (LP). (MW/DR/JA/TWg)

Victims of Chance (CA)

ALBUMS:	1	VICTIMS OF CHANCE	(Crestview CRS 3052) 1969 R1
	2	GOIN' HOME BLUE	(No label 1014) 197?

This bunch came from L.A. Victims Of Chance is of minor interest to some collectors. The title track is very pleasant and accessible, but the rest of the album is extremely freeform and experimental (with lots of brass) and very much an acquired taste. They certainly had lots of recording freedom! Most of the material was composed by the ubiquitous Johnny Kitchen who may have been in the band. There is a very strong Zappa influence here. Goin' Home Blue was housed in the "Century" mill cover, also used by Fifth Flight on their Into Smoke Tree Village release and is mostly light country-rock.

Johnny Kitchen is also associated with a number of obscure tax-loss releases on the Album World imprint, and Canadian releases on the Condor label including Crazy People. (VJ)

NB: (1) was a demo album issued in a plain white jacket. (2) is an alternate pressing of (1), with the title shown rubber-stamped on the front of the sleeve. (2) contains fewer tracks than (1). (1) reissued on vinyl (Little Indians #7) 1997, in a red velveteen jacket with gold foil embossed print and on CD (Little Indians LI 7) 1998 (1) reissued again on CD with several previously unreleased bonus tracks (Shadoks Music CD 065) 2005.

Here's a rare local New Jersey private press, with an "odd" sound created by this largely female group and featuring horns prominently on several tracks. 200 copies of the album were pressed in 1971, and Ruban distributed a quantity of them through Europe while on a motorcycle trip in the early seventies.

Victoria may be connected in some manner to Dirty Martha.

CD: 1(A/B/C) VICTORIOUS (Arf! Arf! AA-099) 2006

VICTORIA - Self Titled (Little Indians) CD.

VICTORIA (NJ).

The Victorious CD presents a comprehensive 31-track retrospective of the band, from 1964 to 1966, with a 20-page booklet featuring lots of archival photos and graphics, a band history by Doug Sheppard of 'Ugly Things' magazine, and recollections from their producer, Warren Kendrick. All except two cuts are from original analogue master tapes. This is all the more amazing when one considers that the band had no releases during their existence, except when line-up 'B' (with schoolfriend Lokken replacing Crill) was assembled as a one-off by Warren Kendrick to record a single as the Scotsmen.

Crill was replaced by Denny Waite in the summer of 1965 and 11 tracks on the CD feature this final line-up. It was after Leach moved to California in the summer of 1966 that Kane & Waite decided they needed to form a new band, to progress beyond just being a locally popular covers band and thus began The Litter.

They can also be heard on the album, Electras vs. Scotsmen/Victors (Get Hip GHAS 5066) 1993, which contains tracks from 1965 to 1968. However, if you want to know more - go for the Arf! Arf! collection.

Compilation appearances include: Midnight Hour, I Ain't Gonna Eat Out My Heart Anymore, One More Time, Mister You're A Better Man Than I and Little Girl on The Best Of The Electras (LP) and The Scotty Story - Minnesota's Legendary '60s Rock Label! (CD). (MW/VJ/GG)

45s: You Can't Do That/Summertime (Salem SR-007) 1965
Blue Feeling/I Ain't Got You (Star Rhythm SR-1 001) 1980

Operating out of the Taunton, Massachusetts area, this band was strongly influenced by the British invasion sound. Indeed, the 'A' side of their sole offering at the time - You Can't Do That - was a Lennon/McCartney composition and they advertised themselves as 'The Vikings: Featuring The Exciting English Sound'. The Star Rhythm single was released in the early eighties, but recorded back in 1965. In fact the Vikings recorded 10 songs that year and Decca showed some interest in the tapes of the sessions, but almost simultaneously with this the band split when two members were drafted. Bay State Rock (LP) includes You Can't Do That, Blue Feeling and I Ain't Got You along with two otherwise unreleased tracks from their 1965 session: - Have Mercy and Hitch Hike. (VJ)

45s:	Come On And Love Me/I Will Never Go	(Viking 1000) 1966
	Cherish The Love You Feel/Golden Girl	(Lowery 360) 1968

Here's a different Vikings, this time from deepest Alabama. The first single was recorded by Ed Boutwell in Birmingham, Alabama and although Come On And Love Me is a fairly standard garage dirge, I Will Never Go has a New Colony Six vocal sound. Both sides were co-written by Charles Nettles. This influence continues on their second single, where Cherish... again written by Nettles sounds just like Mercury-era New Colony Six! Some might hate this for its orchestration, but others will like it. The flip side is a Tommy Roe cover, which is very common for Lowery-related acts!

Charles Nettles must have been a big fan of the New Colony Six, who did get airplay in the South at the time with I Confess and Love You So Much.

The later line-up included Wayne Perkins who left in 1968 for Muscle Shoals, where he became an in-demand sessioneer; he also toured with numerous acts including visiting Brit bands Argent, Free, Fairport Convention and Uriah Heep.

Come On And Love Me can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 8 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). (JLh/VJ)

Dregors and Harden joined The Boys who evolved into the Deep Six, later known as Florida Deep Six. They in turn became Mouse & The Boys (& Brass) who enjoyed local success until the end of the decade. Meanwhile drummer Butch Trucks had moved on to the Bitter Ind, who evolved into Tiffany System and thence 31st Of February; in 1969 he teamed up with Duane and Gregg to form the Allman Brothers Band, for whom he has kept tempo these past 40 years. NB: Extinct pressing of 100 copies. Reissued on yellow wax with a picture sleeve and bio (Norton 45-136) 2007.

An incredibly rare single, few if any of the original 100 copies survive, so just be grateful that Norton have reissued it and saved everyone a fortune. This band and single encapsulate both the garage band ethic and the throwaway society.

Miriam Linna's notes reveal that the band came together in Champion, Ohio in 1963 when Joe Propri appropriated the services of two of his brothers, engaging Jerry Parker later to complete the beat-band format when the Invasion wave broke. The Vikings played few gigs and had just the one recording session, pressing up just 100 copies to give to friends & family, before they split in 1965. More than 40 years later they and their families must have been amazed to discover that their vanity platter had become a priceless heirloom, given the prices that serious collectors would pay should one ever come up for sale. The Village Outcast (aka The Village Outcasts) (DE)

45:	Under The Thumb/The Girl I Used To Love	(Echo 711-2) 1967

Hailing from Dover in Delaware, their version of The Rolling Stones' Under My Thumb was retitled Under The Thumb and is not a bad effort, coming with a solid organ backing, typical garage beat and effective vocals. The flip is also a great teen organ-punker.

This band also contributed a version of Hello, I Love You to the 1968 album Hazelton '68 (LP) as The Village Outcasts.

Compilation appearances include: Under The Thumb on Pebbles, Vol. 21 (LP) and Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP); and The Girl I Used To Love on Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP) and Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (CD). (VJ)

	Where Have You Been (All My Life)/ Every Saturday	(Atco 6517) 1967
	Thank You Baby/A Shot Of Rhythm & Blues	(Atco 6568) 1968

The best-known of many sixties Villagers hailed from the Florida communities of Chipley, Wewahitchka and Marianna. They recorded just across the border at the F.A.M.E. studios (Florence Alabama Music Enterprises) and with local hits there, came to be regarded frequently as an Alabama band.

Their forte was catchy and commercial beat-pop with an Invasion flavour and their debut kicks off in that fashion with a good version of the Tam's Laugh It Off backed by a Beatles ditty - the lead vocalist has a timbre not unlike that of Manfred Mann's Paul Jones.

The follow-up is most sought-after by garage fans - Cool It, featuring some low-down fuzz, is compiled on It's A Hard Life. It was their only walk on the wild side and they returned to accessible pop with Where Have You Been.

Compilation appearances include: Cool It on It's A Hard Life (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD); and You Can't Stay on Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD). (MW/MM/JLh)

Villagers (NC)

45: Bring Me A Rose/C.C. Rider (JCP 1005) 1964

Despite being on the collectible JCP label, these Villagers turn out to be an old-school folk band in the mould of The Seekers or The Springfields, so we are not talking folk-rock here. Bring Me A Rose is a weak folk-pop ballad that's been compared to The Seekers, despite the lack of female vocalist. Their version of C.C. Rider is done in a traditional upbeat folk style, ala 1964-era MFQ. Apparently this Raleigh band even had their own TV show. Be aware that they had several releases on JCP, Petal, and possibly one on Village Square (see Villagers (SC) below), in the early-to-mid sixties. (MW/MM/JLh)

Villagers (OH, Dayton)

45: He's Not The Same/Sunshine My Way (Hamlet V-1000) 1968

This garagy girl group from Dayton, Ohio recorded He's Not The Same, a mid-tempo beater with primitive chops that sounds more like 1964, backed by a gloomy folk-rock ballad (despite the title). (MW/MM)

Villagers (SC)

45: You're My Baby (Don't You Forget It)/You Don't Know What You've Got (Until You Lose It) (Village Square 1001) 1966

Supposedly from Charleston, South Carolina and unconnected to the folk band above from Raleigh; however we're not convinced, it could still be the North Carolina band. Again this is a large group with several mature singers, not a teen outfit. You're My Baby is encouragingly energetic yet, despite some raw guitar, it is still big-production pop as opposed to garage. The flip is a dramatic big-production teener-ballad. (MW)

John Villemonte hailed from Madison, Wisconsin and his singer/songwriter albums are highly-rated by some collectors. People Like You is melodic with lovely vocal harmonies, interesting phasing and a decent mix of acoustic and electric jams. Just 200 copies were reportedly pressed. The follow-up This is similar in style and has also attracted attention from collectors in recent years. NB: (1) reissued on CD (Radioactive 0093) 2004.

Wild progressive instrumental power trio sounds, recorded in New York, although the group originally came from San Antonio, Texas. A real killer in the style, this album is going to be outside the realm of this book for some, and yet some dealers describe it as psychedelic, so go figure. A good record is a good record and this one is recommended!

The band ceased recording after Tony (Anthony) Viola was tragically killed in an auto-train wreck in August 1974. (CF/SGg)

ALBUM: 1 VIRGIL CAINE (Fulcrum) 197? R4

This is an extremely rare lo-fi minimalist country-folk-blues album with heavily strummed chords and quite a lot of improvisation recorded by a trio who are pictured on the front cover. Virgil Cane was the fictional character of Robbie Robertson's The Night They Drove Old Dixie Down from The Band's second album released in 1969, telling us about the defeat of the South in the Civil War. The band sounds quite inexperienced and the production quite amateurish, but whilst some see elements of Bob Dylan in the music and others quote The Holy Modal Rounders as the closest influence in truth the music doesn't sound much like anything else. Songs like Hope and Pilgrims Progress are fragile, but the vocals are weak. There's An X In The Middle Of Nixon is more upbeat with catchy guitar, Swamp Witch starts with almost spoken lyrics but has quite a catchy chorus and Honey Don't Believe features some quite mellow, melodic guitar. (1) reissued on CD (P-Vine PCD 23739) 2005 with seven bonus tracks from an unreleased album by their leader Bob Long. There's also a CD release of the previously unreleased Toad Frog and Fish Friends/Odometer Suite (P-Vine PCD 23740) 2006, which includes two 2005 cuts from the line-up currently gigging at the time.

From Dallas, Texas came this extremely rare basement folk/folk-rock album with mixed vocals. It's usually rated as one of the best privately-pressed seventies folk albums and benefits from quite strong songwriting and arrangements. They recorded a second unreleased album Toad Frog and Fish Friends in 1971 and their leader Bob Long recorded an unreleased album too, The Odometer Suite in 1973.

The band reformed in 2005 and the P-Vine CD Toad Frog and Fish Friends/Odometer Suite finally gave an airing to these two previously unreleased albums and two bonus tracks from the 2005 act. (VJ)

(Avco Embassy AVE 33007) 1970 SC

From Los Angeles and produced by Howie Kane, this group is typical of the Californian hippie groups: good male and female vocals and sophisticated arrangements using various keyboards and flutes. Unfortunately, the songwriting skills of Gerald Hauser were rather limited and the album, which is quite rare now, is only an average offering, with some songs being too mellow and several lyrics having a Christian content (You Get What You Pray For).

The best tracks are Bizarrek Kind written by Rex Holman, the nice She Said (the only track with a long electric guitar solo) and Stranger Here. The cover of Jerry Jeff Walker's Mr Bojangles is easily dispensable. (SR)

45: Where It's At/Vito And The Hands (Living Legend 69) 1966

On this Kim Fowley-produced single, a long hippie rap turns into an acid garage freak-out. It featured Vito backed by the Mothers Of Invention... Vito was a bohemian sculptor and dance master, who led a group of Los Angeles free spirits, holding love fests and parties, back in the sixties.

Originally from Lowell, Massachusetts he came from a very artistic background and learnt wood carving at an early age. In 1938, he was convicted of attempted robbery, but released into service in 1942. After the war he relocated to L.A. where he latter became involved with the circle of freaks surrounding the Mothers, Fraternity Of Man and Kim Fowley.

Vito eventually became mayor of the small Sonoma County town of Cotati, a hippie enclave near Santa Rosa. He later died from a blood disease.

Vito And The Hands can also be found on Kim Fowley - Underground Animal (LP). (SBn/MW)

This album was released on a subsidiary of the Hendersonville, Tennessee Album World tax-loss label that had links to Johnny Kitchen. It may also have been related to the Tiger Lily label. Each release was given a different company name - hence the Mark Holly label. The album also had connections to the movie 'Gone In 60 Seconds'. It's only 24 minutes long and has some tracks mis-labelled on side two. Musically, on offer is seventies rock of no specific genre with some decent slide guitar - it's really only going to interest hard-core collectors. (VJ)

	6	2ND RIGHT 3RD ROW	(Poppy PYS-5705) 1972

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Prestige PR-7717) 1969.

From Boston, Eric Von Schmidt began his career in the late fifties and is recognised as a gifted composer, a fine guitarist and a good folk-blues singer. A very influential musician, it should be noted that Bob Dylan wrote the liner notes on his fourth and fifth albums while Richard Farina penned the notes for his second. He was also influential on many East Coast blues/folk singers: Geoff Muldaur, Tom Rush, Jim Kweskin etc.

His 1964 album was produced by Sam Charters and featured Geoff Muldaur and Mel Lyman. The song Joshua Gone Barbados was covered by Tom Rush and several other folk and blues acts.

The Smash album is considered a collector's item among Bob Dylan fans since Bob wrote the liner notes on the back. The song Catch It, was written about Richard Fariña. Some copies of the album came with a lyric sheet inside. The lyric sheet is four pages and is illustrated by von Schmidt. Catch It also appeared on the flip side of Eric's single, Living On The Corner (Mercury/Smash S-2238), and the song was also recorded by Geoff and Maria Muldaur on their 1971 album, Pottery Pie. The album came in two different covers, each with a different expression on Eric's face. Musically, the album veered away from Von Schmidt's usual blues style; it's an eclectic, Sgt. Peppery set with unusual instruments like cembalet, calliope and Japanese bells. Von Schmidt penned all the material.

ERIC VON SCHMIDT - Eric Von Schmidt And The Cruel Family LP.

The 1972 album on Poppy was produced by Jim Rooney and Michael Cuscuna, arranged by and engineered by Nick Jameson, the leader of American Dream. Turtle Beach is a promising tune that starts off Eric Von Schmidt's 2nd Right, 3rd Row. It's a good and relaxed effort, with support of Paul Butterfield, Geoff and Maria Muldaur, Billy Mundi, Garth Hudson, Stu Brotman (Kaleidoscope), Jim Colegrove (Bo Grumpus), Ben Keith (Mother Earth, Neil Young) and Amos Garrett.

His records are now quite rare. He also had two tracks on Elektra's 1964 The Blues Project (LP) sampler. Von Schmidt was also a noted painter and illustrator; his name can be found on sleeves of records by The Blue Velvet Band or Geoff and Maria Muldaur. (SR/VJ)

A southern rock trio influenced by Lynyrd Skynyrd with cuts like The Angel Came And Went and Pigsty Blues. The second track A Soldier's Lament is possibly the best. Their album was issued in limited quantities (1,000 copies) and is of marginal interest here. (SR)

After the failure of Roxy, Segarini and Bishop went on to form The Wackers with William "Kootch" Trochim, who was with Segarini in Family Tree. Produced by Gary Usher (Sagittarius, Byrds), their three albums are typical of the early seventies California rock-pop scene and some rate their albums quite highly (some others may find them boring!). Wackering Heights was produced by Gary Usher. Their sunny debut disc drew from influences like The Byrds and The Monkees to produce a catchy pop sound. Their best moment may be the cover of Oh My Love, the Lennon/Ono song with a surprising koto, on their second album. They have one cut Captain Nemo compiled on Who Put The Bomp (LP).

Segarini then moved to Canada and had a solo career there. (SR/CF)

The single version of Sweet Mary, which is noticeably different from the album version, hit No. 7 on the Billboard Hot 100. The follow-up single, Michigan Harry Slaughter, failed to reach the Billboard charts, but hit No. 99 on the Cashbox Top 100.

45s:	Bad Girl/A Rainy Day	(Date 1577) 1967
	Sunshine/Little Girl	(Date 1596) 1967

Wagner had previously fronted The Bossmen from the Flint/Saginaw area of Michigan and formed this outfit in 1967. They would soon adopt the snappy moniker Frost and would garner success into the seventies with three fine albums and several singles in the hard-rock style prevalent on the Michigan underground/rock scene at that time.

The singles should be seen as a transition between the Invasion-inspired Bossmen and Frost. They're in a lighter vein but are still recommended and not hard to find. Sunshine is a fine example of an American band playing British style flower-power rock. Bad Girl is a re-release of a neat beat-ballad done by The Bossmen, whereas A Rainy Day is an orchestrated ballad. All appear with The Bossmen singles on The Complete Bossmen CD (Wagner Music Group, 1995).

Wagner's name is to be found on releases by numerous area acts, as writer and/or producer: - Bells Of Rhymney, Cherry Slush, Sand, Terry Knight and The Pack and The Wanderers, to mention just a few.

In the seventies, he played with Lou Reed then joined the revamped Alice Cooper band in 1974, writing some of his most famous songs including Only Women Bleed, Welcome To My Nightmare and How Ya Gonna See Me Now. He was still active on the music scene into the new millennium.

Guitarist Mark Farner moved onto hard-rock behemoths Grand Funk Railroad.

Compilation appearances include: Sunshine on Mindrocker, Vol. 7 (LP); and the previously unreleased Mystery Man on A-Square (Of Course) (CD). (VJ/MW/JJn/CRn)

NB: α 'A' side "with The Scotchmen", 'B' side "with The Ones".

This garage-punk act operated out of Santa Ana, California. Ty Wagner was an early sixties rocker who survived the onslaught of beat and released many singles outside the scope of this book. I'm A No-Count is a classic punk anthem, whilst a later effort Slander features some great punk lyrics: - 'I thought you were hip/You're just a bum trip/Close your lyin' lip/Don't you know it's a sin/Slander, Slander'. Some great organ backing, too!

Compilation appearances have included: I'm A No Count on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 4: I'm A No Count (LP & CD), Best of Pebbles, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), The Chosen Few, Vol. 2 (LP) and Pebbles, Vol. 9: Southern California (CD); Slander on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP); and Walking Down Lonely Street on It's Finking Time (LP). The Wailers formed in the mid-late fifties in Tacoma, Washington State. Most of their original albums are now sought-after by collectors. Ormsby and Morrill were real pioneers, forming Etiquette Productions and the label in the early sixties - the first band to do so by a long way. They also recorded a single, All My Nights, All My Days/Better For Both Of Us (Jerden 789), under the pseudonym of the Breakers in 1966. By 1966 only Ormsby and Morrill remained from the original line-up, Dangel having left to form The Rooks, The Time Machine and Floating Bridge. For Outburst they were joined by Neil Anderson (ld gtr), Ron Gardner (sax, vcls) and Dave Roland (drms) (ex-Regents). Earlier in 1965 they featured on the album Merry Christmas (featuring The Sonics, Wailers and Galaxies) (Etiquette ETALB 025) 1965 playing four tracks: - She's Comin' Home, Maybe This Year, Christmas Spirit and The Christmas Song. This was reissued a few years back, but originals are very rare and collectable.

Later still Anderson was replaced by Danny Weaver (ld gtr), with Anderson going on to an act called Ice in early '68 (Neil Anderson gtr, Bob Bennet (ex-Sonics) drms, Clyde Heaton (ex-Calliope) keyb'ds plus one unknown), and then Adam Wind. Upon their demise in 1969, Gardner formed Sweet Rolle with Weaver, Roland and Dave Immer. Then, in 1972, Gardner formed the Ron Gardner Group (Ron Gardner - vcls, sax, keyb'ds; Denny Weaver - gtr; Dave Shogren - bs (ex-Doobies); Dave Immer - keyb'ds; and Doug Booth - drms), who issued a great album on MCA. This was not quite the end of the episode, for Morrill, Dangel, Ormsby, Burk and Gardner reformed in 1979 to cut a further album. Roland also had a spell with The City Zu amongst others.

The Wailers were one of Washington's most famous sixties bands and also gigged regularly in San Francisco in 1967. Of their several albums, Tall Cool One was the most successful commercially. It made No. 127 in the U.S. Album Charts back in 1964. Both the Out Of Our Tree and Outburst albums from 1966 feature some fine garage sounds, though the band's repertoire was always varied and therefore difficult to label.

Live Wire compiles some of the finest moments from their garage-punk era, including Out Of Our Tree and Hang Up along with a selection of album tracks, singles and two previously unreleased demos.

Compilation coverage has so far included Hang Up and You Weren't Using Your Head on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP); Dirty Robber on Born Bad, Vol. 6 (LP); You Weren't Using Your Head on Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 4 (CD); Beat Guitar, from 1960, on Welcome To The Beat Generation (LP); Out Of Our Tree on Nuggets Box (4-CD) and Required Etiquette (CD); You Weren't Using Your Head, The Wailer, Tomorrow's Another Day and You Better Believe It on The Northwest Rock Collection, Vol. 1 (LP); Bad Trip and You Can't Fly on Come Fly With Us.. (LP); the album version of Hang Up on Uptight Tonight (CD); I Don't Want To Follow You on Ain't It Hard (CD); She's Comin' Home, Christmas Spirit, Maybe This Year and The Christmas Song on Merry Christmas From The Sonics Etc (LP); and All My Nights, All My Days, under the pseudonym of the Breakers on Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 2 (LP) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 3 (LP). These very obscure recordings from 1970 by this forgotten El Paso, Texas band have been brought to a wider audience as a result of this retrospective. Their music ranges from heavier rock to soft, melodic moments with long trippy passages. Two tracks, Scissor Tailed Swallow and Country Of The Goose are particularly notable for their unusual rhythms and the album is worth investigation. Band member Douglas Adams later led the San Francisco Bay Area eastern music ensemble Light Rain who issued several albums in the late seventies-early eighties. (VJ)

CD: 1(C) THE LOST WARTHOG TAPES (Gear Fab GF-193) 2002

Well done to Gear Fab for bringing this to a wider audience. Wakefield was from Pueblo, Colorado where they formed in 1969. They gigged extensively around the Pacific Northwest until their break up in 1974.

When Steve Moore left the band they auditioned many people for his slot, but eventually decided they would be best off having one of the other band members fill in on keyboards when required. They met Brent Lewis from San Francisco who presented an act called 'Pulse'. They toured with him for several months and through him met Paul Zamucen who initially sat in for them on congas, timbales and tympanis (because they played a lot of Santana songs in their act) and eventually became a member. He was in the line-up that recorded a concept album for Warthog Studios in Denver between 1971 and 72 that remained in the can until this release. Ron Struthers left the band in late 1972. They changed managers and moved to Seattle from where they played in Vancover, British Columbia, Spokane, Ellensburg and several other towns in Washington State. In 1973, they embarked on a three-month residency in Anchorage, Alaska and this was one of the highs of their career. Their final gig was supporting Red Bone in Pueblo during June 1974. By then they were a three-piece (Bobby Barth, Charlie Ferrill and Carl Malcon).

Comprising three tracks recorded in Seattle in the early sixties and 11 tracks cut at Warthog Studio in Denver a year or two earlier, the CD exists thanks to the discovery of the Warthog reel-to-reel tape by Colorado collector Michael Stelk. It has some fine wah-wah fuzz guitar, dreamy harmonies and woodwind and is recommended. (VJ)

Peter Walker was a guitarist and the musical director of the "Celebrations" of Dr. Timothy Leary, who wrote the liner notes to the first album ("Peter Walker plays on the ancient protein strings of the genetic code"!!). Produced by Sam Charters (one of the Vanguard house producers, who later produced Country Joe), Rainy Day Raga is an instrumental album with nine of his compositions and a cover of Norwegian Wood. Very quiet and relaxing, it's supposed to be an association of Indian music (notably by using drones and tamboura) with folk music: the American folk raga was born!

Produced by Michael Chechik, the second album Second Poem To Karmela Or Gypsies Are Important was recorded with Jim Pepper. Although a bit less inspired than his debut, it is still recommended.

Jeremy Steig would later form Jeremy and The Satyrs and become a renowned jazz musician. (SR)

This was a Stones/Them-influenced outfit from Springfield, Massachusetts and they made some classic '66 style punk recordings. In particular Gotta Get Some and Train Kept A-Rollin feature some excellent frantic guitar and vitriolic vocals.

Wonder what Montgomery, Alabama's famously reactionary Governor, George Wallace, uttered when his son told him that he wanted to make a pop record? Probably he launched a tirade about juvenile delinquents and degenerate long-hairs.

GW Junior had several releases, most of which fall outside the scope of this project but Think!!, from the fall of '66, has been revisited on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD). It comes across like a rallying call over a stomping beat soundtrack and, with lines like "look around you and be proud of what you've got" and "..and then you'll know what freedom means", may even have gained paternal approval. Then again ?

Eventually he bowed to the inevitable and followed his father into the world of politics. (MW)

45: (I'm Gonna) Fill The Hole In Your Soul/
C'mon And Work (St. Clair STC-007) 1966

(I'm Gonna) Fill The Hole In Your Soul is a sort of Midnight Hour punker with typically reedy sound from an obscure Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania performer. You'll also find it on Winning Sides #2 (LP). The flip is another garagy R'n'B style workout - more dance club than garage fodder. (MW)

The Wallflowers (?)

45: No Love Today/The Kind Of Love (Ridon 855) 1967

A Northwest group produced by Rick Keefer, best known to readers of this book for his collaboration with The New Tweedy Bros!, Wallflowers play a charming garage-pop style, not unlike an embryonic The New Tweedy Bros!, although any further connection between the two bands is unlikely. (CF)

45: Hey Now Little Girl/Zipper (The GM Record Co 113) 1965

Probably from Gladewater in Texas, Hey Now Little Girl their sole vinyl offering was a poorly recorded but catchy punk number. The flip was an instrumental.

Hey Now Little Girl can also be found on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 2 (LP). (VJ)

45:	What's Right/Consolidated Character	(Cagg no #) 1967

This Christian garage band was based in the West Hartford area of Connecticut. Side one contains Christian songs, including two John Ylvisaker tracks, whilst side two has competent garage covers of Fire, Testify and Knock On Wood, plus an amazing nine-minute original track BSRS, which recalls early Country Joe and The Fish.

Compilation appearances include: B.S.R.S on Buzz Buzz Buzzzzzz, Vol. 1 (CD); Consolidated Character on Wyld Sydes Volume Six (CD); and What's Right on Wyld Sydes Volume Seven (CD). (SR/CF/MW)

This Milwaukee outfit's sole output was these three singles.

The Boat That I Row, a Neil Diamond composition, can also be heard on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP); You'll Forget crops up on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 15 (LP); Anytime Anywhere is on Teenage Shutdown 13 (CD); The Girl That I Love is on Badger Beat Chronicles (LP); and The Boat That I Row, You'll Forget, Love Is A Beautiful Thing and the previously unreleased Don't Know What I'd Do and In Good Time are all featured on The Cuca Records Story 2: Garagemental (CD). 	Big Town Girl/Don't Worry Baby	(A & M 856) 1967 -

Wanted operated out of Detroit in Michigan. Their first single, Here To Stay, is a rather appealing punk ballad with some nice organ and guitar backing. Their cover of Wilson Pickett's In The Midnight Hour attracted enough attention to be picked up by A & M for nationwide distribution but failed to make any impact and by the second A & M single the sound had been whittled down to plodding R'n'B pop.

Compilation appearances have included: Sad Situation on Lost Generation, Vol. 1 (LP) and Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (CD); In The Midnight Hour on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Michigan Brand Nuggets (2-LP), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP), Garagelands Vol. 1 (CD) and Michigan Nuggets (CD); Here To Stay on No No No (CD), Sixties Punk Ballads Sampler (LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 5 (CD), The Garage Zone, Vol. 4 (LP), The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP), Garagelands, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Shadows Falling (CD); Lots More Where You Came From on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 1 (LP); and Big Town Girl on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD). 45:	Why/My Baby Don't Care	(The Wanted & Co. 80232) 1968

Believed to be from Kentucky or Ohio, this outfit's single has been described as "raw blues fuzz" and has a high price on its head these days.

Why has reappeared on Aliens, Psychos & Wild Things Vol. 3 (CD) and the flip is a Gants cover. (MW)

From Sacramento, California Waphphle was formerly known as The Marauders, who'd released one earlier single - Since I Met You/I Don't Know How - on Skyview. Their Elektra sessions were produced by Bernie Krause.

Goin' Down, which is compiled on Lost Gems From The 60's Vol. 1 (EP), is a less savage reworking of an unreleased 1966 Marauders track Our Big Chance - a fabulous fuzz-punker - unearthed by Alec Palao and Joey D to be a gem in the Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 2 (2-LP & CD). (MW/RM/AP)

This is a much later and presumably different band. Tom Tourville's Dakotas's book placed them in Bismarck, North Dakota but also credited them with the Highland single above. (MW)

Warden and His Fugitives (CA)

45: The World Ain't Changed/I Love You (Bing 302) 1965

Label mates to The Hysterics, this California band was from the San Bernardino-Rialto area of California rather than L.A. as implied by The World Ain't Changed being on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP). It's not a bad folk-punker, well worth a spin.

NB: α as Lady Wilde and The Warlocks.

Rocky and Dusty Hill's first musical venture was at Woodrow Wilson High School in Dallas, together with drummer "Little" Richard Harris. Frank Beard came across Dusty and Rocky while playing for The Cellar Dwellers at the Fort Worth Cellar. The three of them, basing themselves in Dallas, Texas formed The Warlocks dying their hair blue and dropping lots of acid. Later in their brief career they teamed up with English singer Lady Wilde and backed her regularly at Dallas cinemas for British invasion movies like 'Catch Us If You Can' and 'Hard Day's Night'. They also backed her on their first single and later when she departed for a career on the stage they formed the American Blues. Originals of their singles, which had pressings of just 500, change hands for a lot of money but some of the tracks can also be found on compilations. Later still the threesome moved on to Houston, met Billy Gibbons and ZZ Top was born.

Compilation coverage has included: Life's A Mystery on Acid Visions, Vol. 2 (LP) and Acid Visions - The Complete Collection Vol. 1 (3-CD); and If You Really Want Me To Stay on Texas Flashback (The Best Of) (CD), Texas Flashbacks, Vol. 1 (LP & CD) and Flashback, Vol. 1 (LP). From the label that depicts a hairy hippie head and gave us the Huckleberry Mudflap! A delicate folkie paean to My Mary and a strummed folk-rocker My House Is On Fire that will appeal to the gentleman on the label. Warm was from North Carolina. (MW)

Anonymous popsters from New York City, Warmest Spring's second single Hard, Hard Girl is a decent Raiders/Monkees style pop-punker. It's compiled on The Lost Generation 3 (LP). Unfortunately Suddenly (You Find Love) the theme to the 'Unholy Matrimony' film, is tripe. (MW)

	Study Hall/Centipede	(Kandy Kane 408) 1967

This band operated out of Peoria, Illinois and released a string of singles of variable content. Particularly noteworthy are, Please Mr. Sullivan, a cheesy novelty item about a band pleading to appear on the 'Ed Sullivan Show' and Lonely I, which contains some pleasing chanting and feedback.

Compilation appearances include: Lonely I on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP) and The Dunwich Records Story (LP); Lonely I and I Won't Be The Same Without Her on *Oh Yeah! 45:	Don't You Just Know It/Brother Ward	(MGM 13450) 1966

From Mercer Island, Washington this group was led by Mark Chellson who went on to The Bards. Live, they used to wear red & white revolutionary costumes (akin to Paul Revere & The Raiders), and had a frantic stage presence, sometimes playing their magnum opus Crisco Party for 20 minutes! Their single also received heavy airplay locally, with KVR Radio in Seattle playing Brother Ward every night in late Feb '66. However, like so many bands of this era, college and the draft caused them to break up in the summer of '67.

An extended studio recording of the jokey Crisco Party also features on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 - Flash And Crash (LP & CD), Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (CD), Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 1 (LP), History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 2 (CD) and The History Of Northwest Rock, Vol. 4 (LP); and the previously unreleased It Takes Love can also be heard on Northwest Battle Of The Bands, Vol. 3 (CD). ALBUM:	1(A)	FRESH COUNTRY APPLES	(Delicious S-2429-30) 1970 R1

This rare album from Washington State features some decent female vocals and fuzz guitar. Side one consists of extended versions of commercial jingles they had recorded prior to this album. Some of the material on the flip (such as the cover of Summertime) and Blues For J is quite bluesy whilst Another Day has a jazzy feel. Note there is nothing to justify the psych tag that some dealers attach to this album though. The album cover has a photo of apples on a branch. (VJ)

From the Northwest, this trio was a product of the flower-power era. This single has been described as "psychedelic funk". The band was also known as The Sage Brothers and is believed to be active, 40 years on, around Cannon Beach, Oregon. No connection known to THE Greg Sage, of Beauregarde and Wipers fame. (VJ/MW)

45:	No Dice!/Mechanical Man	(Stanal 6-7137) 1966

This Kearney, Nebraska label had several releases - by The Crusaders, The Lot, The Palasades, 7 Sons and The Sunny Funny Co. Some were local Cornhuskers but the label also attracted bands from far-flung parts of the Midwest. The Watchband, for example, was from distant Duluth - in northern Minnesota on the banks of Lake Superior.

No Dice! is a cool punker about a turn-down day - it has turned up on the Sick And Tired (LP) and Trip In Tyme Vol. 1 (CD) compilations. (MW/VJ)

CD:	1(A)	FROM THE LEMON DROPS TO VIBRATION OF SEQUENCE IN ORDER	(Collectables COL-CD-0679) 1996

The Collectables retrospective is a collection of unreleased practice sessions from 1969 and through 1970, which document the evolution of the band that started life in McHenry, Illinois as The Lemon Drops. From there they trekked to San Francisco in search of fame, only to split, regroup and split again finally returning in the above incarnation, known variously as Space, Silver Watermelons and finally Watermelon. From laid-back atmospheric instrumentals to heavy acid-rock workouts with progressive tendencies, this should appeal not just to those who've followed the band through the series of Cicadelic retrospectives, but to fans of acid-rock, West Coast jams and nineties 'head music'. Recommended.

The compilation Chicago Garage Band Greats (LP)/Chicago Garage Band Greats (CD) also includes two previously unreleased cuts by the band dating from 1968:- The Ocean Song, an experimental, rather mellow song and Trilogy, an instrumental. You can also find Popsicle Girl and You Got It on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 6 (CD).

In 1970 Eddie and Gary Weiss formed an acid-rock trio under the name Buzzsaw. (MW/LP/VJ)

Formed in 1966 as the Oxford Circus in Waco, Texas by Winston Logan, the former drummer of The Headstones who'd relocated to attend Baylor University. Initially a covers band, they were augmented by Rene Best in 1969, changed their name to Watermusic and switched to concentrating on original material. Can't You Feel It, My Orange and Silver Chimes appear for the first time on the above compilation which comprises related bands: - The Headstones, Oxford Circus, Seompi - formed by ex-Headstone Dave Williams - and the Remaining Few, a late seventies band which reunited Williams and Logan. 45s:	α	Electrically Heated Child/ Saturday Morning Repentance	(Dunhill D-4118) 1968
		Veronica's Pigskin/Session Report	(Dunhill D-4143) 1968

NB: α some copies came in a lyric sleeve.

If the name of the band is anything to go by, this should be one of the most psychedelic singles ever, but it fulfils your expectations only partly. Electrically Heated Child is sweet toy-town pop-psych, quite agreeable, while the flip is much better with harmony vocals over a repetitive backing and it includes a surprising time/measure change. Overall, this is a nice but inconsequential single. (MK/MW)

	Groovy Girl/This And That	(Laurie 3457) 1968
	Workin' For My Baby/I've Been Unfaithful	(Laurie 3469) 1968

Waterproof Tinkertoy was a New York City-recorded outfit, although the band operated out of Springfield, Massachusetts. Continuation is featured on the Beyond The Calico Wall (CD) so you know it's gotta be "way out there somewhere"! Yes, it's a free-form freak-out. Baby Let Go is pleasantly upbeat with tasty keyboard and guitar moves. Their cover of Satisfaction is suitably fuzzed but in a heavy pop as opposed to garage style. The other side is lightweight pop - also prevalent on both the later Laurie singles.

Two of the band members are believed to be Tom Ide (drums) and his brother, Carl (gtr). They were originally from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania although their mother was from Springfield, Massachusetts where she was a schoolteacher. (MW/GT)

	Day In And Out/Mother Samwell	(Hip HIA 8012) 1969

From Louisville, Kentucky this trio formed in 1967. Their second single was produced by Stuart Paine and Fred Baker of The Company Front. It did very well in the local charts and was picked up by the Memphis-based Hip label. Day In And Out is good-vibe pop-rock with flowing fuzzy leads.

'Louisville's Own', a book published in 1983 by Brenda and Bill Woods, notes that the band split in 1970 and that both Burgard and Barrickman stayed in the music business, having relocated to Memphis.

Mother Samwell, with its heavy phasing, raga guitars and good vocal harmonies, can also be found on Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (LP), Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 2 (CD) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). (BM/MW)

	Stay Away (From Me Girl)/ I Can Feel The Changes	(Bollman Int'l 5036) 1977

Not to be confused with Dallas' Kenny Wayne; Shreveport, Louisiana's Kenny Wayne "Shepherd" or indeed Wayne Lacadisi, Kenny Wayne had earlier recorded with The Starchiefs and The Grapes Of Wrath.

A crossover between late sixties punk and early seventies rock, The Kamotions second single, A Better Day's A Comin', was a rough and wild protest number and can also be found on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 23 (LP) and Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD).

Child Bride their next single featured Chuck Roscoe, who is now a producer with Jennifer Warren (Germany's top female songstress) to his credit, as well as bass player with Eric Johnson and Robben Ford. Fender recently designed and named a six-string bass "The Roscoe Beck Signature Model" in his name!

It Took 27 Years came out in the summer of '74, and although un-credited was co-produced and co-written by Buddy Holly's manager/producer Norman Petty, with Wayne on piano and string machine.

KAMOTIONS - IN MOTION

KENNY WAYNE AND THE KAMOTIONS - In Motion LP.

Stay Away (From Me Girl), The Kamotions final single wasn't released until 1977, but it was recorded in Shreveport, Louisiana on New Year's Day 1972.

Their album, In Motion is a passable effort overall, including covers of Free's All Right Now, T. Bone Walker's Stormy Monday Blues, a soul medley of Joe Brown's I Got You and Ted Wright's Out Of Sight, C. Allen and J. Hill's Are You Ready and Jim Peterik's (of Ides Of March) Vehicle. Interspersed among these are a number of originals, a mixture of up-tempo rock (How Should I Feel, Child Bride and They) and pop ballads (The Day When The Sun Goes Down and Time Seems To Fly, of which the former is by far the best) penned by Kenneth W. Hagler (aka Kenny Wayne), who also designed the cover and managed a local booking agency in Texarkana, Texas.

Subsequently, Wayne has released an album as Kenny Wayne & His Very Special Guests Born With The Blues And Raised On Rock 'N' Roll; and he later recorded a new 18-track album Rockin' Little Redwater, Texas Boy which he describes as "The best damn record that I've ever made!!"

It should be noted that the two hard-rock albums, released as by Kenny Wayne are in fact the work of the other Kenny Wayne from Dallas. (VJ)

45:	Hey Girl I'm In Love With You/ Don't Give Your Love To Anyone	(R&R R 103) 1969

Wazoo was from Cleveland, Ohio. Their single was issued on a New York City label and comprises late sixties soft pop-rock - not 'garage' as sometimes claimed. It sounds not dissimilar to later (Young) Rascals material - pleasant but very average.

The obscure Wazoo album on an equally obscure Michigan label is strange indeed - the personnel as listed above is sketchy due to the lack of info on the gatefold sleeve, with its welter of named and unnamed photos, but Robert DiPasquale had previously been in Bocky and The Visions. Musically the album contains an odd mix of brassy jazz-rock with The Fugs and lots of weird st thrown in: anti-war and anti-establishment jibes, some nice baroque touches, a soupcon of avant-garde, some heady lyrics, and barrages of war and off-the-wall sound effects... all of which make for a challenging listen. Noteworthy moments include: the 11-minute jazz-psych trip of The Way I See It; the bluesy fuzz of Sleep On; the amazing bad-trip noise of Arnie Funny Far Fackor which should only be listened to in a padded room; and the excellent heavy fuzz-and-feedback blast of BH Man that closes the album in a more accessible acid-rock vein.

George Katsakis recalls: - "I was also the leader of a group formed in 1958 called the Royaltones. I used the name Konstantine because it was my father's name. The Wazoo album was recorded in Novi, Michigan at a studio that was owned by Bob Adell. The studio was located in a building that is now known as the Novi Expo Center and Arnie of Arniefunnyfarfacker was the recording engineer".

The CD reissue reproduces the sleeve photos/liners and George Katsakis adds his recollections to the booklet. (MW/GGI/GK)

From the Valley community in Alabama, this unusually-named band suffered a label misprint on their debut. Their name should have read W.C. DOAN .... as in We Can't Decide On A Name!

Their upbeat garage-popper I Need You, with its call-and-response harmonies and screams, has been popular with compilers since the eighties; you can hear it on Vile Vinyl Vol.1 (LP), Vile Vinyl (CD), Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD), and Teen Blast #2 (CD).

The 1969 follow-up Poppy belies its name, being glorious heavy acid-rock ?about a girl named Poppy. More unusual is that it's the top side - Magic Tomorrow is a more commercial, and poppy, song. (MW/VJ)

I'm Not Your Steppin' Stone/Round World (Mercury 72578) 1966

This Los Angeles band is thought to have recorded the first version of I'm Not Your Stepping Stone. However, perhaps their most successful number was Hippy Elevator Operator, which demonstrated the band's commercial aspirations and underground pretensions. Also worthy of note - Don't Lose The Girl is a simmering mid-slow punker with strong moody vocals probably from Richard Fortunato [based on the fabulous April '66 Vejtables sessions that finally saw light of day on the Good Things Are Happening (CD)]. With snarling guitar and a mean break, this oozes class throughout. Round World has a lighter feel with orchestrated backing and softer harmonies but retains a cool folk-rock/pop aura with some sharp guitar mixed low.

A later recruit to the band was George Caldwell from The Bees.

Shorten the name to Electric String Band, and then ESB and you have an outfit featuring a Caldwell, George ex-Bees Caldwell (+Zinner, Patrick Burke, Steve Lagana and Richard Fortunato). And when ESB became a three-piece they became Fields.

No Good News/Stop (NWI 2745) 1971

Originally from Las Vegas in Nevada, this band later relocated to Oregon. Their first single became an anthem for the flower children at Portland's Spring Trips Festival in 1967. The flip, Little Girl is also a great raw punker that displays Fred's raucous vocals and some savage guitar work. Sadly, though, it was all a little too raw for the American record buying public at the time and didn't sell.

The band also spent a lot of time in Los Angeles where they came under the influence of Lord Tim Hudson, manager of The Seeds. He didn't like the combination of pushing The Weeds on the road with The Seeds to promote the album they'd just recorded so their name was changed to The Lollipop Shoppe with the above line-up still intact. The group didn't like the name and after the album and singles failed to generate riots, they returned to the Northwest and put out the N.W.I. single as The Weeds once more. Both No Good News and Stop are lead-weighted downer-rock. The others broke away but Fred Cole kept going... In 1975, he released a highly-rated hard-rock album by his group Zipper. Later, in 1979, he was in a hard-core outfit, The Rats. He's become something of a cult figure since with Dead Moon, and had earlier recorded as Deep Soul Cole.

The Way Back collection contains the first official reissue of The Weeds' 1966 single and The Lollipop Shoppe album authorised by Fred Cole. It seems the band never changed their name to The Lollipop Shoppe - it was changed for them by their manager. Both reissue formats (CD and LP) have been remastered and add six extra tracks to the original album and the reissue album is pressed on 180 gram audiophile vinyl.

Compilation appearances have included: It's Your Time on Nuggets, Vol. 8: The Northwest (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD) and Gravel Volume 4 (CD); and It's Your Time, Stop and Little Girl on Filling The Gap (4-LP box). (VJ/MW)

45: Weird/Give Me A Try (Nu Sound Ltd. 6111) 1966

The Wee Four hailed from Rochester, New York with a song called Weird which cropped up on an extremely obscure single. The lyrics seem to deride the singer's girlfriend, there's some pretty wild drumming, some driving guitar and pretty good vocals. Not bad at all. Give Me A Try is a slow Beatlesque beat ballad. Another unreleased cut made it onto acetate - I Could Never Be Blue, a subdued Byrdsy garage-ballad.

The band, which was all teenagers and led by Terry Pilittere, was formed in 1964 as The Dimensions. In September '65, they changed names to The Wee Four.

Terry Pilittere released a pair of minor-mood beat ballads the following March - It's Not That Way/You Wouldn't Believe Me (Nu Sound Ltd. 6112) 1967.

Formed in 1962, this Alabama quintet lasted through to 1969, performing on the south-eastern circuit throughout Alabama and Tennessee. Just one single was released, recorded at Quin Ivy's studio in Sheffield, Alabama.

Four of the original line-up got together again in 1992 (line-up 'B') for the Muscle Shoals Bands Of The '60s Reunion concert, captured on CD, where they perform three sixties covers - Gimme Some Lovin', Gloria, and Bruce Chanel's Hey Baby. The catchy, keyboard-led, reverb pop of I Spy has reappeared on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol. 2 (CD).

This quintet from the Lawrence Academy in Needham, Massachusetts actually got to make an album, which is very rare. They appear on the front cover posing on the hood of a Rolls Royce. It's a short 10-track album, five covers and five originals, split between energetic frat-party numbers (Little Latin Lupe Lu, High-Heeled Sneakers) and ballads or moody slow-dance instrumentals, often with sax (Sweet Dreams, Door Knob, White Satin). The sleevenotes recall that their debut gig at the Academy took place three years earlier when they'd cranked out Wild Weekend on two old guitars and a small amplifier.

One of the album's tracks, Spring Weekend '65, has since been included on the Riot City! (LP) compilation and on Oil Stains, Vol. 2 (LP). It's a rather restrained frat rocker. (VJ/MW)

WE FIVE - You Were On My Mind LP.

This pop-rock group emerged from the San Francisco folk circuit. They made an immediate impact with You Were On My Mind, which made No. 3 in the Billboard Charts. In the U.K. it was covered by Crispian St. Peter. They enjoyed a further minor hit with their cover of Dino Valenti's hippie anthem Let's Get Together and although it enjoyed no chart success their next release You Let A Love Burn Out had some nicely layered harmonies and may have influenced Marty Balin in assembling Jefferson Airplane with their initial two girl, one guy vocal harmonies. Their first two albums climbed to No's 32 and 172 respectively in the U.S. Album Charts.

The band seems to have had four phases in its career. The first (and most successful) was from 1965-67 when they were contracted to A & M; the second from 1969-71 when they signed to Vault; they returned briefly in 1973 to record the single for Verve and then reformed again in 1976.

Michael Stewart was the brother of John Stewart (of The Kingston Trio fame) and later became a Capitol record executive. Bob Jones was later in Southern Comfort.

There Stands The Door compiles their finer moments and illustrates that they were more than just a pop act.

You Were On My Mind and You Let A Love Burn Out have resurfaced on Nuggets, Vol. 7 :Early SFO (LP); You Were On My Mind is also on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD plus book); and You Were On My Mind, You Let A Love Burn Out, There Stands The Door, What's Going On and Five Will Get You Ten (mono version) have all been compiled on Sing Me A Rainbow (2-CD). 45: Flip, Flop And Fly/ Another Side Of This Life (Bertram Int'l INT-230) 1969

Late sixties heavy club-rockers from California's East Bay area, Weight was clearly influenced by Creedence Clearwater Revival. Flip, Flop And Fly is an uninspiring R'n'B flavoured boogie. Fred Neil's Another Side... is more Creedence Clearwater Revival-like with some fine guitar. Both tracks are from their all-covers album, recorded live at Rick's Lounge in Walnut Creek.

Their seven minute version of Susie Q doesn't stick to the Creedence formula, instead it's an extended workout with acidic guitar soloing and a jazzy vibe - a fine finale. They tackle The Equals' Baby Come Back and a quartet of Beatles tracks with varying results: a brave attempt at A Day In The Life comes off well, considering; Oh! Darling is OK; Sgt.Pepper/With A Little Help... and George Harrison's Something come across as dull and plodding.

Jim Thibodeaux (originally from Nampa, Idaho) had relocated to California at the age of eight. After a three-year stint in the army he'd formed The Blazers, a "show lounge group". Several outfits later he joined established local act The Antics in November 1967. Barney Northcutt (from Richmond, California) had joined earlier that year; Ed Kirby (from Martinez, California) had been in the group since 1962.

The Antics split in 1968 whereupon this threesome formed The Group. In early 1969 they landed a residency at Rick's Lounge and by the end of the year had become known as The Weight. (MW/CF)

Elyse Weinberg was from Toronto, Ontario in Canada but was based in the Los Angeles area during the late sixties. Her album is an interesting example of psychedelic folk with some oriental touches (sitar, tabla) and inspiration taken from middle age (Mortuary Bound, If Death Don't Overtake Me). Produced by Gene Shiveley, it featured the rhythm section from Touch and was arranged by Don Gallucci (ex-Kingsmen, Don and The Good Times and Touch), Joey Newman (pre-Touch) and Jeremy Stewart. The songs are all written by Elyse Weinberg and published by Peyotl music (sic!), except a cover of Bert Jansch's Deed I Do.

Oh, Deed I Do also appears on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers Vol. 5 (CD); and Last Ditch Protocol resurfaced on Orange Twin Records Sampler (CD).

Their final single, Love, in particular is superb. Jezamine, their second single, was a cover of the hit by the (British) Casuals - aka When Jesamine Goes, which was also recorded by The Bystanders.

The band was introduced to Paul Leka (responsible for producing The Lemon Pipers - Green Tambourine amongst others) in New York City and was then signed to Decca Records. After Wellington Arrangement, several members (Terry, Joe and Randy) were signed to Playboy Records and then Atlantic Records under the name 'Fresh Air' and worked with Arif Mardin to produce several records. The same three members also wrote and recorded professional sports team theme songs for the Philadelphia 76ers, Atlanta Hawks, Atlanta Flames (at the time), Washington Capitols, Philadelphia Phillies, etc. Joe, Richard and Randy are still currently writing and recording original material unable to fight off the infatuation of music and its calling.

You can also hear Love on Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP), Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Turds On A Bum Ride, Vol. 3 (CD), (VJ/MW)

This Springfield, Massachusetts band's debut single kicks butt with a hard version of Jimi Hendrix' Fire, despite the brassy backing. A Wristwatch Band is a simmering psychedelic affair that can also be heard on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 7 (LP & CD), Incredible Sound Show Stories, Vol. 6 (LP) and Of Hopes And Dreams & Tombstones (LP).

The subsequent pair of singles moved off into brass-pop territory and were recorded at Trod Nossel. Their singles were produced by Jimmy "Wiz" Wisner, who also worked with The Buckinghams, Jim and Jean and Jacobs Creek. (MW/AH/VJ/SR)

45:	The Paisley Window Pane/ It's What's Really Happening	(Skye 4514) 1969

A soft-folk psychedelic tainted duo, on the label founded by the jazzmen Gary McFarland and Gabor Szabo. They were previously known as Crystal Fountain, who got as far as recording a demo in 1967, Sensations. The two sisters, Wendy and Bonnie Flower, tenderly aged 18 and 15, write and sing on all the tracks on what is a very typical period piece that was recorded in San Francisco. Luckily the producer avoids the trap of over-orchestration and so comes up with a flowery and soothing bunch of songs, sometimes bordering on the sugary, but mostly rendering a peaceful and harmonic atmosphere. The voices of the sisters blend beautifully; the backing is unobtrusive but qualified. Naturally this drips innocence all over, but infrequently rises to the occasion and reaches real expressiveness, though often subdued, as on Five O'Clock In The Morning and Endless Pathway. The last four tracks on side two are the best, showing more commitment than those on side one and also boasting sharp cutting acid-guitar on The Winter Is Cold. These four cuts are above average and should be heard by anyone with interest in female vocals in lightly psychedelic settings. The cover shot of the pair shows the very personification of naiveté.

Originally from Crockett, California West frequently played in San Francisco in the late sixties. They were formed in 1967 by Cornelius, Sagen (who'd previously been an executive for Capitol Records) and John Stewart's brother Michael who'd enjoyed some success with The We Five. Very much in the mould of groups like Notes From The Underground they were more concerned with playing good-time music and enjoying themselves than exploring new musical forms.

Produced by Bob Johnston and Neil Wilburn, their first album contains two Dylan covers, two Fred Neil songs (Everybody's Talkin and Dolphins), the classic Ian Tyson song Four Strong Winds, as well as Six Days On The Road (also covered by Taj Mahal and Street Noise) and Bobby Kimmel's New England Winter, the Stone Poneys song. The few originals were penned by Michael Stewart (helped by We Five's Bob Jones on Step By Step) and Ron Cornelius.

The second album reputedly has good guitar work and excellent harmonies and both are very minor collectors' items.

Ron Cornelius would keep on working with Bob Johnston on records by Leonard Cohen and Bob Dylan. He also released a solo country-rock album in the early seventies. Cornelius and Davis had previously been in Captain Zoom (& The Androids).

Down Along The Cove has been compiled on Rockbusters (LP). (VJ/SR/MW)

One of American rock's legendary lead guitarists, Leslie West was born Leslie Weinstein on 22 October 1945 in New York. He grew up in various parts of Long Island (East Meadow, Forest Hills and Lawrence). He changed name to West when his parents divorced. Produced by Felix Pappalardi (who was already with West in Jolliver Arkansaw), the first solo output of the former leader of The Vagrants contained essentially hard-rock tracks similar to Cream and a cover of Dylan's This Wheel's On Fire. N.D. Smart II was the former drummer with The Remains and Kangaroo. The solo album's success led to the formation of the group Mountain, with Corky Laing and Steve Knight. Pappalardi had worked with organist Knight on the Devil's Anvil album project.

When Mountain split, West and Laing formed West, Bruce & Laing with Jack Bruce of Cream. This hard-rock trio issued three albums (see entry below). Following their split, Leslie West signed a two-album deal with Phantom Records which would prove to be his last recordings of the seventies. The Great Fatsby was a studio project with many guests, including Mick Jagger and former Spooky Tooth keyboard player Gary Wright. The sound on this album is somewhat more elaborate than his previous work, with horns and woodwinds and female backing vocals. It's a diverse collection of material that includes covers of House Of The Rising Sun, If I Were A Carpenter, Honky Tonk Women and Free's Little Bit of Love. The following year the band recorded an eponymous live album comprised mostly of new material penned by West, Laing and future Foreigner guitarist Mick Jones. The highlights include an interesting cover of Dear Prudence and the delicate and appealing instrumental number Singapore Sling penned by Mick Jones. West took a break after this album, but since 1985 he returned to the music scene and has been playing and recording pretty much ever since. This blues-rock power trio formed in Chicago in spring 1972 after Mountain (which had been West and Laing's previous band) split. Bruce had been in UK band Cream. They toured extensively.

Despite the depth of talent, their studio albums are both uneven, with rather uninspired songwriting. Bruce was left to complete Whatever Turns You On himself after the other two returned to the States. There are a couple of decent tracks, Token and Rock & Roll Machine, but the lack of cohesion in the group is evident.

Live 'n' Kickin' was compiled from recordings made on their final US tour. It opens with a superb version of the Rolling Stones', Play With Fire, a good selection when you consider the band's use of heroin is openly cited as a reason for their short-lived existence on the re-released album notes. The Doctor, taken from Why Dontcha, has scorching guitar-work from West. There's a superb version of Politician from Cream's 1968 Wheels Of Fire album and finally Powerhouse Sod, a popular live number from Jack Bruce Band gigs since 1970. Despite only featuring four tracks the album captures the power of the trio's live music effectively. (VJ)

45s: Linda's Gone/Spoonful (Valiant V 753) 1966
Where Is The Door/Colors Of My Life (A & M 869) 1967

This was a California mid-sixties outfit. The version of Spoonful is decent with lots of fuzz'n'harp and a catchy frenetic fuzz-popper with effective acoustic guitar work and a foot-tapping beat - instantly likable. Colors Of My Life is not too dissimilar, pleasant fuzz-pop. Unfortunately Linda's Gone is lame brassy pop (arranged by Leon Russell) - still, three gooduns out of four ain't bad at all.

Compilation appearances include: Colors Of My Life on Acid and Flowers (CD); and Spoonful on Echoes In Time, Vol. 1 (LP) and Echoes In Time Vol's 1 & 2 (CD); and Where Is The Door on Soft Sounds For Gentle People 3 (CD). (VJ/MW/CL)

45: Go Run And Play/
A Favor (San Francisco Sound EU-2048) 1967

From Seattle originally, this act later went to San Francisco, met Matthew Katz, and became the "definitive" version of Indian Puddin' and Pipe! This single, produced by Katz under the band's original moniker, has a fantastic flip side A Favor written by Steve Mack, with an irresistible rhythm and a great guitar break.

Curiously West Coast Natural Gas (before they moved to 'Frisco) had played a gig in Seattle with the "original" Indian Puddin' and Pipe (who became Easy Chair)... The band also made at least one other recording, The Jumping Frog, an original by Pat Craig, which has yet to see the light of day.

Jeff LaBrache had earlier played with The Imperials (one single on Jerden), The City Limits and Rocky and His Friends. (VJ/MW)

As their name suggests, this band attempted to push back the frontiers of musical experience. They wrote and arranged all their compositions enjoying considerable recording freedom. The West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band (WCPAEB) were the first L.A. outfit to have a light show and were one of the biggest bands in town in the early days (in fact, the Mothers Of Invention once opened for them). Ironically, despite their reputation as psychedelic enfant terribles, none of the members used drugs (just like another purveyor of freaky music, Frank Zappa).

The Harris brothers and Michael Lloyd first met in 1964 when they were all students at the Hollywood Professional School - the school attended by most of the kids working in show-business. The three certainly had pedigree. Shaun and Danny were the sons of one of the U.S.'s best-known classical composers, Roy Harris, and Michael was a musical prodigy who had been working professionally for some time as a member of the New Dimensions. They first worked together as The Laughing Wind and as such recorded for Tower Records. In order for them to start performing they needed a drummer, and for a short while Danny Belsky, an old friend and former band member with Michael filled in, and he appears on the first WCPAEB recordings. It was this line-up that recorded their Fifo label album, which is now one of the rarest sixties artifacts. The album contains a few originals but is mostly covers including Louie Louie, You Really Got Me, She Belongs To Me, (It's All Over Now) Baby Blue, etc. It's rather crude, which has made it a hallowed item amongst garage collectors over the years. A single was also issued, with a non-album 'A' side. Some of these tracks, alongside recordings by the Harris brothers band The California Spectrum, were issued on an album titled The Legendary Unreleased Album in 1980. In the nineties, a repressing of the complete Fifo label album appeared, and in 1997 Sundazed issued all the tracks recorded by the early band on vinyl and CD.

At this point, Danny Belsky left the group and John Ware took over on live appearances. Their final member Bob Markley was introduced to them by Kim Fowley at a party he was throwing for The Yardbirds during their first U.S. tour at Markley's house. Markley was a wealthy attorney originally from Oklahoma who badly wanted to be in a band so he could get lots of girls (true!). Although a lot older than the other three (he was about 30, they were 16 or 17), he made a deal with them that he'd provide them with equipment if he could be in the band. As he didn't sing or play an instrument, he held a tambourine and stood in front of a dead mic. Because of his background in law, the other three left him with more and more business control, preferring to concentrate on the music. It's probable that most of the production and composing credits attributed to him are spurious.

Markley's social connections helped them to get a deal with Reprise Records where they recorded three albums despite having no commercial success whatsoever. The first of these, reissued by Reprise a few years ago, blended 'experimental' tracks such as 1906, Help I'm A Rock and Transparent Day with the melodic harmonies of Shifting Sands, I Won't Hurt You, Leiyla, Here's Where You Belong and If You Want This Love. It's a great deal more professional sounding than their Fifo album, due in no small part to the contributions of session drummers Jim Gordon and Hal Blaine.

Volume 2 was more adventurous and consequently inconsistent. Tracks like In The Arena sound badly disjointed, yet others like Suppose They Give A War And No One Comes with its strong dynamic contrasts are very effective and Delicate Fawn is a joyful little ditty. However, the prominent track on this album is probably the highly original Tracy Had A Hard Day Sunday. Unlike much of the other material on the album, this tune had considerable commercial appeal. A later single, Smell Of Incense was taken from this album. It must have made quite an impression 'cause it was also recorded by The Abstracts on their album, The Pawnbrokers and by Southwest F.O.B. In fact, the single was only belatedly released a year after the album in response to the latter's hit version of the song.

A Child's Guide To Good And Evil contained a number of competent conventional songs such as As Kind As Summer and the enchanting As The World Rises And Falls. Some of the material shows a strong satirical bent, like A Child Of A Few Hours Is Burning To Death with its deadly blues riff, sarcastic megaphone-on-a-parade-ground vocals and martial atmosphere. Eighteen Is Over The Hill is as perfectly-realised a piece of music as can be imagined. Also of note is the title track which has a haunting melody and some impressive lyrics:

"Take my hand and run away with me
Through the forest until the leaves and trees slow us down
A vampire bat will suck blood from our hands
A dog with rabies will bite us
Rats will run up your legs
But nothing will matter..."
(from A Child's Guide To Good And Evil)

Altogether it represented a considerable improvement on their previous efforts. Incidentally, the running order on the disc bears little relationship to the order given on the record sleeve.

The group recorded one final effort on the Amos label before splitting, Markley's attempts to dominate the band finally alienating the other three. Markley later made a solo album with a supporting band, A Group (Forward SFT 1007) in 1969 and produced some material for J.J. Light.

Contrary to what most articles allege Michael Lloyd never left the band and continued making the albums with the Harris brothers right up to the demise of the band.

Shaun and Dan Harris also fronted a pop-psych band in the late sixties called The California Spectrum. They did some recording and in the studio they were assisted by Michael Lloyd. This outfit also played live; they had a great light show and for about 14-16 months toured very successfully.

After WCPAEB split, Shaun Harris relocated to Denver for a year or so, performing as The Spectrum and also booking and promoting other bands. He later released a solo album, Shaun Harris (Capitol ST 11168) 1973, consisting of soft country-rock (with orchestrations by his father, Roy Harris) and subsequently has collaborated with Michael on an almost endless stream of recordings from 1970 to the present. Michael became vice-president of MGM Records and one of the best-known producers in Los Angeles.

Dan Harris continued writing and working with Michael and Shaun. In 1984, he moved to Sweden where he performed and recorded very successfully. A few years later he travelled back to L.A., where he currently resides. He teaches guitar, performs, acts and writes with his wife, Vicky.

Compilation appearances have so far included: I Won't Hurt You on Nuggets, Vol. 9: Acid Rock (LP); A Child's Guide To Good And Evil on Electric Psychedelic Sitar Headswirlers, Vol. 1 (CD); Smell Of Incense on Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD); and If You Want This Love on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book).

For a fascinating WCPAEB-related offshoot outfit which featured Ron Morgan (co-composer of Smell Of Incense) and Jimmy Greenspoon, check out the Super Band entry.

More recently the enchanting Smell Of Incense was revived again in 1994 by a Norwegian band who also took the title as their band name - very apt for their trippy psychedelic-folk style. In 2002 a 10" tribute EP appeared, Outta' Town Outer Space (Earworm WORM 71) containing six covers of WCPAEB classics by contemporary psych acts, including The Orange Alabaster Mushroom, The Smoke Rings (with a great version of Smell Of Incense), and The Clientele. The first single by this El Paso, Texas band sounds more like 1964-5 than 1967 and pairs teen pop-beat with soulful male harmony-pop. The follow-up moved into rockier territory, albeit still on the light side; Can't Come Home features a catchy guitar refrain over a locomotive rhythm whereas Lovin' Is is a mid-tempo beat-ballad with pumping organ. NB: Canadian release.

Here's an obscure fragile downer seventies singer/songwriter folk album by an American artist that is quite highly-rated by some collectors. Born in Kentucky, Dana Westover now lives in Boston and has a radio show on WUMB. He also runs a small recording studio called Wolf Music in New Hampshire. (VJ)

This seminal band hailed from Orlando in Florida, and despite their lack of national success at the time is nowadays regarded in the same league as The Chocolate Watch Band, Standells, Music Machine etc. This view is entirely justified, as their singles reveal a depth and diversity of talent, from the raucous punk of When I Arrive or You Burn Me Up And Down through to melodic drifting ballads such as St. John's Shop and The Day She Dies. We The People also have a unique quality in their songwriting, with My Brother The Man, Mirror Of You Mind, In The Past and numerous others all standing out as top quality stuff.

The band was formed out of two acts - the Trademarks and Offbeets, at the suggestion of Ron Dillman, who managed both bands. Within a week of their first meeting/rehearsal in early 1966, they were recording their first single, My Brother, The Man, but shortly afterwards Tom Wynn was replaced by Lee Ferguson and the band signed a production and publishing deal with Nashville-based Tony Moon.

Whilst their first two singles contained punchy psychedelic rockers, He Doesn't Go About It Right contains a dollop of Kinks style humour and St. John's Shop is a beautiful slow ballad. All were big regional hits in Florida and Tennessee, but under threat of the draft and frustrated by the lack of national success, Wayne Proctor quit early in 1967. Shortly before his departure they recorded Love Wears Black (None), at Bradley's Barn in Nashville in early 1967, which were intended for release under the pseudonym Fresh Air. He also co-wrote The Skunks 1967 track, Don't Ask Why with Clark Taylor, which has recently been given another airing on The Quill Records Story (CD).

With Wayne pursuing a career in song-writing, the group continued, although Lee Ferguson was then drafted and replaced by Terry Cox from Those Four Guys. Now signed to RCA, national success still proved elusive, although the later singles are still pretty good (and When I Arrive remains a complete stormer).

Tom Talton too left the group in 1968/69 and later resurfaced with Tom Wynn in Cowboy. We The People soldiered on for a while, but they eventually called it a day in 1970.

In addition to their singles, the band also had two French EPs with picture sleeves: the first (London 10181) 1966 contains the four tracks that comprise the first two Challenge singles: the second (London 10184) 1967 contains St John's Shop, In The Past, Declaration Of Independence and Lovin' Son Of A Gun - the last two being non-US tracks.

WIZARD OF OZ

WEST COAST WORKSHOP - The Wizard Of Oz And Other Trans Love Trips LP.

WESTFAUSTER - In A King's Dream CD.

The band has also been the subject of three retrospective compilations, with Sundazed's Mirror Of Our Minds being the latest and best. A 2-CD package, with extensive liner notes/interviews by Jeff Jarema, it includes no less than 40 tracks. All their single cuts are featured, plus all the "previously unreleased" cuts that have cropped up elsewhere on other comps etc. and a whole bundle of other tracks also make their first appearance anywhere... All in all a thoroughly recommended package!

There's also another vinyl compilation, In The Past which collects some of their best recordings, and the previously unreleased (on vinyl) fuzz garage soul rocker, There's Gonna Be A Storm in a limited edition of 500.

Compilation appearances have included: Mirror Of Your Mind on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 2 (LP), Nuggets, Vol. 6: Punk Part 11 (LP), Psychedelic Archives Vol. 7 (double cassette box), Even More Nuggets (CD) and Excerpts From Nuggets (CD); In The Past on Mindrocker, Vol. 5 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol's 1 & 2 (LP) and Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2 x 7"); You Burn Me Up And Down and He Doesn't Go About It Right on Mindrocker, Vol. 6 (LP); Mirror Of Your Mind and You Burn Me Up And Down on Nuggets Box (4-CD); You Burn Me Up And Down on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP& CD), Pebbles, Vol. 4 (ESD) (CD), Sound Of The Sixties (2-LP), Sixties Archive, Vol. 1 (CD), Songs We Taught The Fuzztones (2-LP & CD) and The Seventh Son (LP); When I Arrive on Pebbles, Vol. 7 (LP); Girl Of My Dreams on Shutdown '66 (LP); My Brother The Man on Filling The Gap (4-LP box), Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 4 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Florida Vol. 3 (CD); In The Past on Garage Beat '66 6 (CD); and When I Arrive on Garage Beat '66 2 (CD).

The CD compilation Psychedelic Microdots Of The Sixties, Vol. 1 (LP) too is also of interest as not only does it include original masters of My Brother The Man, Mirror Of Your Mind, You Burn Me Up And Down and In The Past to whet your appetite, but also four unreleased tracks, By The Rule, Half Of Wednesday, Free Information and Too Much Noise. The same tracks, plus The Color Of Love, St. John's Shop, Alfred, What Kind Of Man Are You? and Beginning Of The End also appear on I Turned Into A Helium Balloon (CD). (VJ/MW/SR)

We Call Him A Man/No One To Love (Formal FR-200) 1967

Park Ridge, Illinois' Wet Paint came into being when guitarists Cwiak and Goralski joined forces with the Intruders (Berman, Fontechia, and Giardini). Their debut supposedly came out in April 1966 but the label clearly shows an RCA matrix code from 1967. Faulty memories aside, it's a collectable release featuring a superb, moody punker backed by a fine New Colony Six cover. The follow-up coupled the cantering We Call Him A Man with a haunting last-dance teen-ballad.

Both sides of their debut resurfaced on Pebbles Vol. 7 (CD), We Call Him A Man appeared on Psychedelic States: Illinois Vol.1 (CD), and their complete output was gathered together on Just For Kicks Vol. 1 (CD) - all four sides plus an unreleased Byrdsy minor-mooder Precious Ways. Mike Dugo revealed that Berman, Giardin and Haban teamed up with Stanley Moss and Pete Ruth to form the Stanley Moss Blues Band and that Goralski and Thomas joined a bogus Zombies to cash in on the 1969 chart success of Time Of The Season.

More recently, a co-operative effort between band members and Mike Dugo's 60sgaragebands.com produced the eight-track retrospective where both singles are joined by a quartet of 1967 basement recordings - Precious Ways, Let The Rain Fall, Better Man Than I and We Call Him A Man. (MW)

This single is highly rated by some and touted as 'psych' by others. Well, it's very pleasant harmony-rock, somewhat orchestrated, and comparable to, say, The Cryan' Shames Synthesis material. Rechristened Canterbury Music Festival, they released three more singles and a very rare album on B.T. 45s: Shaking All Over/Nearing The End (Nasco 006) 1970
It's A Hard Road/Two Feet From My Grave (Nasco 026) 1972

From Cincinnati, Ohio this outfit used to gig frequently with Westfauster and played a heavy, very keyboard-dominated blend of music. The band was founded by Michael P. Jones, who started off on bass but later switched to lead guitar. Leonard LeBlanc was born in Massachusetts and raised in Daytona Beach, Florida. He later relocated to Ohio and it was there that he met and decided to join the band.

Their albums have distinct psychedelic influences, and although both have their moments, they are sometimes a bit messy. The second is in a hard blues-rock direction and includes covers of Cream (World Of Pain), Ray Charles (I Don't Need No Doctor) and Saint Steven (The Batisch). Oh, Pretty Woman, an original, is one of the liveliest and shortest tracks on the album with some decent soloing, whilst Shadows is introduced by a spacey/psych organ and on the track keyboards and solos interlink imaginatively. Both albums are sought-after by collectors.

Lenny LeBlanc went on to become a successful Christian music artist, whilst Mike Wheeler who played with the band in their last two years, went on to work with Grammy winning Nashville songwriter Mike Reid. Wheeler also led an act called Wheels, who recorded on Boardwalk, with an album produced by Craig Fuller, and who toured with Little Feat in 1978. He's also worked more recently with Paul Barrere.

Know Thyself has also appeared on Sixties Archive, Vol. 8 (CD). (VJ/MW/CF)

Michael P. Whalen was a California singer/songwriter whose The Quieting Of Oliver Tweak (featured on his album) was also covered by The Leaves on their second album. His single, which was produced by Art Podell and arranged by Jim Webb, contains two average orchestrated pop songs.

Released two years later, his sole album is a decent folk-rock effort, produced by Chris Petersen on a short-lived California label and recorded at the Gold Star Studios in Hollywood. It features several good musicians like David Jackson (Moon), David Cohen (Country Joe and The Fish) and Lyle Ritz. (SR)

45s:	Morning/I Need You Baby	(Amber AMB 102) 1966
	Nobody Else But You/Look Down	(Amber AMB 101) 1966

A high school aged band from the Hillsdale/Oradell/Hackensack area of northern New Jersey. Their first single, Morning, actually made the Top 10 in Seattle and Salt Lake City and was undoubtedly their finest moment. Their second single simply sank without trace and after the relative success of Morning everything was downhill until they eventually called it quits. They were one of the few rock bands to record on Amber Records, which really specialised in doo-wop and accapella music.

Compilation appearances have included: Morning, I Need You Baby and I Was A Fool (previously unreleased) on Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP); Morning on Hipsville 29 B.C. (LP); I Need You Baby on Gravel Volume 1 (CD); Look Down on Wyld Sydes Volume 2 (CD); and Nobody Else But You on Sigh Cry Die (CD). What's Happening (CA)

45: Baby, You're Hurtin/Hot Buttered Buns (Coreco C-101) 1966

This end-of-'66 pairing was overseen by classical-violinist-turned-engineer Armin Steiner, who started around 1960 with a self-built home studio and went on to great things (at Hollywood Sound Recorders, 1965-1971, and then Sound Labs) in popular/classical music and soundtracks, with over 100 gold/platinum albums to his credit (according to Mix magazine). He worked frequently with L.A.'s finest session musicians, including 'the Wrecking Crew', and was at the controls on milestone recordings like Macarthur Park by Richard Harris. He operated in Los Angeles, as did arranger Rene Hall, who was an L.A. Motown session guitarist. No trace of the band found and it's just as likely to be a studio-only aggregation.

Baby, You're Hurtin' has reappeared on A Journey To Tyme Vol. 4 (LP); it's beat-pop with mature male harmonies and keening guitar motifs, written by Otis Hale (perhaps the same guy later on the A.B. Skhy album and in the Sanford-Townsend band?). Hot Buttered Buns is a keyboard workout similar to Ray Charles' What'd I Say interrupted by lewd raps about all sorts of 'buns'. (MW/VJ)

This Orlando, Florida quartet had several France-only releases, having relocated there after being spotted by a talent scout and offered a recording deal. They produced at least two EPs and several singles in 1966-7. The fuzz-popper Up So High is the cut from their second EP favoured by the compilers of Realities In Life (LP), Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 3 (LP) and Fuzz, Flaykes And Shakes, Vol. 4 (LP & CD); whilst Get Away also figures on Destination Frantic Volume 2 (CD) and on Volume 3 (CD).

Band leader and songwriter Colin Scot settled in the UK where he recorded several folk/pop albums during the seventies: Colin Scot (United Artists UAG 29154) 1971 includes performances by Robert Fripp, Peter Hammill, Jon Anderson, Peter Gabriel, Rick Wakeman, Linda Hoyle, and many others. The album was also issued in the USA, but not until 1976 (Import Records IMP-1009). This was followed by Just Another Clown (Warner Bros K46236) 1973 and Out Of The Blue (Warner Bros K-46281) 1974. (MW/CF)

	All The Time/Baby What's New	(Amber 6657) 1966

From Fremont in California, this band began when Washington High School friends Dave Wheeler and Bob Birdwell started playing guitars together in 1964. Needing someone to play lead, they asked another school friend, Roger Kennedy to join them and were introduced to drummer Terry Riesman from Mission High School. Terry didn't even OWN a set of drums... but he borrowed the school's marching band's drums and he set them up in such a way that he could play them as a set!

Dave Wheeler named the band 'the Tarentels' from a dictionary - Tarentella being the Italian dance of the tarantula. Over time, Dave moved away, and Bob moved over to bass. Roger moved from lead to rhythm, and Barry Houk came in as lead. Chuck Tedford was also brought in on keyboards.

Bob: - "We landed a job playing with The Turtles at the San Leandro Rollerina, (Bill Quary's Teens & Twenties) and were spotted by Barry Carlos of Go Teen Productions. He signed us up as Peter Wheat and The Breadmen and we played all over with the big names of the day. Paul Revere, Byrds, Animals, Them, Chuck Berry, Big Brother, Yardbirds, and so many more I can't recall just sitting here. Since we were KYA Radio's "house band" we were even originally scheduled to play with the Beatles at Candlestick. However, because of a conflict between our Musician's Union, (Local 510), and SF's union, (Local 6), we got bumped.... but at least we DID get tickets to see the show".

"Dave Wheeler still writes and plays music full-time; I'm a business executive for a very large private corporation; Terry was working as a janitor last I heard; Roger passed away in the mid-nineties; Chuck Tedford was a truck driver and is now happily retired; and I haven't seen Barry in around 10 years..."

Baby What's New has also been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP) and Nuggets: You Got Yours! (CD); and All The Time is on Pebbles Vol. 11: Northern California (CD). (VJ/BBI)

45s: Before You Leave/Long Long Day (Ridon 856) 1967
All The World/Funny Looks (Jamie 1360) 1968

The Wheel of Fortune formed in Salem, Oregon with members from local teen bands The Untouchables, The Breakaways and The Henchmen. Their punkish sounding debut single was a local hit. Its success led to a contract with the Philadelphia-based Jamie Records but after just one further single arguments about musical direction brought their recording career to an end. However, they moved to Beaverton, Oregon with a modified line-up 'B', which did not record, before the draft and further differences of opinion led to their demise. Bill Scream was last reported composing commercials and movie soundtracks. He still owns a small recording studio. Bob Stoutenberg owns The Moon June Music Publishing Company.

45: Elizabeth/Feel So Good (Gama 705) 1965

NB: Flip side is by Johnny Colgan & The Beau Havens.

A teen-punk outfit either from the near-D.C. town Belle Haven in Virginia, or from Belle Haven Road in a Kentwood, Maryland development - hence their name. They were 15 when they formed and soon became a popular live attraction locally at frat parties and school dances. Their single was a double-sided teen punker, with Elizabeth being an ode to one of the band member's girlfriends and Feel So Good being written by leader of The Nautiloids, Richard Fulton. The single was recorded at the Edgewood Recording Studio, Washington D.C. in 1965.

Compilation appearances include: Elizabeth on Back From The Grave, Vol. 7 (2-LP); and Feel So Good on Garage Punk Unknowns, Vol. 8 (LP). (VJ/MW/RF)

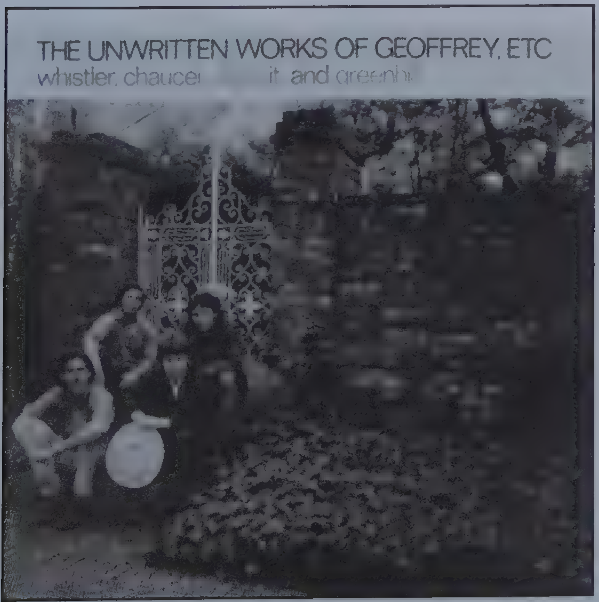
ALBUM: 1(A) THE UNWRITTEN WORKS OF GEOFFREY, ETC... (UNI 73034) 1968

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Fallout FOLP2007) 2006. (1) reissued on CD (Fallout FOCD2007) 2006.

This Texas group from Fort Worth comprised of Scott Fraser, Eddie Lively (both ex-Mods), David Bullock and Phil White, under the pseudonyms of Benjamin Whistler, Geoffrey Chaucer, Nathan Detroit and Philip Greenhill. If Fraser, Bullock and White all began playing circa 1963, they apparently didn't team up before 1967, when David Bullock returned from the coffee house circuit of Houston.

John Carrick: "David knew me from a club/coffee house my mom and I owned in Houston. It was called 'Sand Mountain' and was quite the hot bed of singer songwriters including Jerry Jeff, Towns, Guy Clark and lots more. Anyway, I ended up going to Fort Worth and worked on the album for about a year. By the time the album photos were taken, I had moved back to Houston. They got Guy Clark to take the cover photo and he failed to call me for the shoot, so Guy set the timer and sat in the picture. Another interesting sideline concerns a song on the album called Me And My Babe. The song needed a banjo adding, so we contacted the northeast Texas banjo stud, another young guy from Fort Worth called Steve Bruton."

Their album contains some superb psychedelic compositions (Day Of Childhood, House Of Collection) and good folk-rock songs with nice guitar solos and Beatles inspired vocals. Some tracks especially The Viper (What John Rance Had To Tell) (written by a young T-Bone Burnett, who produced the recording sessions too) and House of Collection recall the folkier material Neil Young was writing and singing in the twilight of Buffalo Springfield's career and during his early solo career. The Viper (What John Rance Had To Tell) blends country and folk-rock and the lyrics seem to be about life and gossip in a small town. Day Of Childhood has a discordant intro (but is marred by poor sound quality on the vocals). The highpoints include the Byrds-influenced Rickenbacker guitar, some backwards guitar solos and vocals which some liken to Neil Young. Upon Waking From The Nap is in a more baroque orchestrated folk style and has an unusual ending. Live 'Till I Do concludes with some good guitar work and Street In Paris seems derived partly from thirties European cabaret and features nice violin. One can listen to the lyrics and visualise a beautiful girl dancing in one's mind's eye. The concluding song on side one, As Pure As Freshly Driven Snow and the opener to side two, Tribute To Sundance are the most harmonious tracks and the closest the album comes to pop. House Of Collection is one of the best and most psychedelic tracks, although like Day Of Childhood the sound quality is a little muffled in places. The song veers towards prog-rock with interesting pace changes, backwards guitar and a sort of creepy dazed organ sound. Just Me And Her is a pleasant country-rock ditty with some accomplished banjo. On Lusty Gentlemen has an appealing keyboard intro and the lyrics relate to conversations on park benches on Saturday mornings. The song has some lovely violin and off-key piano towards the end and the mood is slightly understated. Ready To Move is a harder edged number and a fitting finale that features some heavier psych guitar mid-way and a sort of droning psych sound throughout. Overall, the album is very consistent and strongly recommended.



THE UNWRITTEN WORKS OF GEOFFREY, ETC

WHISTLER, CHAUCER, DETROIT AND GREENHILL - The Unwritten Works Of Geoffrey, Etc... LP.

Some have commented on the album's understated mood that puts it a cut above many similarly derivative albums of the time. All their material was original and Joseph "T-Bone" Burnett produced the sessions recorded in Fort Worth and in Santa Ana, California. The album experiments with different musical styles and the songwriting is incredibly mature given they were only in their late teens. The album's inclusion in the book 'The Mojo Collection - The Greatest Albums of All Time' in 2000 inspired fresh interest in the band leading to the album's eventual reissue in 2006 on Fallout.

The lack of a permanent satisfactory drummer inhibited their efforts as a performing group. At the end of 1968, Frazer, Bullock and White would finally meet a percussionist, Brett Wilson, in Austin and together they formed Space Opera. They intensively toured through the South before finally signing with Epic in 1972, thanks to Michael Mann, their manager and sponsor. In 1969, Eddie Lively would play with John Abdnor.

Tragically two of them have died in recent years in their fifties. Scott Fraser died aged 57 on 19 September 2006 after a long illness and Philip White died on 6 September 2008, aged 58. (VJ/SR/JCk)

Bergen White (TN)

ALBUM: 1 FOR WOMEN ONLY (SSS International) 1969 R1

NB: (1) reissued on CD (Rev-Ola CRREV56) 2004.

Bergen White is best-known as a member of Ronny & the Daytonas. His soft-pop solo album features gorgeous vocals and lush string arrangements evocative of The Beach Boys, Harry Nilsson & Bread.

In 1969, when the group split up, White remained in the Nashville area, where he recorded his first album, For Women Only. He wrote or co-wrote several of the tracks himself, another Now was co-written with Bob Tubert, but some of the best are his soft pop covers of other people's material. There are two David Gates tunes, Gone Again and Look At Me, which appeared on Bread's debut album that same year. She Is Today is a more upbeat version of the Barry Mann & Cynthia Weil song that had previously been recorded by The Vogues, who also recorded on SSS at the time. Other covers include a fresh interpretation of The Lettermen's harmony pop arrangement of Little Anthony & the Imperials' Hurt So Bad and Townes Van Zandt's gorgeous Second Lover's Song. In the same era White provided vocals (along with Daytonas' group leader Buzz Cason and Bobby Russell) and string arrangements for several so-called "supermarket" knockoff records that were released by the budget sound-alike Hit Records label. White continues to work as an arranger/producer in Nashville.

The album has been elusive for many years and the CD reissue features six extra tracks comprised of rare mono single mixes and outtakes. This is the first time this album has been issued on CD and it comes with a fully detailed history of the recording and period photographs. (VJ)

Led by the legendary performer/producer Thomas Jefferson Kaye, the songs include All Cried Out, Qualified, Collection Box and Hoe-Bus. A few cuts have killer fuzz guitar leads and others have a nice communal folk feel.

White Cloud also backed Loudon Wainwright III on his third album (the one with Red Guitar and Dead Skunk).

Terry & The Telstars formed in Lewiston, Maine in 1964. They recorded a single in 1967 but it was not released, until both sides (Reasons and Stop & Think) were unearthed on the New England Teen Scene Unreleased (CD). After a change of name to White Fluff, they finally released a single in October 1969 on Ed Boucher's EAB label. The band folded the following year but most of them would come together again in 1971 to record a single by Jonathan Cloud - see the Euphoria's Id entry.

(1) reissued again on CD (Progressive Line PL 578) 200? together with Mississippi's solo album Velvet Sandpaper.

This group was from Long Beach, California. Musically, the album is very diverse. There's quite a good cover of Bob Womack's What Is This; the Beatle-ish You'll Lose A Good Thing; and lots of funky strutting on Cold Shot. The highlights are covers of The Fugs' I Couldn't Get High and The Velvet Underground's I'm Waiting For The Man. You'd be well-advised to grab a reissue before forking out for either of the very rare original editions; this one is an acquired taste.

Both versions of the album have the same front cover design, which is the same design used by The Philosophers on their After Sundown album. Both titles were manufactured by Century Records, who offered bands without artwork the option of picking a cover from a number of 'catalogue' art designs.

Mississippi also recorded an album entitled Velvet Sandpaper. This has been reissued on vinyl and CD.

Compilation appearances have so far included: VDFM, Crashin', White Light Pt. 1 and White Light Pt. 2 on Filling The Gap (4-LP box) (these are the tracks that only appear on the repackaged version of the album); and I Couldn't Get High and Cold Shot on Kicks & Chicks Vol. 1 (LP). ALBUM: 1(A) WHITE LIGHTNIN' (Island ILPS 9325) 1975

Recorded at Sam Phillips Studios in Memphis, the only album of this black power trio may interest fans of Velvert Turner, Black Merda and other bands influenced by Hendrix.

Housed in a superb die-cut sleeve painted by Mati Klarwein (also responsible of the famous covers of Santana's Abraxas and Miles Davis' Bitches Brew), this album was produced by no other than Felix Pappalardi, who really knew how to record such a group, as he also produced Cream, Mountain and Hot Tuna. All the material was original, except for a cover of Garland Jeffrey's Wild In The Street.

A veteran of the Memphis scene, Busta Jones had previously played with Moloch. In 1973/74, he travelled to England where he recorded with Brian Eno, Chris Spedding and the Sharks. In the early eighties, he worked with Robert Fripp and Talking Heads.

The Kinsey brothers would later front the Kinsey Report, an electric blues group and work with their father, "Big Daddy" Kinsey, a Chicago blues singer. Donald would also record with Peter Tosh. (SR)

	William/Of Paupers And Poets	(Hexagon 944) 1968

This outfit was formed by ex-Litter guitarist Caplan in Minneapolis, Minnesota in September of 1968. The compulsive psychedelic-punk song William, which was issued on a number of occasions, was their finest moment. They later became Lightning and issued one single and an eponymous album on PIP.

(Under The Screaming Double) Eagle and Strikes Twice are retrospective albums of previously unreleased material, which was recorded around the time of the superb William single during 1968-69 at Warren Kendrick studios in Minneapolis. Some tracks are purely instrumental and the extended No Time For Love bears more than a little resemblance to Quicksilver's excellent Gold And Silver, but there's some superb guitar jamming here and either album is essential for Litter fans and recommended to all connoisseurs of guitar-driven psychedelia.

In 2001, Zip Caplan released a new CD Monsters And Heroes as Zip Caplan and Cast of Thousands. Mostly instrumental it comprises 21 tracks of classic horror movie, old serials and fifties T.V. series soundtracks but was recorded with 'rock' instruments. 48 different musicians are featured, with a different set of players backing Zip on each track. Some of the guests include Jim McCarty (The Yardbirds), Joey Molland (Badfinger), Nokie Edwards (The Ventures), Bobby Torres (Joe Cocker and Tom Jones), Doug Nelson (Jonny Lang Band), Bruce "Creeper" Kurnow (Mason Proffit), Denny Libby (The Castaways) plus guys from Edgar Winter, Gypsy, The Litter, Stillroven, Underbeats, White Lightning and Crow.

William was later covered by two bands in the eighties: Broken Jug and Billy Synth and The Turnups.

Compilation appearances include: William and Of Paupers And Poets on Litter - Rare Tracks (LP); William, Of Paupers And Poets and (Under The Screaming Double) Eagle on The Scotty Story - Minnesota's Legendary '60s Rock Label! (CD); William on Acid Dreams, Vol. 1 (LP), Everywhere Interferences (LP), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Testament (CD) and Garagelands, Vol. 2 (CD); and Freedom (the 45 version) on *The Arf! Ruth White recorded at least three albums which are sought-after by some collectors. Her two Limelight records may appeal to readers interested by Don Robertson and other psychedelic electronic sound pioneers.

Seven Trumps is an electronic impression of the Tarot deck. Flowers Of Evil comprises poetry readings of Charles Baudelaire accompanied by avant-garde electronics. Tracks include The Cat, Spleen and The Litanies of Satan. On Short Circuits White turns her attention to various classical musical themes. (SR/SN/VJ)

On the Philips single, The Sun Is Cold combines Donovan with Barry McGuire and a touch of Phil Spector's production values (bells and kettledrums persist) but sounds quite mature for its vintage. Lonesome King is a missed opportunity as it sounds much like the other. Only at the end of the track does the atmosphere gains some intensity. (MK/MW/GM)

NB: (1) publishers demo album issued in plain white jacket. (1) reissued on vinyl (Rockadelic RRLP 36) 1998 with bonus cut (Intro) - just 600 copies were pressed.

A very odd story lies behind this rare item. The songs on this album were written by a father for his children's band and after unsuccessfully trying to record the songs with his kids, he decided to have them recorded by "professionals".

From the early sixties to the early eighties, magazines commonly ran ads in the back reading "Songwriters! Put Your Lyrics To Music!" For a price, these shifty "companies" would employ a crew of hack players to throw something on tape quickly, invariably to the utter disappointment of the customer. This album resulted from one such venture. It is, however, unique in two very important ways: i) Most often, the finished "songs" were furnished to the customer on tape - this one arrived as a small quantity of vinyl albums, and ii) most of these outfits were based in Nashville and therefore were country music - but this company was based in New York City and the faceless studio band they employed sound like high school dropouts that were paid in weed!

Obviously, the results are only variably successful but the best stuff is not to be missed. Victim Of My Mind is wicked psychedelic-punk with Blue Cheer-style roaring fuzz guitar coursing through it and Whitewood is a crude melodic hard-rocker with creepy lyrics seemingly about inherited madness that culminates in a haze of feedback. It's a very disturbing record - highly recommended!

ALBUM: 1 IN SEARCH OF JUSTUS (No label) 1969 R1

This is a seldom seen orchestrated psych-pop album from a California artist. Most of the songs are self-penned with Bobby Morphis. Some are Beatles-influenced pop-psych with harpsichord, effects, some orchestration and occasional fuzz guitar. There's plenty of diversity from whimsical bubblegum to psych on tracks like Merging Traffic, Summer Sidewalks, A Lesson In Expenditure, Mr. Finn and Go Away Now. There's also a cover of Nature Boy that features sitar. The lyrics are quite surreal and the private pressing (possibly even a demo) is presented in primitive black and white cover art. Wicked Truth (PA)

45: Take A Chance/Rock No More (Teru 305119) 1968/9

Late sixties heavy progressive rock often touted as 'garage' from Alexandria, Pennsylvania. If that's your bag Take A Chance is a decent riffer with a fluidly trilling keyboard solo. Unfortunately the flip is lame and pedestrian.

Take A Chance has also turned up on Seeds Turn To Flowers Turn To Dust (LP & CD). (MW)

Crackin' Up/Bluescene (BlacKnight 903) 1966
Drive It Home/To Have Never Loved At All (Goyle 101) 1966

The Wig was one of Austin's longest lasting sixties rock groups. Benny Rowe had earlier played in The Wigs but when they broke up after a European tour he retained the name omitting the 's' and put together line-up (A) above. They quickly became a popular live attraction in central Texas performing regularly at the Jade Room in Austin. Promotional copies of the Empire release came on yellow vinyl. Crackin' Up, which included some competent guitar playing but lacked any commercial potential, was a Rusty Wier composition. Bluescene was an instrumental. When the follow-up made little impact the writing was on the wall for the band. They finally broke up in 1968 and Weir and Yaryan went on to Lavender Hill Express, whilst Johnny Richardson teamed up with Gary P. Nunn, Rick Cobb and Chuck Greenwood in The Georgetown Medical Band. Wier later enjoyed a successful solo career. The retrospective album features The Wig covering five classic songs of the era - Everybody Needs Somebody, Gimme Some Lovin', Louie Louie, Gloria and You Really Got Me - and playing their second single live at the Jade Room. It also includes both sides of their first intended but unreleased single - Little By Little and Forever And A Day, which later evolved into Crackin' Up. There's also a practice recording of Crackin' Up prior to the recording of the first single. The remaining two tracks are by The Georgetown Medical Band. Still it's probably true to say that this album is likely to remain largely the interest of rock archivists.

Compilation appearances have included: Drive It Home on Flashback, Vol. 6 (LP) and Punk Classics (CD); Crackin' Up on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles Box (5-LP) and Trash Box (5-CD); and a live version of Drive It appears on Quagmire Volume 4 (CD). It's also listed on the sleeve to Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), but isn't included there. (VJ)

45: I'm On My Way Down The Road/
The Goofy Goggle (SAMA 1002) 1966

Quoted as having been based both in Texas and Ohio, it turns out that this mob's home turf was Hope, Arkansas. I'm On My Way Down The Road is a decent enough pop-punk effort which builds up to quite a powerful climax.

It's also said that they recorded a single as The Loving Years (Down The Road/Apples And Oranges on Viva 623) in February 1968.

You can also check out I'm On My Way Down The Road on Pebbles, Vol. 10 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (LP) and Psychedelic States: Arkansas Vol. 1 (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) WILD BUTTER (United Artists UAS-6766) 1970 R1

45: Roxanna/Terribly Blind (United Artists 50688) 1970

From Akron, Ohio Wild Butter released one album mixing psychedelia with English pop including covers of The Moody Blues (Never Comes The Day), The Bee Gees (New York Mining Disaster 1941) and Neil Young (I've Been Waiting For You), with organ, wah-wah and vocal harmonies. It's not exceptional but pleasant.

The band was put together by Jerry Buckner, who had obtained a contract with United Artists. Jon Senne and Rick Garen were recruited from another Akron group, The Collection, who had recently lost their bassist and Steve Price was recruited to complete the new band. Amazingly they had only been together three weeks before they recorded the album!

Jim Quinn and Bob Kalamasz from Damnation of Adam Blessing provided some guitar-work to the album, although the complex lead solo on Terribly Blind was performed by Steve Price's brother Mark.

Their single was taken from the album. Roxanna was a regional breakout in Billboard magazine and the band got to play all the Hullabaloo clubs in Ohio as well as opening for Bobby Sherman in Cleveland. The band also had residencies at a couple of clubs in 'The Flats' area of Cleveland.

Mark Price went on to play bass in the Warner Bros recording group Tin Huey, circa 1979. Jerry Buckner later wrote Pac Man Fever (a national No. 1 hit) and On And On. He has a radio show in Atlanta now, whilst Jon Senne lives in Montana and Rick Garen is in Florida. Steve Price went back to being an artist and owns a gallery in Cambria, California. He is currently preparing a CD of original acoustic material. (SR/SP)

Formed in 1964 this Hampton, Virginia quartet gained a reputation in the area for their ability to cover The Beatles. Leader Hal Souders and his cousin Carl Moore started to write their own material and created two haunting teen garage ballads which were released on their sole single in early 1966. Both sides can also be heard on the excellent and well-annotated Tidewater compilation Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (LP & CD).

Graduation broke up the band in summer 1966.

Other compilation appearances include I Cried Once on The Night Is So Dark (LP). (BHr/ST/MW)

Huycke, Brown and Adair all originated from Seattle where they had played in The Caravans, The Fury's and The Pipers IV. The Wilde Knights formed in Longview but soon headed for L.A. when founder member Ray Kennedy was drafted. Adding Rick Dey who joined from The Vejtables, line-up 'A' recorded the above two singles. Paul Revere apparently paid Rick Dey around $5,000 for Just Like Me in 1965 and it became The Raiders' first big hit. The Wilde Knights later reformed in the Northwest in 1967 as Genesis and were later known as King Biscuit Entertainers (1968) and American Cheese (1969).

The Rough Diamonds album is strongly recommended as an excellent source of the careers of The Furys, Pipers IV, Wilde Knights, King Biscuit Entertainers and American Cheese.

Compilation appearances include: Beaver Patrol, now regarded as a punk classic, on Pebbles, Vol. 1 (LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (CD), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 1 (2-CD), Pebbles Box (5-LP), Pebbles, Vol. 1 (ESD) (CD), Acid Dreams - The Complete Set (3-LP), Acid Dreams Epitaph (CD), Trash Box (5-CD) and Uptight Tonight (CD); Just Like Me on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 7 (LP); and Just Like Me, I Don't Care and Beaver Patrol on Nuggets From The Golden State: Scarey Business (CD).

Rick Dey went on to do stints with February Sunshine and the Merry-Go-Round. He died in late '69/early '70 from an overdose of nitrous oxide (laughing gas) at a Hollywood party. (VJ/MW)

Love and Jamison came from Laguna Beach, California. They had previously been members of Phil Pearlman's band that recorded the rare surf single as Phil and The Flakes (see Beat Of The Earth entry).

Following a chance meeting with an enthusiastic concert promoter, the band relocated to Texas where they played numerous shows and recorded their album at Sonobeat Studios (home of Johnny Winter and Mariani). The Wildfire demo album was a very small pressing used to shop the band to record labels, although after initial efforts to impress the majors were met with indifference, the remaining copies were sold through head shops back home in the southern California beach community.

A wild and inventive power trio offering, this record sits at the top of the pile of U.S. hard-rock efforts. From the opening echoed growl of the guitar intro to Stars In The Sky through the 10-minutes-plus Quicksand at the end of side two, the ideas never stop coming. Highly recommended. (CF/VJ)

45: Baby Dear/Wind Dream (Mainstream 659) 1966

The Wildflower was a popular mid-sixties San Francisco-based folk-rock outfit. Their 1966 single Baby Dear was quite up-tempo. The flip Wind Dream was smooth and mellow and culminated with an exciting finish. These and two other up-tempo numbers, Coffee Cup and Jump In were featured on Mainstream's A Pot Of Flowers (LP) compilation in 1968.

The band has recently reunited and recorded a new CD. Check out their website for more details: http://www.thewildflower-sf.com/index.html

This Mansfield, Ohio band released three decent pop singles produced by John Walsh. The first coupled a cover of the Grass Roots hit with a number written by pop/bubblegum writer-producer Ritchie Cordell. New Games To Play was another Cordell composition in co-operation with Vinnie Poncia & Peter Andreoli (The Innocence); it was paired with a Sonny Bono number. Their final release was a fine cover of the Hollies backed by a new version of a Zinser song that he'd recorded in 1966 with his previous outfit, The Sleepers. Zinser would next appear in Owen-B. (MW)

Sometimes described as 'garage', this slick-haired dark-suited outfit present an album of "big-beat" sounds; an assortment of polished ballads, pop/Motown and dance numbers - It's Not Unusual, My Little Red Book, You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin', Dancing In The Streets, What's New Pussycat. It's not for garage fans, though they do a solid version of the 'Stones Satisfaction and a brooding cover of the Highwaymen's folk-rock popper My Foolish Pride (written and demo'd by the D-Men/Fifth Estate team). The singles are generally strident pop thumpers or sultry ballads.

Guitarist Chuck Alden later formed The Fuzzy Bunnies, a quartet who were also house band at New York's Arthur club between 1967-1968 and who issued at least three singles. (MW)

	Old Lady/Next To Me (PS)	(Elektra 45672) 1969

Kickin' off in the early sixties as the Dynamic Deltones, this Tidewater-area, Virginia band performed rock'n'roll up and down the East Coast. By 1966 they'd become The Wild Thing and adopted a totally unique look - once seen never forgotten.... imagine Little Richard or Esquerita with silver hair, a male equivalent of a "beehive" on top and long tresses at the back!

Weird Hot Nights (Suffer Baby) is a raw thumper with raucous vocals, manic laughter, spiteful guitar and an exotic break - compiled on Aliens, Psychos And Wild Things (CD) and Midnight To Sixty-Six (LP). The flip strikes a tough stance too with strong vocals and biting lead. Both sides were composed by scene maker Frank Guida and local soul singer Lenis Guess.

They rocked on to the end of the decade with an album and single on Elektra but those candyfloss coiffures have not been seen since.

You can also find their version of In A Gadda-Da-Vida on Elektrock The Sixties (4-LP). (BHr/ST/MW)

CD: 1 DAVE & THE DYNAMICS/THE WILD THINGS (North Shore Soundworks NSS-024) 2004

45: Love Comes, Love Goes/I'm Not For You (Showboat 670) 1966

A sextet from New Castle, Indiana that came together in 1964 as Dave & The Dynamics (line-up 'A'). They recorded some demos in 1965 but their debut didn't appear until 1966, by which time they'd slimmed down to a quartet. At that point they also decided on a change of identity, so their single announced the arrival of The Wild Things.

Presumably inspired by the Troggs hit, their name was somewhat at odds with their offerings, a pair of tame Beatlesque ballads. More line-up changes followed, precipitated by the draft, but no further releases appeared and the band folded in 1968. Barnes and Bennett joined Muncie's Chosen Few, who would continue throughout the seventies as The Faith Band.

The retrospective CD features both sides of the Showboat single, 14 unreleased tracks from a January 1966 session and five 1965 demos.

Love Comes, Love Goes has reappeared on Follow That Munster Vol.1 (LP) and I'm Not For You on Hoosier Hotshots (LP). (MW)

A Cleveland, Ohio band whose A.C.I.D. (apparently short for Another Colored Ink Drawing) is well worth a spin. The lyrics are full of acid imagery and the instrumentation is full of tempo changes and suitably distorted in places. 'S. Owsley' is probably a pseudonym as Stanley Owsely was one of the leading underground chemists in San Francisco, and 'Owsley' acid was regarded as the finest LSD.

Compilation appearances have included: I'll Taste Your Lips on Killer Cuts (LP) and Wyld Sydes Volume Five (CD); Another Colored Ink Drawing on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP), Psychedelic Experience, Vol. 3 (CD) and Wyld Sydes Volume 9 (CD); My Love on Garage Zone, Vol. 3 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (LP); and Never Again on Destination Frantic Volume 3 (CD). NB: α released as by Al Anderson and Wildweeds.

This group started life in Windsor/Windsor Locks, Connecticut. Their sole album is composed of musically competent electric folk music with a strong country influence. Among the more interesting tracks are Belle and An Overnight Guest. They generated a good time sound, but although their songs lacked lyrical poignancy, their album remains of minor interest to some collectors.

Al Anderson went solo after the band's demise. He also joined NRBQ in the early seventies. Another member, Ray Zeiner (who'd left prior to the album) put out one solo single, I Had A Girl/You Know Your Love (Poison Ring 721) in 1969. Zeiner and "Big Al" were the driving force behind the Weeds and internal rivalry within the group led eventually to their break-up. Their bass player, Bobby Dudek, was incidentally blind. Andy Lepak replaced his older brother's place on the drum stool when Al Lepak was drafted.

Their strong debut single No Good To Cry was covered by The Moving Sidewalks on their Flash album.

The compilation No Good To Cry includes both sides of their Cadet Concept singles along with many unreleased tracks from the same era.

Compilation appearances include: My Baby Left Me on Pop Music Super Hebdo (LP); No Good To Cry on Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP & CD); and I'm Dreamin' on Don't Press Your Luck (2-LP). (VJ/SSr/MW/SR)

Wildwood evolved out of The Mal-T's, who included Mark Ross and released one single in early 1967.

Ross relocated to Monterey in the early seventies where he hooked up with UK outfit The Mark-Almond Band. He would play keyboards with the likes of Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley, Brian Wilson, Carole King, and Linda Ronstadt before moving into production and composition. He ended up working on TV soaps and shows, including 'The Chris Isaak Show' (a fellow Stagg High School and Pacific University graduate) and in 2008 won his second daytime Emmy award for music direction and composition.

This psych-punk outfit operated out of Stockton, California and recorded a pair of sought-after singles in 1968. Only the contemporarily-titled Plastic People has tempted the compilers so far, on Straight From The Garage Vol. 3 (EP), Acid Trip From The Psychedelic Sixties (LP), Sixties Archives 8 (CD) and A Deadly Dose Of Wylde Psych (CD). It's an acid-rocker with bubbling keyboards, sorta like early Iron Butterfly. The stately flip Swimming is almost as impressive and the vocalist does a good impression of a younger Doug Ingle.

Word is that a retrospective CD is in the pipeline, due 2010. (VJ/MW)

Produced by Don Tweedy, his wonderfully titled debut solo album was recorded in 1970 between Muscle Shoals, Nashville and Hollywood, with several dozen musicians and inspiration from, among many names, Buffalo Springfield, Dennis Hopper, Brian Wilson, Mick Jagger, John and Paul, Herman Hesse, Jesus of Nazareth, Kubrick, T.S Eliot and Marshall McLuhan!

It offers several good orchestrated ballads with clever arrangements, like The Daydream or Apartment 21 and the highlight of the album, the superb rock number Apocalypse 1969 co-written by Wilkin and Kris Kristofferson.

Two tracks, The Nashville Sun and Me And Bobby McGee were in fact recorded earlier by The American Eagles and re-used for this album.

His second album, released as Buck Wilkin, is totally different as it was recorded by a trio and combines good humoured covers of classics like Johnny B Goode and Money with some good original tracks (I'm Free, Look At Me Mama). Some tracks were also used (in slightly different takes) for the soundtrack of 'The American Dreamer', a movie with Dennis Hopper.

During the late sixties and seventies, Wilkin would also play guitar on dozens of records, either with rock groups (Willie and The Red Rubber Band), singer/songwriters (Joan Baez, Steve Goodman, John Stewart...) and most of the "Outlaw" country singers (Waylon Jennings, Jessi Colter...). He also wrote the liner notes for the Feminine Complex album. (SR)

Produced by Warren Schatz and Stephen Schlaks, this album is full of loose trio rock. It's not too heavy and has some excellent psychedelic touches plus two brilliant Beatlesque tracks Pourscha Poe and Yellow Wall. It also includes a cover of Sleepy John Estes' Leavin' Trunk.

Date was a subsidiary label of CBS. Schatz and Shlaks produced a number of East Coast hard-rock bands, notably Banchee and Yesterday's Children. (VJ/SR/CF)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (WEA/Reprise 1958) 200? (1) reissued on CD (Collector's Choice CCM544) 2005.

This album marked the first major collaboration between Paul Williams (Holy Mackerel) and Roger Nichols, who went on to work on a bundle of early-seventies hits for The Carpenters and Three Dog Night among others; the studio musicians on the album included Hal Blaine and Larry Knechtel. The title track was covered by The Monkees, but if you're into orchestrated pop you may enjoy tracks like To Put Up With You, Do You Really Have A Heart, I Know You, So Many People, She's Too Good To Me, Mornin' I'll Be Movin On, Time, Trust and Roan Pony. However, Williams only provided the lyrics on this album and his voice is thin. Roger Nichols produced the album and wrote the music. He went on to record several further albums. (VJ)

ALBUM:	1(A)	BLUES FULL CIRCLE	(Epic BN 26472) 1969

Born in Los Angeles, Tim Williams was a white singer and guitarist who, during his teens, moved with his family to the California desert community of Lancaster. Here he began to play folk and blues music and met up with Frank Zappa and Captain Beefheart. The liner notes of his sole album state that "he met and learned a great deal from Frank Zappa and Captain Beefheart, who worked regularly with their bands in the area and Beefheart especially encouraged his interest in the blues". Williams began playing with a five-piece group, the Delta Blues, as well as being a soloist in the coffeehouses and folk music clubs.

Williams then moved to Santa Barbara, married, worked the local clubs and came in contact with Hoyt Axton. He managed to get a recording contract with Epic and his album was produced by the blues producers Chris Strachwitz and Doug McGuire. Side one is electric and the side two is made up of acoustic blues and folk, with a good cover of Hoyt Axton's Snowblind Friend (also covered by Steppenwolf) plus several blues classics.

The album is really rare now but is mainly of interest to blues fans, the influence of Beefheart being negligible. (SR)

WILLIE AND THE RED RUBBER BAND - Self Titled LP.

Willie and The Red Rubber Band who came from Shreveport, Texas issued two albums of their own mix of rock, R&B and psychedelia, like The Hombres or The Gentrys.

The first album is probably their best, with tracks like Mary Jane, Nature's Way Of Saying Thank You and School Of Hard Knocks.

Produced by Duke Niles and Chuck Sagle, the second one is bluesier but contains some good tracks, such as Watch Out Fool Self, We're Coming Up, Chicky Chicky Boom Boom and Deep Eyes Of Darkness. All the tracks were written by group members. John Buck Wilkin (the former Ronny and The Daytonas leader) guests on guitar.

On both albums, the tracks are generally short (under three minutes). Although some arrangements sound very dated now, the guitar and keyboards parts are generally interesting and the albums are pleasant. (SR)

This Chicago outfit produced breezy commercial male-female harmony-pop that may appeal to flower-power fans. Interestingly they chose to cover Pride and Joy's If You're Ready but it's not as bad as one might expect - like a poppy Jefferson Airplane, with a decent guitar break and keyboard outro - and is considered worthy enough to be compiled on *Basementsville! 1 SONGS FROM THE CATALOG OF SONOSONG MUSIC COMPANY (Sonobeat WEJ-287M/WEJ-288M) 1969 R2-R3
2 EVER CHANGING MINSTREL (w/lyric insert) (Columbia/Windfall Records KC 32535) 1973

NB: (1) is a demo album in a plain white jacket. Just 100 copies were pressed.

Singer/songwriter Bill Wilson spent the late sixties in Austin, serving in the military at Bergstrom Air Force Base. He met Sonobeat owners Bill Josey Sr. and Rim Kelley (Bill Josey Jr.) through Cody Hubach, who Wilson played the south Austin bars and clubs with on weekends.

In 1969 Wilson recorded a demo album of 12 folk, country and pop songs. These were circulated to major labels hoping to secure covers by major artists, but to no avail. Still Wilson was invited back to record other sessions for Sonobeat but none of them was ever released. He also sang vocals on two cuts on Mariani's Perpetuum Mobile album.

When he finished his spell in the army, Wilson returned to his birthplace in Bloomington, Indiana and in 1972 he joined folk-rock group The Pleasant Street Band, with whom he later arranged to record an album at Sonobeat. On the strength of this and his earlier Sonobeat demo Columbia Records commissioned a solo album, Ever Changing Minstrel. A change in Columbia's management just as the album was released in 1973 interrupted his Columbia career. In 1974 he quit The Pleasant Street Band to form Bill Wilson and Friends. He went on to record three indie albums, Talking To Stars, Made in the U.S.A., and the unreleased Traction In The Rain.

Wilson passed away in November, 1993. (SR/VJ)

WILSON McKINLEY - Jesus People's Army - On Stage LP.

This Endicott, New York artist's second album was an oddball mixture of pop, avant-garde, jazz, electronic music and proto new wave and this is the one that really interests collectors. The lyrics are obsessed with girls he either knew or fantasised about. He vanished for about 25 years after releasing this. His debut is a freeform jazz effort that is not as good. Singles and EPs are also known to exist. Forgotten Lovers (CD) is a compilation of seventies material and he recorded an album of new songs in 2004. (VJ)

Tom Wilson (NY)

ALBUM: 1 TOM'S TOUCH (ABC ABCS-?) 1969

Tom Wilson was one of the main producers associated with the psychedelic movement. With his two companies: Rasputin (production) and Terrible Tunes (publishing), Wilson was obviously able to choose the right groups at the right moment.

Between 1965 and 1970, he produced the following groups (to name a few): Mothers Of Invention, Velvet Underground, Ill Wind, Harumi, Fraternity Of Man, Bagatelle, Last Ritual, The Serfs, Barry Goldberg, Blues Project, Beacon Street Union, Country Joe and The Fish, Fear Itself and Maximillian...

Tom's Touch is not a solo album but a rare compilation of some of his productions for ABC: Fraternity Of Man, Ill Wind, Bagatelle, Purpose and Fire. (SR)

EP: 1 BLUES GO HOME + 2 (Rocking Chair Records 101) 196?

NB: (1) 7" EP, no sleeve issued.

All three of these albums are significant collectors' items and had great sleeves. The band remained anonymous on their album credits, but played the Spokane/Eastern Washington circuit for years, before discovering "Jesus" and anonymity.

Their debut album, which was recorded live and issued in at least three different hand-made cover designs, is poorly recorded and rather lightweight. Their second effort, Spirit Of Elijah represented a vast improvement, however, featuring some nice laid-back guitar-rock in the mould of Moby Grape's Wow, and the title track was particularly good. Their third album, Heavens Gonna Be A Blast! was their rockin' Allman Brothers-type pinnacle.

Wilson McKinley also recorded a fourth album, which was only released on cassette, and is country-gospel rock (in that order).

Prior to the Jesus-rock albums The Wilson McKinley recorded an album under the alias of The California Poppy Pickers, with their original line-up, including Don Larson on bs/vcls. Entitled Honky Tonk Women (Alshire S-5167) 1969, they used the proceeds from the album to fund the release of their EP on Rocking Chair Records. One track from this EP, Last One Asleep, can also be heard on the Yee-Haw! The Other Side Of Country (LP/CD) compilation.

Later Don Larson, Mike Messer and Randy Wilcox recorded a new album as Wilson McKinley. (CF/MPd)

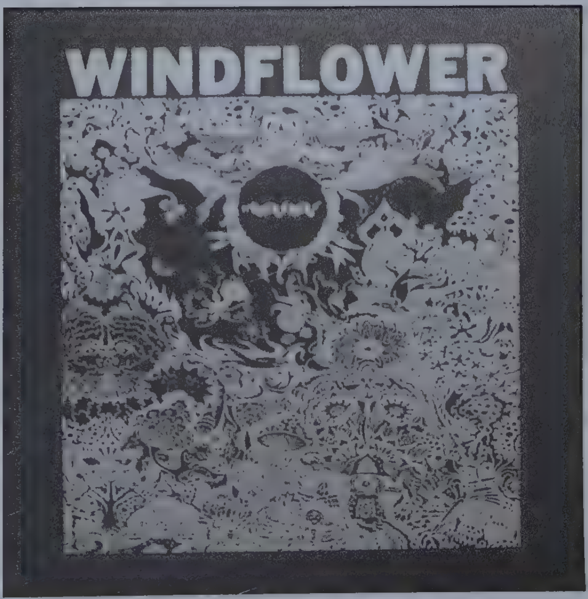
45: Moments Spent/Uptown Girl (Capitol 2274) 1968



WINDFLOWER - Dreams LP.

This New York City group is most notable for the inclusion of Debbie Harry, who was later in Blondie. A dreamy album, it has its moments. Aside from two cover versions of Don Everly and Roger Miller songs, the album's hippie flower-pop songs were written by the band members. The outstanding track being the hypnotic narration/chant There Is But One Truth, Daddy, which has a musical backing slightly reminiscent of Pink Floyd. The band took their name from the children's book by Kenneth Graham. The album got to spend three weeks in the Top 200, peaking at No. 195.

The album was produced was Artie Kornfeld, who contributed to the 1969 Woodstock Festival. He also produced another interesting album, A Time To Remember!, which was credited to The Artie Kornfeld Tree.

Moments Spent is compiled on Psychedelic Archives Vol. 6 (double cassette box). (VJ/GF)

An obscure outfit whose sole known single is produced by The Monkees maestros Boyce & Hart, so perhaps based in L.A. (or a studio project). Forget the flip side - a novelty of sorts with cornball vocals. I Haven't Got You is a swingin' mid-tempo garage-beater that is somewhere between Gloria and Hang On Sloopy - lightweight and not a buzz of fuzz to be heard, but very catchy. The Apollo 15 Astronauts took their Road album to the moon with them and named two craters after the songs Ghost Beads and Icarus. Their 1972 album Icarus was produced by George Martin and recorded in the summer of 1971. 45: Got Love/Freedom (short version) (Penguin P-100) 1971

Sometimes erroneously described as psychedelic, Wizard's bluesy hard-rock album is now very rare and sought-after by some collectors. The band formed in the spring of 1970 in Tampa, Florida when Forney and Schultz were due to play a gig in a short-lived band called "Brother", supporting Canadian act "Smith" and Chicago's Flock. Before the concert, Paul and Ben had a disagreement with Brother's drummer, who walked out and disappeared for nearly an hour. Needing to run a sound check, they asked their roadie, Chris to sit at the drums and just "pound away" so they could get the whole rig balanced. Completely unaware that Chris had been playing the drums for about five years and having sat in on a few rehearsals knew all their songs by heart, Paul and Ben were rather taken aback when he began playing along in perfect time... The next day, they fired their drummer, asked Chris to join the band and renamed themselves Wizard.

They set about touring extensively, playing gigs in Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Michigan, Chicago and Colorado, including the Goose Lake Festival in Michigan in summer 1970, and the following winter, opening for the likes of Iron Butterfly and Van Morrison in Florida.

WIZARD - The Original Wizard LP.

Their sole album was recorded at LeFevre Sound Studios in Atlanta, Georgia and consisted of mainly original material, much of which was the product of jam sessions and live stage improvisations. It's really more early seventies style hard-rock, but far from plodding which so many of those albums were. The opening and closing track Freedom is standard hard-rock with good guitar moments. Come And See The Bride sounding a little like Jethro Tull in places is evidence of some diversity, but most of the rest of side one is pretty standard hard-rock with What Do You Know About Mary probably the pick for its good guitar intro and harsh vocals. The better tracks on side two are Séance, notable for some Hendrix-style histrionics at the end and Evergreen, which has a nice ringing guitar intro. The remaining tracks are pretty standard, but mostly decent hard-rockers.

They split in mid-'71, but are still in touch to this day, and Chris Luhn recalls "All-in-all, it was a good time. We met and played with some outstanding musicians, including the members of Bob Seger, Frijid Pink, Catfish, Third Power, Teegarden & Van Winkle, Iron Butterfly, Chicago, Ten Years After, Small Faces, etc. Now, I'm a lawyer. Go figure.. ."

This group should not be confused with the Florida-based Wizard on the Illusion label, or with either of the two California heavy rock bands named Wizard that issued albums in the early eighties.

You can also hear one album track Séance on Gear Fab's Psychedelic Sampler (CD). (VJ/SR)

This was an obscure country-influenced band from Topeka, Kansas whose sole album contained fine versions of classic period songs High Flying Bird and Buffy St. Marie's Codine, as well as some excellent original compositions notably Misty Mountainside, Country Dawn and She Rides With Witches. The band exhibited a fine range of harmonies. The album is recommended and is a significant collectable.

The famous "howling" D.J. also recorded some albums. His first was released in 1965, on it he is accompanied by an electric band, with good 'garagy' covers of fifties rock and New Orleans hits, plus Wolfman Boogie Pt's 1 & 2. The record came in a stunning cartoon cover and is now rare.

Wolfman Jack kept on recording during the seventies but his other albums fall outside the scope of this book.

45: Hang On/
My Baby Thinks About The Good Things (Dot 17250) 1969

This San Francisco-based band was sometimes prone to over-indulgent improvisation but they had their moments. Their albums were essentially crossovers between the 'psychedelic' and 'progressive' eras with the second one by far the better of the two. On the first Conceptions Of Reality is notable for Karyl Boddy's soothing vocals, but the stand-out track is Happy Egotist, a fine imaginative slice of psychedelia. Forget the rest of the album, which is full of messy arrangements and lots of brass. The second album has three decent tracks: - Flash, a somewhat mystical, trippy piece of psychedelia; Love, experimental soft psychedelia with liberal lashings of woodwind and the 10½ minute finale, Evil People, an amalgam of psychedelia and progressivism with some nice interweaving guitar work. The remainder of the album is messy and too brassy. Neither album has yet acquired collectors' status but they may in time. If you're interested, start with their second album. (VJ)

45: Come Over Here/I Thought I'd Forget (Woodrich WR 1242) 1964

The Woodrich label operated out of Rogersville, Alabama and put out some intriguing and sometimes excellent releases by the likes of the Hi-Boys, Poor Souls, Rocks, Shadows, and Shandells Inc. Pressed up in small quantities (a few hundred at most), they were given to the bands to distribute and sell themselves. This one offers up a pair of sparse garage-beat numbers written by Jedge Daniel. (MW)

Produced and "written" by Bobby Arlin (ex-Leaves and Hook), this rare single sported amended lyrics for this classic song:

I'm going to the police station, gonna' turn on the chief man.
Hey, Joe what are you gonna do?
I might smoke it all before I'm through.
Hey, Joe tell me what'cha gonna do?

John Wonderling (NY)

ALBUM: 1 DAYBREAKS (Paramount 6063) 1973

This New York City-based singer/songwriter may be best known for his much compiled single Man Of Straw, which also appears on this album. The album mostly comprises singer/songwriter material but has a sixties psych undercurrent and both the lyrics and music have a druggy feel. Perhaps the most appealing feature is the strength of Wonderling's voice. Views differ as to the best cut but Jessica Stone and the opener Long Way Home are strong contenders.

Compilation appearances include: Man Of Straw on Exploding Plastic Inevitable II (LP) and Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD) and Midway Down is on Artificial Faces (LP). (VJ)

NB: α shown as by Terry And The Chain Reaction.

Formed in 1962 at Sheffield High School, this Alabama quartet was popular on the fraternity circuit in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi. They welded a Southern swing with R'n'B and frat flavourings onto a foundation of British Invasion pop. Known as Terry Woodford And The Mystics (despite the first three singles being credited to Terry Woodford alone), they evolved into Terry And The Chain Reaction who released two decent pop singles on United Artists.

Keep Your Cool may appeal to garage fans - a strutting number with Green Onions keyboard moves and spoken vocals and an arrogance reminiscent of 006's Like What, Me Worry. Plan 9 covered it on their 1985 album Keep Your Cool And Read The Rules.

At the Muscle Shoals Bands Of The '60s Reunion concert in 1992, the original quartet performed Suzie Q, Satisfaction and Where Is My Little Girl. These are captured on the resultant CD (AMHOF 1993-01) alongside contributions from Mickey Buckins and The New Breed, The Del-Rays, The Wee Juns, Mark V with Dan Penn, Hollis Dixon and The Keynotes, Bobby Denton and Travis Wammack. 45:	People Been Talkin'/Tryin'So Hard	(Smash 2201) 1968

Based in Philadelphia, this band's album is full of pleasant mostly original compositions. Many of the tracks, particularly on side two are gentle, laid-back ballads with Marble Reflections, Tryin' So Hard, Everything Is Fine and the mystical Just To Be With You the pick of these. It includes one genuinely psychedelic track - Color Scheme, a high energy rocker with lots of frantic guitar work. The album, which is recommended, was produced by Jack Shaw and recorded at the Regent Sound Studios in New York City. The single was taken from it.

The band's main claim to fame was that it was one of Todd Rundgren's first outfits (along with Carson Van Osten) before he went off to form The Nazz. He left prior to the recording of their album, but five 1966 demos featuring Rundgren can be found on the The Nazz 2-CD, Nazz From Philadephia + 1966 Demos (Airmail Recordings) 2001. Rochester, New York was the stomping ground for this R'n'B/ blues-influenced combo dominated by vocalist Ed Wool, whose strong raucous style could be compared to Eric Burdon, especially on numbers like the cover of Brown-Terry's Please Please (Don't Go). The album is bluesy rock-pop, if that's your bag, whose highlight is undoubtedly Love Love Love Love Love, another vocal tour-de-force, by Tom Haskell.

Nowadays Wool resides in Albany, New York and continues to record and tour with The Ed Wool Band, playing jazz-rock and big band dance music. Tom Haskell is now a freelance photographer.

This rock'n'roll/rhythm'n'blues outfit came from East Lansing, Michigan. Woolies formed in the mid-sixties and recorded well into the seventies setting up their own Spirit label. Fond of many blues-rock standards they were also Chuck Berry's backing group circa 1968/70 both on stage and for Berry's San Francisco Dues (Chess CH-50008) 1971. Their albums are now of minor interest to collectors.

Vocalist Stormy Rice from their early days took off for L.A. and launched a solo career but only one single resulted, Go Now/Comin' Down (Ode 110) released in April 1968. Bob Baldori (aka Boogie Bob Baldori) has had a more enduring solo career, working with Chuck Berry on and off for the last 35 years, producing and engineering over 200 albums, and even performing in the White House for President Clinton. Bob still records and performs; when he isn't running his law practice and his (CD) Who Do You Love also features fellow Woolies Jeff Baldori and Bee Metros.

45: You're Always Around/
You're Gonna Make Me (Caprice 609V-4983) 1966

Formed by Williams in the summer of 1966 after his spell with The By Fives. They cut a four-song demo at the Boyd Recording Studios in Dallas. Two of the tracks were issued on a single in 1966. You're Always Around, with Genie on vocals featured some fine 12-string guitar by Keathley. The flip was later re-recorded by Williams and Keathley when they joined The Penthouse Five. The other two demo tracks were Today Is Just Tomorrow's Yesterday, which Genie had originally written as a poem but added a tune to, and Keep On Walking. Williams had earlier recorded this as I Saw You Walking with The By Fives but with Keathley's psychedelic leads this latest version was an improvement. Sadly, however, the band broke up within a few weeks of the single's release.

All four of their tracks can also be heard on Texas Punk, Vol. 6 (LP), Acid Visions - Complete Collection, Vol. 3 (3-CD) and on The Penthouse 5 - The WordD Is Love! (CD) alongside an alternate version of Today... and material by the Penthouse Five and By Fives. Keep On Walking and You're Gonna Make Me also appear on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 4 (CD) and Acid Visions Vol. 7 (CD) (Spalax); Keep On Walking is also on Garage Beat '66 7 (CD); You're Gonna Make Me can also be found on Gravel Volume 3 (CD) and the previously unreleased I Saw You Walking can be accessed on Quagmire Volume 3 (CD). 45s: Midnite Thoughts/Lantern Gospel (Atco 6604) 1968
So Is The Sun/It's Not Right (Tower 510) 1969

I thought I'd made a serious mistake when I bought the Atco single some years back - the titles weren't promising and Midnite Thoughts, though littered with some garagy fuzz and Eastern moves also has those typically up-front soulish vocals and brass - yeah, '68 'psychedelic soul' (urk!). However a treasure waited on the other side - a beautiful laid-back slice of tripped-out psychedelia with all the right moves and suitably 'out there' lyrics, guaranteed to evoke a stoned smirk! "Colors start to spin, you dig the state you're in, your mind is somewhere, hanging on a string...". Fortunately the track has now been compiled on High All The Time, Vol. 2 (LP), Acid and Flowers (CD) and Nuggets: Hallucinations (CD). From Chicago, this was a Dunwich production. Thereafter this Munster, Indiana band decided to switch to soul and R'n'B sounds and took on three additional singers. The resultant So Is The Sun single would find a new audience, eventually, on the UK "northern soul" scene and is sought-after by enthusiasts of that genre. (MW)

LINK WRAY - The Original Rumble CD.

Born in North Carolina in 1929, Link Wray is a guitarist and singer of Shawnee origin. He began playing guitar in the thirties, and performing in the forties, but it was when the family relocated to the Washington DC area in the fifties that his career really took off. This was where he formed Link Wray and His Ray-Men with his brothers Vernon (aka Ray Vernon) and Doug, and began recording. Wray was one of the first guitarists to experiment with amplifier distortion and even went as far as poking holes in his speaker cones to make his guitar tone even raunchier. The group was a popular live attraction for several years. Always dressed in black, Wray was one of the first guitar heroes, influencing countless guitarists with his unique style and sound. Wray and his band released a number of successful singles, including Rumble and Rawhide. These led to a contract with Epic Records, who issued his first album Link Wray & The Raymen in 1960. A second album followed in 1962 Great Guitar Hits By Link Wray on the Vermillion label, which was owned by his brother Vernon. The band was now recording in Vernon Wray's studio, the Wray's Shack Three Tracks, located in Accokeek, Maryland. In 1963 he backed Bunker Hill on the frantic The Girl Can't Dance, and issued his Jack The Ripper album.

In the mid-sixties Wray issued quite a number of singles on the Swan label. Reissue label Norton raided the Swan vaults in 2002, issuing Mr Guitar (2-CD) which features 63 classic instrumentals, 26 of which have never before been released in the US. Among the rarities are flip sides, alternate takes, unissued tracks and the entirety of the previously vinyl-only Swan Demos album released by the UK Hangman imprint. Also included are his classic singles like Jack The Ripper, Run Chicken Run, Ace Of Spades, and of course Rumble (not the original 1958 hit, but an excellent re-recording from 1964). Between 1964 and 1970 Wray also recorded many hours of tape at his brother's home studio which remain unreleased.

In 1971 the Link Wray album appeared; an interesting low-key effort which should interest fans of the band as it sounds very sincere and rural, with mainly original material penned by Wray and Verroca plus a good cover of Willie Dixon's Tail Dragger. Shortly after it was issued, Vernon and Link relocated to Tucson, Arizona and set up a new recording studio there, Wray's Shack Three Tracks (+5). The next Wray album is even better, with several acoustic tracks full of dobro and guitars combined with healthy boogie tunes (I'm So Glad) and Indian influences and is really recommended. During the same period, Wray also produced the only album by Eggs Over Easy at the new Tucson studio and contributed to brother Vernon Wray's album. Steve Verroca moved to England where he produced Brinsley Schwartz and Kevin Coyne. Also known as Bobby "The Kid" Howard with The British Walkers, Mordicai Jones released a solo album.

The next album was recorded in San Francisco with Jerry Garcia, Peter Kaukonen, Commander Cody, Greg Douglass (Country Weather), John McFee (Clover) and was produced by another Indian, Thomas Jefferson Kaye (White Cloud). With background vocals and horn & string sections, it's not as good as the previous albums, but nonetheless contains some good tracks (Walk Easy, Walk Slow, Morning and the title track).

The last album released in the time-frame of this book benefited from long liner notes by Pete Townshend, who always acknowledged the huge influence of Wray on his guitar work. Produced by Bruce Steinberg and Skip Drinkwater, two blues producers, it's more rock-oriented and contains one track dedicated to Duane Allman and a remake of his old hit Rumble. It was recorded with the support of Boz Scaggs, Bernie Krause (Beaver and Krause) and Pete Escovedo (Santana).

Wray kept on recording during the seventies and early eighties and also supported Robert Gordon on his first albums, his guitar work still being really interesting and often very violent. Fans might want to investigate the various live recordings that have been made available by several European labels in recent years, but beware of the dodgy sound quality of these.

Link Wray moved to Denmark in the eighties. He continued to tour, playing concerts in Europe and the USA as late as 2005. He passed away at his Danish home in November, 2005 of heart failure. (SR/VJ/CF)

NB: 'A' side is Ron Wray Light Show with The Headstone II. 'B' side is by Don Bombard and The Headstone II. Also issued on Piece 1000/1, and this version may have come first.

Ron Wray was an important figure on the Syracuse music scene as an artist, producer and light show artist. He wrote Bad Woman for The Fallen Angels. He also recorded a couple of singles and Speed, was his finest moment. It's a fuzz assault on the senses.

You can also check out Speed on Pebbles, Vol. 16 (LP) and 30 Seconds Before The Calico Wall (CD). (VJ/MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) WASTED (Vermillion V1972W) 197? R2

Vernon Wray relocated his Wray's Shack Three Tracks studio from Accokeek, Maryland to Tucson, Arizona in the early seventies. As he'd upgraded it to an eight-track studio, he upgraded the name as well... to Wray's Shack Three Tracks (+5) studio, natch! This is a rare private press album recorded by Vernon in a rural/country/folk style with help from his brothers. The recordings date from 1972, although the record is thought to have been pressed in the mid-seventies. Another album, Superstar In My House was also issued in the seventies, but only on 8-track and cassette tape formats.

Vernon passed away in 1979. (SR/CF)

	Love Is In The Air/ My Happiness Is Loving You	(United Artists 50212) 1967
	Soft, Tender And Warm/Good Evening Mr. White	(Bell 713) 1968

From Philadelphia, their finest moment is Dirty Old Man (not the Them song). It's a mean'n'moody fuzz punker with some interesting time changes. Unfortunately the remainder of their output is tame melodic Anglophile pop. Their singles were produced by the Spokesmen John Madara and David White, this could well be an offshoot of that outfit.

Dirty Old Man is compiled on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD). (MW)

45: We've Lost It/? (Soundtrack 1012) 196?

Obscure artist Tommy Wright came from Texas. We've Lost It sounds like the work of a crooner type personality backed by faceless session musicians, trying to be hip with 'wacky' lyrics. It has also resurfaced on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 4: The Go-Go (LP & CD). (GG)

Tony Wright (Kingyo) (?PA)

ALBUM: 1 COMPLEXITY (Radnor 2002) 1970 SC

The first side of this Native American singer/songwriter's scarce album is in an intimate folk style, with only his voice and guitar, while the second side was recorded with an orchestra. Radnor was a small Pennsylvania label which also released the Lumbee album. (SR)

Wrongh Black Bag (CT)

45: Wake Me, Shake Me/I Don't Know Why (Mainstream 689) 1968

This Connecticut combo with female lead provides us with a belting version of The Blues Project number. Like the flip, it features strong vocals, reedy keyboard and some searing guitar that is closer to hard-rock than garage.

Wake Me, Shake Me and the Carole King/Myddle Class classic Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long, both bear lyrical similarity to the Coasters' Wake Me, Shake Me, but the roots of all these seem to be an old black church hymn Heaven's Door's Gonna Be Closed.

At least two members of the band went on to Fancy. (MW/BM)

45s:	The Way I Feel/I Wonder Why	(Hit Cat 201) 1965
	I'm Gonna Go Now/I'm Your Puppet	(Paris Tower 111) 1967

Wrong Numbers hailed from the small community of Mount Dora near Orlando. The Way I Feel appeared on the rare 1966 sampler 12 Groovy Hits, 12 Florida Bands (Tener 154) (LP) and a non-single cover of You Keep Me Hangin' On cropped up on the 1968 Bee Jay Video Soundtrack sampler album (LP) (Tener 1014).

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: I'm Gonna Go Now on Off The Wall, Vol. II (LP) and Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 10 (LP & CD); and I Wonder Why on Gravel Volume 5 (CD). (VJ/MW/SMR)

	Know A Lot About Love/Lost One	(Charay C-38) 1967
	Fly By Nighter/If I Had It	(Charay C-38) 1967

This garage band led by Rudy Wyatt may have suffered from a paucity of material since they kept putting Lost One, which they'd earlier recorded as The Roots, on the flips to their singles. Although The Roots had recorded in Dallas, they came from Greenville, South Carolina. They continued until early 1967 but broke up when Rudy moved to Atlanta to join the house band of The Whiskey club there.

Wyatt was involved with several other local Greenville bands; he produced the first single by The Bojax (whose Bobby Holiday played on some Wyld singles), contributed guitar on the second single by The Snowmen, and played on singles by Ward Burton & The Music Men and The Uptowners. In more recent times he answers to the name of "Rudy Blue Shoes" and in 2002 released a boogie-woogie CD, From The Roots.

The flip side to their last single If I Had It starts a little like The Elevators' Levitation and has a Beefheart/Seeds style slide guitar riff. Hear it on Sixties Rebellion, Vol. 5: The Cave (LP & CD). Back From The Grave, Vol. 8 (2-LP & CD) also includes the unreleased track Goin' Places, which was recorded in early 1966 at Mark 5 Studios at the same session as Fly By Nighter. You can also find Lost One on Boulders, Vol. 3 (LP); Fly By Nighter on Back From The Grave, Vol. 4 (LP), Back From The Grave, Vol. 2 (CD) and Fort Worth Teen Scene! Volume One (CD); Alley Oop on It's A Hard Life (LP) and Grains Of Time (CD); and Know A Lot About Love features on Bojax: Don't Look Back..It's The Bojax (LP). (VJ/MW)

		Take It On Home/Stop It Girl (PS)	(Philips 40454) 1967

Here's a noteworthy single by a Peoria, Illinois quartet who were together from 1965 till 1968. Originally known as The Heard, they added the Wylde epithet for their release to distinguish them from contemporary US/UK Herd/Herde/Heard outfits.

Initially recorded in 1966 at their own expense in a small Peoria studio, the single was issued on a label based in Janesville, Wisconsin where the band was based whilst gigging in that region. Both sides were composed by Jim Croegaert whose style leans towards the Zombies. Take It On Home is a haunting minor-mood ballad that borrows some chords from The Left Banke as well as the orchestrated style. Stop It Girl is a mid-tempo punk ballad with anguished vocals and Prunes-like feedback/sustain.

30 odd years on - Bill is still playing in the Peoria area; Jim is a hospital chaplain in Evanston - he still writes and records; Paul manages a group of apartments, also in Evanston; and Ron operates a website design business with his wife in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Compilation appearances include: Stop It Girl and Take It On Home on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD); and Stop It Girl on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW/MM/RM)

Thee Wylde Main-iacs (ME)

45:	Not The One For Me/Why Ain't Love Fair?	(Main-iac 001/2) 1966

These Bangor, Maine garage-punkers put out the above single on their own label. The combo featured the brothers Wylde from Bangor, Maine; thus the ingenious band name. There's a strong rumour that this is a joke on Nugget-diggers by the ubiquitous Erik Lindgren and cohorts, but who really cares - the music's great! Other 'fake obscurities' attributed to his fertile creativity include The Katz Kradle and Huntsmen releases on the Shur Shot label.

Compilation appearances have included: Why (Ain't Love Fair) on The Chosen Few, Vol. 1 (LP), Gone, Vol. 2 (LP), Garagelands, Vol. 2 (LP), The Arf! Arf! Blitzkrieg 32 Track Sampler (2-CD), Chosen Few Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Garagelands, Vol. 1 & 2 (CD); and Not The One For Me on Vile Vinyl, Vol. 1 (LP) and Vile Vinyl (CD). (MW)

NB: α as The Original Playboys, β as R. Sayre & The Vacant Lot.

In 1966 the WONE-sponsored three-day 'Battle Of The Bands' highlighted Dayton, Ohio's local talent. Roger Sayre's Walk Slowly Away appeared on the resultant album WONE, The Dayton Scene (Prism PR-1966) and is one of the more accomplished cuts, a fine Merseybeat ballad with a Searchers sound. Unlike most of the 12 acts highlighted, The X-cellents already had a track record although this cut never made it onto a single; thankfully it is accessible via the Oil Stains (LP) compilation.

Initially known as The Original Playboys (line-up 'A'), their debut was picked up by Smash for national distribution. By the follow-up they'd become The X-cellents. Both sides of the penultimate release are noteworthy - Hang It Up! is a strong frat-rocker, Little Wooden House is a stompin' garage-beater. Another name change saw their final release credited to R. Sayre & The Vacant Lot.

Other compilation appearances have included: Little Wooden House on 60's Punk EP Vol. 4 (7"), Boulders Punk EP (4x7"Box), and Sixties Rebellion 16 (LP/CD); Hang It Up! on Victims Of Circumstances (LP) and Party Party Party (CD); and This Little Feelin' on Wake The Neighbours (LP). This Albuquerque, New Mexico band's original line-up was Sioux Indians and had evolved out of Lincoln St. Exit. Indeed the original line-up was the same as Lincoln St. Exit. The early albums expounded the cause of the American Indian and promo copies of the band's first single explained the band's name as meaning the "Crossing of Indian Tribes". Of most interest to readers will be Entrance which compiles material from the band's early days. This includes Sunday Dream, a superb slice of psychedelia, which they had originally recorded as Lincoln St. Exit; Forever Or Not At All, a haunting psychedelic ballad; Orange Benevolence, a delightful acid ballad and several examples of L.A.-style sunshine pop in the style of Orange Colored Sky (Half A Man, Open Doorway, and She's Upon Her Way). St Louis Mama shows their bluesy side, Soulful Drifter is a slice of more rural-rock and Mississippi Riverboat Gamblin' Man blends country and rock'n'roll. This album is certainly recommended.

This Iowa group started out in high school as a dance band called The Swinging Shepherds, later changing their name to The XLs. Dirty Water (LP) includes their catchy Bob Guy number I Need A Ride and an unreleased song about teenage sex on the beach, Summer Love In The Sand, a rather commercial song which won them a 'Battle Of The Bands' against lots of stiff composition, but was rejected for release by quite a few record companies. Larry Barrett (previously of The Countdowns and Uncle And The Anteaters) was a later member of the band. When Guy and Heinrich were drafted, McClean and Thede changed their name to Fire And Ice. (VJ)

Based in St. Louis, Missouri this band's superb Yardbirds-influenced guitar work probably explains why their sole single has received extensive compilation coverage. Substitute, is a fine cover of The Who's classic hit which has some great fuzz guitar work. The flip, Facts Of Life is an awesome psych-punk original.

Compilation appearances have included: The Facts Of Life on Mayhem & Psychosis, Vol. 3 (LP), Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 3 (LP & CD), Relics, Vol. 1 (LP), Relics, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD) and Shadows Falling (CD); Substitute and Facts Of Life on A Journey To Tyme, Vol. 3 (LP); and Substitute on Garage Zone, Vol. 2 (LP) and The Garage Zone Box Set (4-LP). YA HO WA 13 - I'm Gonna Take You Home LP.

The Operetta (2-LP) (Swordfish YHVH 003CD) 2007 is a gatefold album taken from recently found master tapes and further evidence of their improvisational West Coast sound. The album is credited to Ya Ho Wha & The Band 'Ya Ho Wha 13'.

45: It's A Knack/Angel Boy (Higherkey 4503) 197?

All the above albums which are variously credited to Ya Ho Wha 13, Ya Ho Wa 13, Ya Ho Wha, Ya Ho Wa and Father Yod And The Spirit Of '76, are extremely rare and musically very weird. Those known to the author are largely mellow, mystical and probably drug-induced.

The man behind the project Jim Baker (Father Yod) was one of the founders of the beatnik movement and ran a shop on the Sunset Strip in L. A. In 1967 he formed a commune called The Source Family that promoted free love, peace and vegetarianism etc and adopted the name Ya Ho Wha whilst his followers also adopted names like Electricity and Sunflower and the like.

Kohoutek features Father Yod singing, ranting and growling their unique brand of acid-rock to mainly keyboard accompaniment with the occasional female backing vocal. He can't sing in tune - I've no idea what the lyrics allude to but God gets some mentions so I assume they are religious. Side two starts with strange chanting and towards the end the lyrics are spoken. The album has no track titles either on the cover, labels or inner sleeve.

Contraction and Expansion are among the more creative and inventive efforts. Contraction relies mostly on guitar and is mellow with organ, flute and lyrics that rant about Jesus in places. Side two has more singing to minimalist backing. Expansion relies more on keyboards with some haunting female backing vocals and long instrumental passages with some intense piano and wild, hypnotic chanting in places. Side two is quite pleasant at the beginning with lots of flute but becomes increasingly more bizarre. All Or Nothing At All is folky, singer/songwriter material with acoustic guitar and piano. Ya Ho Wa 13 is a 'way-out' song-oriented album with Yod on vocals.

Presents Savage Sons Of Ya Ho Wa is relatively accessible compared to the other albums with audible lyrics. From the opening cut Edge Of A Dream onwards it is relatively melodic. On Fire In The Sky the vocalist sounds like Captain Beefheart. A Thousand Sighs has a lovely melodic guitar intro and on Red River Valley the vocalist (sounding eerily like Neil Young) delivers one of his better vocal performances. The final cut Oh Ya Ho Wa is a jam with lots of harmonica.

Penetration is one of their more popular items and musically one of their best with some fierce acid-fuzz guitar. It's comprised of four, mostly instrumental long songs.

YA HO WA - To The Principles For The Children LP.

YA HO WA 13 - Golden Sunrise CD.

I'm Gonna Take You Home is also good (though not as good as Penetration). To The Principles, For The Children has a spoken word intro from Yod but overall is mellower than previous efforts.

Yo Ho Wa (Father Yod) died in 1975 following a hang-gliding accident and the band largely disintegrated after this.

Golden Sunrise was originally issued on an eight-track cartridge. The Psycho pressing was limited to 300 - most on coloured vinyl. This album contains some of their best music on tracks like Time Travel, a spacey instrumental, Voyage, which opens with strange chants that give way to a percussion-dominated instrumental and Across The Prairie, one of the more commercial tracks on the album. Nonetheless, its musical appeal is still likely to be quite narrow. The two-disc set Yod Ship Suite, issued in individual plain white sleeves, features former Seeds leader Sky Saxon on vocals. It's reputedly not one of the group's best efforts, though certainly one of the rarest.

This was very much a band for collectors of rare psychedelia with plentiful funds. Some of these albums have undergone limited repressings and in 2000 a deluxe CD box set appeared on the Japanese Captain Trips label collecting almost all of their recordings together with a booklet.

In 2007, the surviving members of Ya Ho Wha 13 (Sunflower, Octavius and Djin), reformed and played several gigs in Los Angeles and San Francisco. The following year they toured the States and Europe. (VJ)

45: Run For Your Life/Please Come Back (Ruff 1016) 1966

The Y'Alls came out of Amarillo in Texas with this reworking of a Beatles song, which had some effective lead guitar. The flip, is a fuzz-pop Stark-Creamer composition. In 1967 Stark and Creamer relocated to southern California and were re-named The Kitchen Cinq, recording for Lee Hazlewood's LHI label.

ALBUM: 1(A) UP FROM THE SEWERS (Manhole #1) 1971 R2

NB: (1) Three different covers exist for the album. All are R2. The first was a hand drawn sleeve by Berkman, only a handful of these were made The second had a silkscreened "fist" design on the front, while the back had a large paste-on slick with song titles; the glue failed on most of these so it is often found inside the cover and listed as an "insert", though it's got dried glue residue on the back of it! The third cover had a silkscreened "rose" design on the front and again a rear slick that usually came off. All three covers contain the same vinyl pressing. The first two were marketed in 1971, the third may have come out a little later.

A Chicago act was responsible for this underground album - sometimes referred to as Euphoria Blimp Works Presents Yama And The Karma Dusters Up From The Sewers, although Euphoria Blimp Works and Yama and The Karma Dusters were interchangeable names for the group.

It's an excellent album of varied musical styles; it includes high energy rockers (Revolution (not The Beatles song), CTA and the excellent Evolution, with its environmentally conscious lyrics). There are also folk-rockers (Don't Kill The Babies and Like To Make It Back To Puerto Rico) and folk-ballads (I Want To Talk To You and Reflections), whilst Chicago blues get a nod and a wink on Kathleen. A strong Dylan influence is evident at times, particularly on Snow Bitch and some great honky-tonk piano on Wouldn't It Be Funny. This is a recommended album.

Berkman and Pollack had earlier played with The Knaves, a sixties folk-punk outfit, also from Chicago. (VJ/CF)

	Sanctuary/Live And Let Live	(Dot 17155) 1968
	Mucky Truckee River/ Reflections Of A Shattered Mind	(Dot 17213) 1969

This group formed at Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, California. Their album is a delightful potpourri of West Coast-sounding flower-power and psychedelia with lots of fuzz guitar. It is very much in the Jefferson Airplane/The Mamas & The Papas vein with some good female vocals on some tracks and superb Vox organ throughout. Another notable feature of the album, which is recommended, is the beautiful male/female layered harmonies. There are some superb cover versions of Donovan's Catch The Wind, Dylan's The Times, They Are A-Changin' and Dino Valenti's Let's Get Together, which are every bit as good as the originals, interspersed with some excellent self-penned material like Follow Your Dream's Way and Johann Sebastian Cheetah.

Three tracks on the album, City Sidewalks, Sanctuary and Good Old Friends were written by Carter-Gilbert (John and Tim), the creative source behind Denver's Rainy Daze, and curiously, these were also recorded by Hardwater, in the same year.

Compilation appearances include: Follow Your Dreams Way on Psychosis From The 13th Dimension (CD); Reflections Of A Shattered Mind on The Electric Coffee House (CD); and City Sidewalks on Who Needs Tomorrow? (CD). (VJ/MW)

This Florence, Alabama outfit was originally called the Sandpipers, until they heard about another band of the same name. Both singles were recorded at Quin Ivy's studio in Muscle Shoals, thanks to one band member who knew David Hood, the famous MS bassist.

Rechristened The Yardleys, the band toured and performed in Arkansas (at The Grove in Hot Springs, and at the first Toys For Tots in Little Rock), leading to claims that they were from there. Years later this led to The Light Won't Shine appearing on the Arkansas compilation Lost Souls Volume 1 (CD), as well as Quagmire Vol. 2 (CD). Your Love is also on Psychedelic States: Alabama Vol.1 (CD). Produced by a very young looking Rupert Holmes, this album sounds very 1969 - brassy and seriously soulful Blood Sweat and Tears rock-pop. From Florida and New York City the band covers Midnight Hour and does a fuzz-heavy rendition of Get Ready, but even the odd burst of heavyish guitar can't save this anonymous sextet from being given the thumbs-down. NB: There was also a French 45 The Yellow Balloon/Noollab Wolley (PS) (Stateside FSS 101) 1968, the 'B' side being the 'A' side played backwards ("Yellow Balloon" = "Noollab Wolley").

This was rather an interesting project. Don Grady (whose real name was Don Agrati) had previously been the popular star of U.S. TV show 'My Three Sons' as well as working with a folk-rock outfit called The Palace Guard. He teamed up with a young L.A. producer/songwriter called Gary Zekley, who'd previously finished working with Jan and Dean on an album, working under the name of Yellow Balloon. The album consisted of various outtakes from the Jan and Dean sessions, new work with session musicians and some work by the new band Grady hastily assembled for live appearances when one of the outtakes from the Jan and Dean sessions, the bright'n'breezy pop tune Yellow Balloon, climbed to No. 25 in the National Charts. Had it been released on a major label it would probably have been a bigger hit.

For the live band, Frosty Green and Don Braught were duly recruited from Oregon's Rising Sons and Salem's Breakaways respectively, whilst Alex Valdez and Paul Canella had previously been in Tucson's Five Of Us. These disparate musicians were brought together by Grady, who'd noted the names of accomplished players whilst travelling the country doing telethons and on tour, with his Windupwatchband. (He'd previously toured on the back of his solo Canterbury single The Children Of St. Monica, which had been a modest hit in the Pacific Northwest. Incidentally his Windupwatchband featured Gil Rogers and Darryl Dragon (later with Bob Smith and Captain and Tennille).

After the Yellow Balloon dissolved, Green, Braught, Valdez and Canella continued to play together as The Popcorn Explosion. Don Grady continued to record well into the seventies under his real name Don Agrati.

The album has become a minor collectors' item, however Sundazed's 20-track retrospective CD comprises the entire album plus Noollab Wolley, 45/demo/alternate versions, the two Don Grady singles (one with the Windupwatchband), and an interview with Gary Zekley. With a hefty booklet fully detailing the band's history put together by Domenic Priore, it's a fine tribute not just to the band but to the visionary behind them - Gary Zekley (aka Yodar Critch) who passed away in 1996.

Yellow Balloon also appears on Nuggets, Vol. 4: Pop Part 2 (LP) and on Where The Action Is! L.A.1965-68 (4-CD book). (VJ/SR/MW)

45:	Down To The Wire/ God Knows I Love You	(Capitol 2957) 1970	120

Recorded in Los Angeles and produced by Dallas Smith (Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Hour Glass, Canned Heat), Yellow Hand's album can be considered as an extra Buffalo Springfield album, as it contains four Steve Stills songs (Neighbor Don't You Worry, We'll See, Come On and Hello, I've Returned) and two Neil Young tunes (Down To The Wire and Sell Out), although now only Hello, I've Returned remains unreleased by Stills and Young. The remaining tracks are three Jerry Tawney songs and a cover of Delaney Bramlett and Mac Davis' God Knows I Love You.

Unfortunately, the musicians are not as good as Buffalo Springfield and the album is more a curiosity than a collector's piece, although Pat Flynn's guitar is interesting. The liner notes claim that "their sounds are not of rock and not of acid and not of country and western but are the sounds of the beat and the pulse and the throb of the how and why of being".

Jerry Tawney was involved in numerous other groups including The Portraits (on Sidewalk). Pat Flynn later became an in demand session musician.

NB: α were written by Bernie Schwartz.

This band was formed in Torrance, California near Los Angeles, by Dan Hortter in early 1966. Originally known as The Driftones, they changed name to the more hip Yellow Payges later that year, when they signed a contract with Gary Bookasta, the owner of The Hullabaloo club.

In 1967, they signed to Uni and in the summer went on their first tour joining Dick Clark's Caravan Of Stars - a tour package that took in 45 cities in as many days. For the tour Mike Rummans replaced Bob Norsoff on lead guitar and Teddy Rooney (Mickey Rooney's son from Martha Vickers) replaced Herb Ratzloff on bass.

In the summer of 1968 Mike Rummans and Teddy Rooney left the group, and in came Bob Barnes (ex-Elite/Those Guys) and Bill Ham (Rocks/The Nomads). Dan Hortter recalls: "I hooked up with Bob Barnes through an acquaintance of mine and Bob told me about Bill Ham. We were desperate because we had a concert to do at the Hollywood Bowl on August 16th, 1968 with the Animals, The Rascals and Tommy James and The Shondells. We flew Bill Ham from Fort Worth, Texas out two weeks prior to the Bowl concert and the rest was history. We were the house band at the Hullabaloo club (which later became the Kaleidoscope and then the Aquarius Theater) on Sunset and Vine from 1967 through to 1969."

THE YELLOW PAYGES
Volume 1

THE YELLOW PAYGES - Volume 1 LP.

Although major chart success eluded The Yellow Payges they were quite a successful band issuing a string of singles displaying a variety of musical styles. The beauty of the slow numbers like Moonfire and Never Put Away My Love For You contrasts with hard-rock cuts like Crowd Pleaser, Devil Woman and the rock'n'roller, Boogie Woogie Baby.

There were rumours of a second album but it never emerged. With 16 non-album tracks mainly on Uni singles it certainly could have happened. As it was, The Yellow Payges disbanded in 1970 having failed to make the big time. Don: "Our demise came when we signed a multi-million dollar contract with AT&T to do an ad campaign for the Yellow Pages (BIG MISTAKE). I went on to do some solo recordings with Buddah Records. Neil Bogart-President of Buddah at the time was a close friend of the group and gave me a shot. Unfortunately things didn't work out very well."

Bob Barnes became Roscoe West and played with Kinky Friedman for three years, worked a great deal with T-Bone Burnett, The Alpha Band, Guam-Rolling Thunder Revue. There were two Bill Hams in Texas, Yellow Payges' Bill Ham and the Austin producer. Bill Ham wasn't with Kinky Friedman, although he may have sat in a couple of times.

As for the other members of the band, Dacus went on to The Steve Stills Band and later to a long-term slot in the top band Chicago, where he replaced Terry Kath who had shot himself while playing Russian roulette! Gorman later played with Bandit, a mid-seventies heavy rock outfit.

You can also hear Jezebel and Never See The Good In Me, the top sides of their two Showplace singles, on Mindrocker, Vol. 11 (LP); Our Time Is Running Out on Where The Action Is! L.A. 1965-68 (4-CD book); and I'm A Man on White Lace & Strange (CD). (VJ/RBc/DHr/RWt)

Ashes Have Turned (Dunhill 4042) 1966
α I Can Live Without You/Garden Of Imagining (Dunhill 4061) 1967

NB: α shown as by Jerry Yester.

First known as a member of the Modern Folk Quartet, Jerry Yester cut two folk-pop singles in 1966 and 1967. When the MFQ broke up, he replaced Zalman Yanovsky in The Lovin' Spoonful.

After the Spoonful's demise in 1969, Yester made the above album with his wife, Judy Henske, a traditional folk singer with a long recording career in her own right. The album, which was released on Frank Zappa's label, is excellent and worthy of acclaim. Ry Cooder and David Lindley also probably play on it. Subsequently Yester and Henske formed a band called Rosebud with Craig Doerge, David Vaught and John Seiter, cutting an album of the same name in 1971.

A multi-talented figure, Yester is also known as the producer and engineer of several California groups and singers: including The Association (who included his brother Jim), The Turtles, Tim Buckley, Tom Waits, Rainbow Red Oxidiser, etc.

Ashes Have Turned and I Can Live Without You have been compiled on Penny Arcade, Dunhill Folk Rock Vol. 2. (LP). (VJ/SR/MW)

There's also a 2-CD set: The History Of Connecticut Garage Bands In The 60's (Collectables COL-CD-8825) 1995, which contains one CD by North Atlantic Invasion Force and one by Yesterday's Children.

45s: To Be Or Not To Be/Baby I Want You (Parrot 314) 1966
What Of I/Evil Woman (Map City 304) 1970

From the Cheshire and Prospect areas of Connecticut, these guys started out playing classic garage fuzz-punk as demonstrated by To Be Or Not To Be. They'd progress to a hard-rock style, of which the album is a good example and worth searching out. There are some strong originals on the album and fine covers of Spooky Tooth's Evil Woman and Wilkinson Tricycle's What Of I.

YESTERDAY'S CHILDREN - Self Titled LP.

There's also a French EP on Disc AZ 1101 that features the Parrot single tracks plus Love And Things and Dance All Night, so perhaps there's another U.S. single.

The 2-CD retrospective on Collectables comprises one CD by the North Atlantic Invasion Force and one by Yesterday's Children. This contains the complete album, early/demo versions of the Parrot singles and several unreleased cuts from 1966 including the couple on that French EP.

Compilation appearances have included: To Be Or Not To Be on Psychedelic Unknowns, Vol. 2 (2 x 7"); Love And Things and Gloria on Green Crystal Ties, Vol. 3 (CD); Love And Things on It's A Hard Life (LP) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD); A Well Respected Man and Anyway You Want It on I Wanna Come Back From The World Of LSD (CD); Providence Bummer on Up All Night (CD); and Love And Things, To Be Or Not To Be (two versions), Gloria, Dance All Night (two versions), Baby, I Want You, Laugh At Me, Paranoia, Sad Born Loser, What If I, She's Easy, Sailing, Providence Bummer, Evil Woman and Hunter's Moon on The History Of Connecticut Garage Bands In The 60's 1 (CD). Little is known about this Minneapolis, Minnesota outfit that made up only one side of this very rare album. The other side features a folk group and just 150 copies were pressed. Three tracks from Yetti-Men's side of the album - Break Time, High Himalayas and My Baby Left Me - later got a second airing on Hipsville, Vol. 3 (LP). Yetti-Men play a mix of garage and surf.

Portage, Indiana was home to this band that formed in 1973 and recorded their raw, wild debut album at a professional studio in Chicago in 1975. While the band obviously had great talent and progressive rock was their medium, the record has a garage quality to it, an infectious energy that is missing from so much music of the genre. The tracks are long with elaborate arrangements, but the virtuosity is implied rather than displayed and the album therefore avoids the usual progressive rock pitfalls. The record has an amazing sleeve and label design as well, and is recommended. A follow-up recording in 1976 (finally issued in 1989) was more refined and much of the excitement of the debut had been lost. The group recorded into the eighties using the name Crafty Hands. (CF)

JOHN YLVISAKER - A Love Song LP.

One of the really interesting and worthwhile Christian psychedelic artists, John Ylvisaker and his wife Amanda were apparently some kind of travelling Christian preachers and their albums were sold during their celebrations. He was born in Moorhead, Minnesota and is a graduate of Concordia College located there. Although sometimes patchy, their music contains some excellent jangly folk psychedelic tracks with electric guitar and organ and enthusiastic vocals.

Don't Cut The Baby In Half was recorded live at a seminary gathering and includes version of songs that later appeared on the Avant Garde albums. Cool Livin' is a thoughtful and intelligent early Christian rock album. Noise Of Solemn Assemblies and Palm Sunday are stand-out folk-psych tracks on A Love Song. Recorded At A Housewarming For Fritzie is a more relaxed folk and folk-blues offering on which he is accompanied by guitarist David Blakeley.

An exact discography is difficult to establish with certainty, as some albums were shared with other Christian singers, not necessarily rock or folk-rock. He also contributed several acoustic tracks to the (3-LP) set, Happening At The Gathering in 1968.

A Gay Cliché and Wade In The Water (with Dick Hyman) made it onto Resurrection - The Amplified Bible (CD). (SR/PL/VJ/MW)

45:	Micro-Miniature Love/ Kill The Enemy (PS)	(Get Hip GHAS-13)1996

From the Minneapolis area, Michael Yonkers first came to our attention on the Dove retrospective Free Flight (2-LP & CD). The featured tracks, Micro-Miniature Love and Kill The Enemy, sound ahead of their time, with a repetitive rockabilly beat, psychotic vocal delivery and unnerving lyrics. The guitar work is similarly unhinged, particularly in its use of effects and unusual pitch.

Both were recorded at Dove studios in the fall of '68, for the Candy Floss label, but were not released at the time and the band split soon after.

GOODBY SUNBALL
MICHAEL YONKERS

MICHAEL YONKERS - Goodbye Sunball LP.

Yonkers' story goes back to the early sixties and the surf-inspired Pharoahs. Like many bands they progressed onto frat-garage and as Michael and The Mumbles recorded an album's worth of pre-fuzz material.

Life apparently changed for Yonkers when he heard Paul Butterfield's Over Yonder's Wall. Inspired to cut loose with a higher energy and more chaotic sound, he sliced up his amp speaker to get a more distorted sound.

By the fall of '68, the band had slimed down to a trio and went in to record an album, originally intended for release on Candy Floss. The result, Microminiature Love wasn't what the label wanted, and owner Steinberg arranged for a deal with Sire. Contracts weren't signed; however, as none of the band was willing relocate to New York City. Disheartened, they broke up shortly thereafter.

Yonkers continued to record, with the occasional help of Jim Woehrle. These solo recordings were primarily of a folk nature, but drastically bent with phasing, electronic sounds and odd structures. He also played occasionally at venues like Dania Hall and the Extemp coffeehouse, sometimes alongside The Paisleys.

Disaster struck in 1971, however, when Yonkers broke his back in an industrial accident. Major surgery followed, along with a seven year court battle for compensation.

In the spring of 1974, Yonkers began to compile some of the recordings that he had done since the break up of The Michael Yonkers Band. These tapes would become four separate self-released albums that have become cult items, despite no distribution.

Michael Yonkers has never quit recording, but has only released one further album. The blatantly Christian Thy Will Be Done, which was released as an edition of 50 copies, with handmade covers. This was recorded while Yonks sat on the can, for that great bathroom sound and most copies were given to 'attendees' of a gig at a retirement home.

In 2002, the 1968 Dove recordings were finally released as Microminiature Love, complete with extensive liner notes. The primitive release is full of zonked guitar work and some extremely weird songwriting. Yonkers was encouraged to record again, and It's Only Yonkers followed in 2004. (IT/CSn)

The Yorkshire Puddin (NJ)

45s:	Good Night Day/ Ain't Gonna Love Ya No More	(Dellwood DEL 3932) 1966
	Keep Me In Mind/Black Jacket Woman	(Dellwood DEL-1) 1967

Doubtless this name was inspired by The British Invasion, though one has to wonder how many folks in Hackensack, New Jersey knew what a Yorkshire Pudding is, let alone tastes like.

This band issued two excellent singles. Good Night Day is a Stones-inspired number with snotty vocals and harmonica; the flip is more poppy with piping pre-adolescent vocals delivering a message probably beyond their experience. Keep Me In Mind is more mature; up-tempo pop-punk with several intense fuzz outbursts. The flip is a cover of the sentimental folk-rock ballad also done by The Tropics.

Compilation appearances include: Good Night Day on Let's Dig 'Em Up, Vol. 1 (LP) and Let's Die 'Em Up (CD); Ain't Gonna Love Ya No More on Bad Vibrations, Vol. 3 (LP) and Trip In Tyme Volume 3 (CD); and Keep Me In Mind on Wake The Neighbours! (LP) and Die Today (CD). (MW)

	α	Hey Hey Hey/I Go Crazy	(Punch H-1007) 1966

NB: α was not released.

Originally from Birmingham, Michigan this band was part of the legendary Hideout club scene which started around 1965 and revolved around the Fugitives, Lourds, Four Of Us, Underdogs, Pleasure Seekers and Henchmen. The club was run by Dave Leone and Ed "Punch" Andrews; it would spawn the equally famous Hideout label, run by the latter.

The band's personnel is sketchy but it is believed that Gary Q. joined this band for a while from neighbourhood rivals The Fugitives, before leaving to form a new Fugitives.

And You're Mine, is a decent enough punk effort. The second single on the Hideout subsidiary Punch never appeared although both cuts did make it onto the rare 1966 12-track sampler Best Of The Hideouts (LP). This had a limited vinyl repress in 1990 and was repackaged and expanded in 2000 on CD.

Retrospective compilation appearances have included: I Go Crazy and Hey, Hey, Hey on Best of Hideout Records (CD); and And You're Mine on Glimpses, Vol's 1 & 2 (CD), Glimpses, Vol. 1 (LP) and Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 6 (LP). (VJ/MW/DRt/MM)

PHIL YOST

PHIL YOST - Bent City LP.

These are all interesting and moody instrumental albums that really don't sound like any other. While there are elements of jazz present throughout, no knowledgeable jazz fan would call this music jazz. Yost wrote all the material and plays all the instruments. All the albums make use of phasing and reverb and some tracks feature non-verbal vocalisations. One quarter of the songs on each record are over seven-minutes long and none are under three minutes. Many would think this music was pointless noodling, but occasionally they can still be heard on local late night jazz radio stations. Phil later became an accomplished luthier, making guitars, banjos and stand-up bases. He passed away in the late nineties.

Takoma was John Fahey's label. (DMo/SR)

Take four young men, stick masks on them, make 'em sing with English accents, give 'em a 'mystery group' tag and... hey presto... enterprising Bob Gallo had manufactured a group to repel the British Invasion and from whom he could get all the credit(s). Musically it is competent Merseybeat style beat, rock, pop and ballads. They enjoyed a Top 50 hit with (Roses Are Red) My Love.

The down-side is that the accents tend to wear thin quickly, as do the 'yeahs' at the end of a large number of lines and throughout the album (plenty of falsetto 'oooos' too). Because the scarlet caped and masked lads couldn't reveal their identities and talk about their favourite things, the album notes are about "the man who made it all possible", yes it's good old Bob again, writ large across everything.

One fact behind the identity of this "group" has emerged, though not the full story: - Jackie Lomax confirmed that UK beat supremos The Undertakers recorded some of the You Know Who Group material, around the time they were doing their tracks for Bob Yorey in New York City.

Compilation appearances include: Playboy on Searching For Love (LP); and Roses Are Red has resurfaced on Incredible Sound Show Stories Vol. 1 (LP & CD). (MW/VJ/SR/JLh)

Born Perry Miller in 1944 in New York, Jesse Colin Young began his career in 1963 in the Greenwich Village folk circuit. In 1964, he recorded a folk album The Soul Of A City Boy, which was produced by Bobby Scott and contained 10 of his compositions plus Four In The Morning, a song by the future Holy Modal Rounder, Robin Remailly.

The next album Young Blood was recorded for Mercury with John Sebastian and Peter Childs and flopped, its best moments being compiled on one side of Two Trips, an album published by Mercury in 1970 to cash on the Youngbloods' success, the group formed by Young in 1966.

At the end of the Youngbloods, Jesse Colin Young released Together, with Jerry Corbitt, Scott Lawrence, Jeffrey Myer, Earthquake Anderson, Pete Childs and the excellent guitarist Eddy Ottenstein (who also played with Jeffrey Cain). John Wilmeth and Ron Stallings of Southern Comfort also played horns on one track. The album is recommended to Youngbloods' fans, with its mix of covers: Nick Gravenites' Born In Chicago, the bluesy Six Days On The Road, Chuck Berry's Sweet Little Sixteen and five excellent original and sunny tracks including Good Times, Lovely Day and Peace Song.

Jesse Colin Young kept on recording for Warner Bros. in the seventies and his albums before 1975 are in the same mould. Songbird included re-recordings of old Youngbloods' songs, Sugar Babe and Josianne. After several albums of mixed interest, he returned to form in 1987 with The Highway Is For Heroes. See the discography for details of some compilations. NB: α as by Jeff Cain And The Youngbloods. β Quicksand features a different mix to the Elephant Mountain album version. There was also an Italian single, sung in Italian: Qualcuno Mi Dir/Qui Con Noi, Tra Di Noi (aka Get Together) (RCA Victor N 1587) 1968.

Sounding similar to The Lovin' Spoonful, The Youngbloods were originally from New York City. Indeed Jesse Colin Young (real name Perry Miller) recorded the second of two earlier albums, entitled Youngblood, in a group which actually featured John Sebastian (hrmnca) along with Pete Childs (dobro). It flopped, and he formed a duo with Jerry Corbitt, a folk singer from Georgia who'd got a good reputation on the Boston folk-circuit. Bauer and Levinger were then drafted in for the group's early recordings which their record company, Mercury, subsequently issued as the Two Trips album.

Billed as Jesse Colin Young And The Youngbloods, their first two albums for RCA were made in New York and produced by Felix Pappalardi, but failed to establish the group. They headed west for San Francisco, attracted by the lure of its musical explosion. There they issued Elephant Mountain which was a vast improvement on their earlier material and also had a hit with hippie anthem Get Together in the summer of 1967. However, during the recording of their album, which peaked at No. 118 in the U.S. Album Charts, Jerry Corbitt left the band. This reduced the band to a three-some, although Mike Kane was added later in 1972. Elephant Mountain, produced by Charlie Daniels, contained a wealth of diverse material. The opening track Darkness, Darkness has a beautiful string introduction and a ringing guitar solo. There is a jazzy feel to On The Sir Francis Drake and Trillium with Banana's fresh guitar and piano playing well to the fore and a wealth of country-folk material such as Sunshine, Beautiful, Smug and Ride The Wind, as well as the jug band-like Rain Song.

After Corbitt's departure they signed a new contract with Warner Bros. who granted them their own 'Raccoon' label and issued Rock Festival and Ride The Wind - two live recordings, the latter also produced by Charlie Daniels. They made No's 80 and 157 respectively in the U.S. Album Charts. The band now reached their zenith. Ride The Wind gives a good indication of the band at its best. Apart from the title track the album contained gorgeous versions of Sunlight, Get Together and Beautiful. Rock Festival is a much rockier album including more up-tempo efforts like Faster All The Time and Peepin' n Hidin' alongside their more typical laid-back efforts like It's A Lovely Day, Josephine and Misty Roses. Fiddler A Dram and Interlude find the group sounding very similar to Kaleidoscope. The album concludes with Ice Bag - an experimental jam which suited the psychedelic influences of the times.

Meanwhile RCA released a double compilation containing the best of the material the band had recorded for them. This reached No. 144 in the U.S. Album Charts.

Next they added Michael Kane, who had earlier played alongside Levinger in Trolls, and recorded two further albums of old rock-n-roll classics (Good'n'Dusty and High On A Ridgetop). They met with less commercial success than their predecessors achieving only the 160 and 185 spots respectively in the U.S. Album Charts. Their eventual demise at the end of 1971 marked the passing of one of the West Coast's best-loved bands. However, Jesse Colin Young continued to record, releasing a series of excellent solo albums in the mould of Elephant Mountain.

Jerry Corbitt went on to record two solo albums Corbitt (Polydor) 1970 and Jerry Corbitt (Capitol) 1971 before moving into production work (including a number of Top 10 hits) for artists like Don McLean and Charlie Daniels. He also figured on most of Jesse Colin Young's solo albums. Levinger, Bauer and Kane were part of a group called Noggins in 1972, but only one album Crab Tunes resulted. Bauer died of a brain tumour in 1983.

The Youngbloods reformed in 1984 for a tour with a line-up of Young, Corbitt, Levinger, with Scott Lawrence (keyb'ds, woodwind) and David Perper (formerly of Pablo Cruise) on drums. By early 1985 they had disbanded again. See the discography for details of their compilations.

Compilation coverage has so far included: Sugar Babe on the Zabriskie Point (LP) soundtrack; both Act Naturally and Hippie From Olema on the Medicine Ball Caravan (LP) soundtrack; and their classic hippie anthem Get Together can also be found on Love Is The Song We Sing (4-CD book). 45: Go Away/This Feeling In My Heart (Wendy W-101-1/2) 1967

This band emerged from Statesboro and Sylvania, Georgia in 1966 and lasted until 1969. Kaney was in high school; the others were enrolled at Georgia Southern College. Steve Chester adds "I played lead guitar through a Vox Super Beatle. My guitars were a Gretsch Country Gentleman, 1951 Fender Telecaster and Epiphone 12 String".

Their sole release was recorded in Atlanta. Go Away has been recalled on Psychedelic States: Georgia (CD) and Brain Shadows (CD). The verses are redolent of the Castaways' Liar Liar, however it's the warbling backwards sections that add an unusual facet and sheen to this moody nugget.

Steve Chester recalls it well: - "I wrote the song and played lead guitar when it was recorded in Atlanta. Jim Youmans of the Apolloes co-produced and engineered; I also assisted with the production. None of the Apolloes played on Go Away or This Feeling in My Heart (as previously reported)".

The Younger Brothers recorded another track, Lost, which wasn't released by them but appeared on a (Swingin') Apolloes single, retitled Chained And Bound; this shimmering gem with backwards lead has resurfaced on Psychedelic Crown Jewels Vol. 3 (CD), where it is credited to Chester-Lane-Freeman. Steve Chester unravels the story - "In about 1967 Rick Freeman gave me the words to Lost. The song was never titled Chained and Bound by our group. I wrote the music and the Younger Brothers recorded the original version with Rick Freeman singing, a few months after Go Away. My lead guitar parts were recorded and reversed when the song was mixed, which gives it a very haunting melody. Jim Youmans of the Apolloes was the sound engineer. Several months later Jim asked us if he could use our music and record his voice on Lost. We agreed. The Apolloes never played on it. Also, Rick Freeman and Steve Chester wrote it, Bill Lane had no input."

"After the band stopped playing together, Bill and Dennis went to Nashville and played as studio musicians. Skip went on for his master's degree and worked for Social Security. Rick continues to be a high school principal and has his doctorate in Education. I earned my Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology and currently maintain a private practice in psychology in Statesboro, Georgia. Recently I produced and wrote 15 praise and worship songs which are on my first CD. There's no backward guitar solos, but several songs are played in an alternative tuning". (MW, with many thanks to Steve Chester)

This band hailed from Circleville, a rural-industrial town about 20 miles south of Columbus, Ohio. Paperback Minds is a typical period put-down of 'the plastic people'. It features some nice Hammond organ work and it's now accessible on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 21 (LP).

Brink, Rhoads and Simison are still in Circleville. Rhoads and Simison play in a classic rock covers band called Majic, which also includes a member of another local sixties band, the Blues Sanctum (who didn't record). (MW/DJ)

45s:	I Believe You/Bald Headed Woman	(Jade 101) 1967
	I Love You/I'm Waiting For The Lefter	(P&M 3649) 1967

This was Trenton, New Jersey's most popular band in the mid-sixties. When their first single was cut, their guitarist Eugene Patricella was still in high school but he certainly had talent and turned in a great solo on Bald Headed Woman. Apart from their originals their live act was full of lively Yardbirds, Kinks and Animals covers. After the second single they dropped the 'Young' from their title, grew their hair and their live act grew louder and overtly psychedelic. Sadly, this later stage was never captured on vinyl and when some members got drafted the band split. Eugene remained in the music business, first with a band called Dwaf and later as a solo artist. His later output has appeared on limited edition privately pressed releases. Owing something to psychedelia, jazz, rock'n'roll and the avant-garde, it defies categorisation.

Compilation appearances have included: I Believe You, I'm Waiting For The Letter, I Love You and Bald Headed Woman on Attack Of The Jersey Teens (LP); and I Believe You on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 6: I'm Down Today (LP & CD). (VJ/MW)

This short-lived outfit operated around the Fayetteville area of North Carolina and came from Lumberton. Too Much Lovin', a song about teen-sex frustration, was pretty catchy. They enjoyed considerable success and notoriety locally, winning a major 'Battle Of The Bands' encompassing both North and South Carolina in 1967, and starring in their own show on local TV. Their second single was released under the name Psychic Motion.

James Sossamon later formed The Cykle, who recorded a highly-rated album in 1969. All four of The Young Ones/Psychic Motion single sides were included as bonus tracks on Gear Fab's reissue of the Cykle album.

Compilation appearances include: Too Much Lovin' on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 1 (LP); and Harbor Melon and Big Teaser on Tobacco A-Go-Go, Vol. 2 (LP). (MW/CF/VJ)

This blue-eyed soul band is really remembered for playing a crowd-pulling brand of rock'n'roll and R&B. It came together in New York City in early 1965 when Cavaliere, Brigati and Cornish all left Joey Dee's Starlighters at the same time. They played their first gig at the Choo Choo Club in Garfield, New Jersey. Their music was soul-based, danceable and immediate and after their debut single, I Ain't Gonna Eat My Heart Out Anymore met with some initial success, the follow-up Good Lovin' made No. 1 and set them on the road to further success. They were the first white rock act to be signed by Atlantic and their music had a wide appeal to both black and white audiences. Groovin', their second No. 1 and possibly their magnum opus, marked a definite change of style. Depicting a long, ecstatic afternoon in the sun it superbly captured the vibes of the summer of 1967 and is of far more relevance to this book than what had gone before. Other notable slices of superb pop-rock were How Can I Be Sure? A Girl Like You and It's Wonderful, which made use of sound effects. After the last mentioned the 'Young' was omitted from their title and they increasingly veered towards a sort of good vibe jazzy-rock. People Got To Be Free gave them their third and final U.S. No. 1 after which they underwent a changed line-up (from 'A' to 'B') and changed labels to Columbia. Among the newcomers was Buzzy Feiten, who'd previously played with Paul Butterfield.

The new line-up cut two albums which aroused some interest but little excitement and they disbanded in 1972. Felix Cavaliere later went solo recording two critically acclaimed if commercially unsuccessful albums for Bearsville. Robert Popwell joined The Crusaders in 1976 and Cornish and Danelli fronted Bulldog and Fotomaker.

The Rascals reunited for a brief reunion tour in 1998. They were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall Of Fame on 6 May 1997. For the first time for several years, all four original members appeared together. For their "jam session" (including David Brigati who did not participate in the 1998 reunion), they performed Good Lovin', Groovin', How Can I Be Sure?, and People Got To Be Free.

In terms of compilation appearances, you'll find Come On Up on Wild Thing (LP); I Ain't Gonna Eat My Heart Out Anymore on Highs Of The Sixties (CD); It's Wonderful on Nuggets, Vol. 9 (LP); and Sattva on Journey To A Higher Key (LP).

Clearly an extremely successful act commercially, they enjoyed three No. 1 singles and three other Top 10 hits. Their Greatest Hits album topped the U.S. Album Charts. Groovin', Once Upon A Dream, Collections, The Young Rascals and Freedom Suite all made the Top 20, peaking at Nos 5, 9, 14, 15 and 17 respectively. Even their later albums made some impression on the charts. The Essentials is essentially a greatest hits collection featuring most of their finest moments. (VJ/PV/SR)

Welcome To My World (Dynamic Sound 2007) 1967

Here's a little gem from Wisconsin. The Invaders Are Coming is a song all about a guy who believes invaders from outer space are coming to take his girlfriend. It's got a lot of commercial appeal and there's some very effective organ work to create a sort of spacey sound. Give the excellent Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 10 (LP) or Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD) a spin if you want to experience this boss Badger sound... then turn to either The Madness Invasion or Vile Vinyl, Vol. 2 for The Invasion's The Invasion Is Coming - the previous incarnation of the song in a very different gutsy garage style. No spacey effects here but great raucous vocals and fuzz solo (The Invasion Is Coming/I Want To Thank You on Dynamic Sound 2004). It's a good bet that these two outfits are one and the same. (VJ)

45s: She Don't Got The Right/I Try (In 67101) 1967

An obscure outfit whose I Try also got an airing on Open Up Yer Door! Vol. 1 (LP) and Project Blue, Vol. 3 (LP). This is glorious garage grunge with some nifty pizzicato pickin' from Rochester, New York. She Don't Got The Right is also featured on Class Of '66! (LP). (VJ)

45: Sun-Burned Idol/Rustic Patterns (Sola 14) 1967

A Phoenix, Arizona band who started out as the Black Knights, were later known as Something Special, then Sir John's Men, and finally settled on Your Friends in 1967. Sun-Burned Idol has a reedy sound and folkie vibes. Rustic... is more in a folk-psych mode with trippy lyrics and energetic keyboard fingering. 45: Cryptic Subterfuge/Hello (Your Mother Entrerprises 09731) 1968

This atmospheric, psychy single has started to garner interest.

Jeff Purvin recalls: - "Your Mother was a band of five guys from Pomfret School in Connecticut . We cut about 3,000 copies of the single and sold them to our schoolmates and visiting girl schools for $1 each. This more than paid back the cost of the recording (recorded in exactly two hours) and the pressings. We recorded it at Syncron Sound Studios in Wallingford, Connecticutt, about 20 minutes north of New Haven. According to keyboard/singer Jon, its claim to fame was that it was where The Wildweeds recorded.

"Your Mother" was 100% a joke name. We thought it was hilarious that someone might ask, "So, who's playing at the dance tonight?"...and that the answer would be [with mock attitude] "Your Mother!" Of course now, this all seems ridiculous, but we had a ball ranking on people with the name.

"The title came from my thinking that the words "Cryptic" and "Subterfuge" were bitching cool. It makes no sense...but that's where the name came from. That was the 'A' side and the song that got the big applause during live gigs but it was the flip side "Hello" that got national airplay. A producer named Gary Usher heard it on the West Coast after my sister, Jill, laid it on a radio station in LA. At the ripe age of 16, I met with a Columbia Records A&R guy in New York City later that year. He was only slightly interested in the song and suggested the band "keep working on getting better", and that was that.

"Although I lived at the prep school (Pomfret) during the time Your Mother existed, my family lived in New York City. After we recorded the record, I wanted to copyright the two songs. I spent a weekend at home writing out the two songs in formal musical notation and sent them off to Washington DC. That's why the copyrights are tied to a New York City address.

"The whole thing was a blast!" (MW/GN/JP)

45: Crack In My Wall/The Raven (Coral 62501) 1966

This Brooklyn, New York City bunch managed by Barry Flickstein was unconnected to The Swingin' Yo Yo's from Memphis. Their dynamic punker Crack In My Wall was their finest moment, having quite a melodramatic vocal style.

Crack In My Wall, from October 1966, has also been compiled on Pebbles, Vol. 14 (LP), The Essential Pebbles Collection, Vol. 2 (2-CD) and Psychedelic States: New York Vol. 2 (CD); and The Raven is also on Gravel Volume 3 (CD). (VJ/MW)

From Hickory, North Carolina this hard-rock quartet displayed a strong Led Zeppelin influence. They may have also made a later album Blackbird in 1978 (R3), but we've been unable to verify this so far. (SR/VJ)

ZAKARY THAK

ZAKARY THAKS - Self Titled LP.

From Corpus Christi, Texas Zakary Thaks was one of the city's top acts between 1966-69. Originally known as The Marauders, they soon changed name to The Riptides, with a repertoire of mainly surf-style music. With British bands like the Kinks and Stones becoming more influential, in March 1966, they again changed names to The Zakary Thaks and signed to Carl Becker's J-Beck label. Chris Gerniottis was just 15 at the time whilst the other members were 17.

Bad Girl, their first single, was a strong punk song with a snappy guitar introduction. It was picked up by Mercury for national distribution but was reckoned to have sold more records in south Texas where they developed a strong following. The follow-up sold quite well locally too, getting to No. 1 in Austin and San Antonio. It was liberally endowed with guitar feedback, but the flip was a more routine bluesy number thrown together in an hour at the studio. Zakary Thaks at this time opened for most of the touring bands that played Corpus Christi, including The Byrds, Jefferson Airplane, Animals, Beach Boys, Yardbirds, and The 13th Floor Elevators.

Their third single, Please attempted to change direction with its Mersybeat pop sound while the follow-up, Mirror Of Yesterday was recorded with the Houston Symphony Orchestra on one of the first eight-track recorders. After its failure, Chris Gerniottis left the band to join Liberty Bell, but rejoined in 1969 for their final single. They broke up for a little while after the My Door single and then reformed briefly, without Pete Stinson, to record a final single which was leased to ABC, but never released by them. They played on and off until the summer of 1972, although no further singles were forthcoming.

Zakary Thaks was one of Texas' finest sixties bands and is essential for connoisseurs of psychedelia. Both the albums/CDs listed contain all their singles and either is recommended. In addition, Texas Reverberations (LP) (Texas Archive Recordings TAR-1) 1982 features live and unissued cuts by the band. Side one includes a slightly longer version of their second single Face To Face with more searing guitar work at the end; Footsteps Jam an instrumental jam and Can't You Hear Your Daddy's Footsteps, a re-mix of the single version with more intense fuzztone guitar. Of much less note is a live performance on side two taken off a 16 millimetre film that J-Beck made to get gigs for the band. Although it relies on cover versions (because club owners were more familiar with these) and the audio quality is dire, the film does show just how young these guys were and it's worth trying to find on video. The same tracks also appear on A Texas Battle Of The Bands (CD).

Other compilation coverage has so far included: Won't Come Back on Texas Psychedelic Punk, Vol. 11 (Metal Acetate #4); Bad Girl on Pebbles, Vol. 2 (LP), Nuggets Box (4-CD), Pebbles, Vol. 2 (CD), Great Pebbles (CD) and I Was A Teenage Caveman (LP); Can't You Hear Your Daddy's Footsteps on Psychedelic Crown Jewels, Vol. 1 (2-LP & CD) and Acid

Mike Taylor their road manager/songwriting contributor was formerly with The Bad Seeds. Pete Stinson later moved to California where he is a construction worker. The other members all remained in the music business. In the short-term their talented vocalist Chris Gerniottis went on to play briefly for Liberty Bell and then formed Kubla Khan. He later became a singing waiter in a dinner-theatre group called the Barnstormers along with future Hollywood actor Dennis Quaid before quitting music entirely.

Form The Habit features their first three singles, along with three unissued tracks as bonuses and an informative 1995 interview with Gerniottis.

For further reading check out an interview with Chris Gerniottis in 'Twist And Shake # 1'. (VJ/MW/LP)

NB: (1) issued in both mono (R2) and stereo. First pressings have an advertisement inside the gatefold sleeve for a mail-order FREAK MAP ("in magnificent colour - mostly black"!); this ad was removed by summer 1967 and the "maps" are rare (currently in the R3 category!). (2) issued in both mono (R1) and stereo. The cover contains an offer for a mail-order LIBRETTO (valued at R1). (3) issued with a sheet of "cut-outs" like The Beatles' Sgt. Pepper album. Beginning with this release, no stock mono Zappa albums are known to exist. There are two different pressings of this LP: first editions contain an unedited version of Let's Make The Water Turn Black with the lyric"...and I still remember mama with her apron and her pad, feeding all the boys at Ed's Cafe". The second edition (which is actually rarer, R1) has that lyric, and several others deemed offensive, removed rather crudely from the master. (4) is shown as by "Frank Zappa and The Abnuceals Emuukha Electric Symphony

(1) - (5) all exist in mono as promos (R2/3), and all the Verve albums were issued in stereo with promo labels (R1/2). (1) - (6) were issued in the UK and Europe on Verve. Many compilations of the band's material exist from around the world. Some early compilations include: Mothers Of Invention (MGM GAS 112) 1970; The Worst Of The Mothers (MGM SE 4754) 1971; Superstarshine Vol. 13: The Mothers Of Invention (Metro 2356 090) 1972; Superstarshine Vol. 26: Frank Zappa (Metro 2356 098) 1973; and Frank Zappa & Mothers Of Invention (Reprise D 116/0) 1974. From Germany, Transparency (Verve 2352 057) 1968 (reissued in 1975) is probably the earliest and includes both sides of their (non-LP) fourth U.S. single. Other Germany-only compilations include Pregnant and Mother's Day, both on Metro Records with great sleeves. In the eighties, Zappa reissued his early catalogue on vinyl via a series of mail-order only box sets. The Old Masters Box One, for example contained Freak Out!, Absolutely Free, We're Only In It For The Money, Lumpy Gravy, Cruisin With Ruben And The Jets and a "Mystery Disc" containing previously unreleased and/or rare tracks (Barking Pumpkin Records BPR-7777) 1985 (R3). Subsequent box sets reissued all the Bizarre/Reprise material in similar fashion. All the releases came with colour booklets. In the nineties, Ryko issued Zappa's catalogue on CD, and also released The Lost Episodes (30 unreleased tracks from 1958 to 1992), Strictly Commercial: The Best Of Frank Zappa (Rykodisc RCD 40500) 1995 (which was later reissued, VideoArts Music VACK 1336/37, 2008), Everything Is Healing Nicely (outtakes from the Yellow Shark sessions), and Läther (Rykodisc RCD 10574/76) 1996 (3-CD set with previously unreleased recordings from 1977). The Lumpy Money Project/Object (3-CD) (Zappa Records ZR 20008) 2009 gives another airing to We're Only In It For The Money (in original mono and a doctored mid-eighties reincarnation) and Lumpy Gravy both supplemented with lots of extras.

One of America's most outrageous and controversial rock stars, Zappa was born in Baltimore, Maryland on 21st December 1940. His family were of Sicilian-Greek background. His father worked in various Army and Government jobs. In 1950, they moved to the West Coast (San Diego) and by 1953 Frank's parents had bought him a drum kit and he was composing written music. The following year Frank was drumming in a R&B band, The Ramblers. 1955 saw his family move to Lancaster, California and one of Frank's schoolmates was Don Van Vliet. What a combination! Frank, by now having discarded the drums, played guitar with Vliet in the 1956 outfit The Blackouts.

In 1959 his family moved on to Claremont, California and Frank branched out on his own, taking a flat in Los Angeles. He played in a 'cocktail' San Bernardino band, Perrino and The Mellotones and wrote the score to 'Run Home Slow', a low-priced Western, which flopped when released. He married Kay, though it was a short-lived venture, and played in other local groups, The Boogie Men (1960) and The Masters (1961). In 1961 he also wrote the soundtrack to another B-movie, 'The World's Greatest Sinner'.

An important turning point in his career came when he started working with the consummate engineer Paul Buff in his recording studio in Cucamonga. Zappa eventually bought Buff out with money from the royalties from 'Run Home Slow', which did better when it was re-released in 1963, and renaming the studio 'Studio Z', produced and/or wrote a string of singles which are now sought-after by Zappa collectors but not directly relevant to this book. Some of the singles appear on the 1983 Rhino Rare Meat EP. The episode ended in late 1964 when Zappa was framed by the vice squad into making a cheap porn movie and he quit Cucamonga to return to L.A. There he played in another white R&B band, The Soul Giants and sometimes with Captain Glasspack and His Mufflers before forming The Mothers Of Invention out of the ashes of the former. They attracted the attention of Herb Cohen, who became their manager and them signed to Verve.

The Mothers were always controversial. As they set to work on their debut album, one of the first songs they recorded was Who Are The Brain Police? This album was innovative, weird and widely advertised in the underground press. It sold well. It was issued as a double album in the U.S. and an edited single album in the UK and Europe.

Their second album met with wider acclaim. The band was by now regarded by many as being in a class by themselves. Musically, they were difficult to categorise. Some of it was psychedelic (without the drugs - Zappa was strongly opposed to drugs), much was satirical and full of social comment on themes such as the hypocrisies of the middle class white American way of life. Other music, particularly the Ruben And The Jets album, was a spoof on the doo-wop music and associated lifestyle of Zappa's youth.

The Ruben album may be of less interest to readers, but all of the other Verve albums are well worth investigation. They contained some excellent songs like Wowie Zowie, America Drinks Up And Goes Home, Status Back Baby, Who Needs The Peace Corps, Concentration Moon and Flower Punk. On We're Only In It For The Money, possibly The Mothers' best album for Verve, the cover parodies Sergeant Pepper and the lyrics (eg. Flower Punk) were full of swipes at the product of the psychedelic era-the flower children who Zappa seems to have regarded as just as phoney as the earlier targets of his satire. This was also their best-selling album peaking at No 30 in the U.S. Album Charts, but several of the others sold well:- Absolutely Free, Uncle Meat and Live At The Fillmore East - June 1971 all made the Top 50; Burnt Weeny Sandwich, 200 Motels and Just Another Band From L.A. made the Top 100; Freak Out!, Cruising With Ruben And The Jets, and Chunga's Revenge made the Top 150 and Mothermania, Lumpy Gravy, Hot Rats, Waka/Jawaka and Weasels Ripped My Flesh all made the Top 200.

MOTHERMANIA

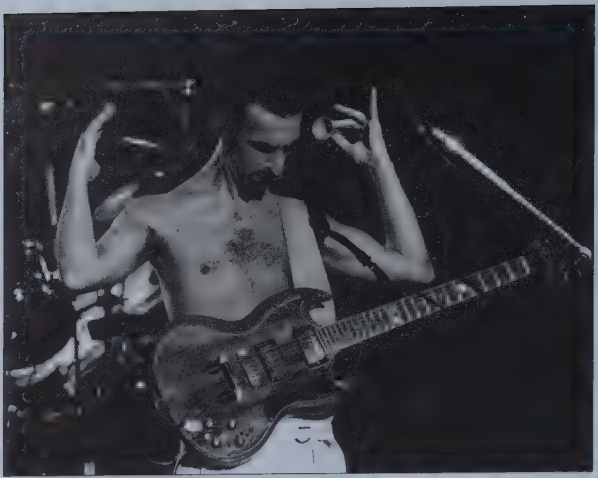
FRANK ZAPPA - Mothermania LP.



FRANK ZAPPA.

Zappa's solo albums (solo is misleading, they often included members of The Mothers as well as session musicians and sometimes extravagant orchestras) are also of interest. For Lumpy Gravy, which was full of lush orchestral passages and taped dialogue, he was supported by the Abnuceals Emuukha Electronic Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. Hot Rats is generally regarded as one of his best solo albums and tracks like Peaches En Regalia and Willie The Pimp capture Zappa's guitar work and writing at its best.

Weasels Ripped My Flesh is a collection of live material recorded between 1967-69. Stand out tracks include the surreal Didja Get Any Onya? and The Orange County Lumber Truck is a driving instrumental which is interrupted by manic laughter. Burnt Weeny Sandwich is a predominantly instrumental album centred around a 22-minute track The House I Used To Know.

In May 1971, Zappa put together the movie score for 200 Motels and then flew to England to perform the piece at the Royal Albert Hall with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. At the 11th hour the Hall's Administrators cancelled the gig considering the lyrics obscene. Zappa eventually lost the resulting legal battle which wasn't heard until 1975. The '200 Motels' film, described as a 'surrealistic documentary', was shot in London in seven days and was one of his biggest flops. Far better was his Fillmore East June, 1971 album recorded at one of the final Fillmore East concerts where he appeared on stage with John and Yoko. It captured The Mothers at their most vulgar on tracks like What Kind Of Girls Do You Think We Are? and Do You Like My New Car?. He also issued the Tears Began To Fall single under the pseudonym Billy Dexter to see if it would sell. It didn't.

In December 1971, he was pushed from the stage by the boyfriend of a fan towards the end of a concert at London's Rainbow. He suffered multiple fractures of the leg and was confined to a wheelchair for nine months. His next album, Just Another Band From L.A., had been recorded at the University of California in Los Angeles on 7 August 1971, but wasn't released until May 1972. It suffered from over-indulgence in places but also included plenty of humour and a 25-minute mini-opera Billy The Mountain, which had some particularly amusing moments. The Grand Wazoo and Waka/Jawaka were produced from his wheelchair and are generally regarded as two of his better albums.

Having wound up Bizarre/Straight Zappa launched Overnite Sensation on his own Discreet label. It was one of his most commercial albums and it consisted of comedy dialogue and slick rock songs. The Mothers also embarked on an extensive world-wide tour.

Apostrophe consisted of tightly structured rock songs with bizarre lyrics and song titles like Don't Eat The Yellow Snow, St Alfonzo's Pancake Breakfast and Stink-Foot. It was one of his finest albums and on the 10th anniversary of the Mothers it made No. 10 in the Billboard charts. The same year he issued an extravagant 2-LP set Live At The Roxy and Elsewhere. It featured a whole side of audience 'Participation/Humiliation'. In October 1974, back in New York, Zappa was reported to be working on a new rock opera called 'Hunchenfoot'.

For July 1975's One Size Fits All, the previous brass section having been replaced by a small rock line-up. Some tracks were taken from a live concert in Helsinki, Finland in 1974. The same year he re-united with Captain Beefheart, they toured together and the result was released on Bongo Fury. All but two studio tracks came from a performance at Armadillo World Headquarters, Austin in Texas on 20 and 21 May. As Virgin claimed to have Beefheart signed to them they took out an injunction preventing Warner Brothers distributing the album in England.

Zappa's relationship with long-time manager Herb Cohen ended acrimoniously in 1976. Zappa sued Cohen for creaming off more than he was allocated from DiscReet Records and signing acts Zappa did not approve of. Cohen filed a lawsuit against Zappa in return, which effectively froze the money they had both gained from an out-of-court settlement with MGM over the rights of the early Mothers of Invention recordings. It also denied Zappa access to any of his previously recorded material during the trials. Zappa therefore took his personal master copies of the rock-oriented Zoot Allures directly to Warner Brothers who released it in 1976.

Zappa turned his talent to production work, particularly in the late sixties, when he produced albums for artists like the GTO's, Beefheart, Wild Man Fischer and Lord Buckley.

The Verve albums have all become quite scarce, especially in mono, and are now selling for quite high prices. Zappa continued throughout the seventies and eighties and into the nineties to experiment with many different musical styles - with varying degrees of success. His output was prolific. Herb Cohen said in 1971 'I can't get him to take a fucking vacation'. His music became more commercial with time, but the lyrics remained witty and socially aware. He was arguably one of the most fascinating musicians and writers to emerge from America's West Coast.

As for The Mothers, who carried on with many different line-ups and several additional personnel until 1976, Estrada later played with Little Feat; Mundi formed Rhinoceros, Artie Tripp played with Beefheart; Bunk Gardner with Geronimo Black, Don Preston played for Flo and Eddie and Sherwood for Ruben and The Jets (who were assembled by Zappa). There have been several compilations and retrospectives of his material. Please see the discography above for details of some of them.

Frank Zappa died, at the age of 52, on December 4th, 1993, after losing his battle with cancer. (VJ, plus additional discographical info from CF and the German fanzine/4-volume book "The Torchum Never Stops"/SR)

Zephyr was formed in the fall of 1968 when Tommy Bolin and John Faris teamed up with David and Candy Givens. Bolin and Faris (ex-Us Too) had been playing together in a band called Ethereal Zephyr, while David and Candy led their own band Brown Sugar. Jazz drummer John Chamberlain was enlisted and the band moved into a house together and started writing new material. From the start Zephyr was a vehicle to showcase Candy's vocals. By the spring of 1969 they had recorded a three-song demo and had connected with a Denver promoter who arranged for them to do a short West Coast tour. They played the major venues of the day: the Fillmore West, the Avalon Ballroom, the Whisky-A-Go-Go etc. and received offers from several major labels.

An offer from ABC was accepted, and the band was rushed into the studio with a recording engineer for a producer. The "producer" didn't like the way the band played and forced each member to record their parts repeatedly, with some songs being recorded 20 times or more; while the resulting album does showcase Tommy at his most aggressive and unbridled, it sounds strained and tired; cassette copies of the three-song demo traded among fans show what the first album should have been.

John Chamberlain was replaced at Tommy's behest, with Bobby Berge just before the second album; Going Back To Colorado was recorded. The lyrics and arrangements are far more cerebral than the previous effort, yet are still accessible. Candy's voice was finally given the arrangements and presentation it warranted. Lester Bangs finished his review of the album in Rolling Stone by stating "The main thing about Zephyr is that they write interesting songs and know how to record them with polish and professionalism and those little extra touches that make arrangements intriguing. As a result their second album is unusually substantial. That's saying something these days."

In early 1971, David Givens made the decision that he wanted John Chamberlain back. When Bobby left, Tommy left with him and guitarist Kim King was hired to replace Tommy. Kim King had previously been in the Denver outfit Lothar and The Hand People and had actually contributed to the second Zephyr album when he worked for Eddie Kramer at Electric Ladyland studios. Kim was in the band only long enough to complete one tour of the West Coast.

FRANK ZAPPA - Just Another Band From L.A. LP.

Immediately upon leaving Zephyr Tommy formed his own Energy with Bobby Berge and Kenny Passarelli (previously with The Beast). Tommy also formed another outfit The T & O Shortline with blues musician Otis Taylor. Both of these bands eventually petered out.

In 1972, David and Candy put together a new band The Bees. This band featured guitarist Jock Bartley, keyboard player Dan Smyth, drummer Michael Wooten and Otis Taylor on mandolin, but Warner Brothers balked at the new name saying they had too much money invested in the Zephyr moniker. The third album Sunset Ride (recorded without Otis Taylor) introduced a new sound, seamlessly combining elements of blues, country, psychedelia and jazz into their own distinctive style. The album is regarded by most of the band's followers as their finest moment. The vocals of Candy Givens give this pleasant soft-rock album some class with the wordless vocals on the title track whilst the finale Winter Always Finds Me has a Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young circa Déjà Vu feel. Eventually Chamberlain and Faris returned to Zephyr and, by the time the band toured in support of the third album, the band line-up was the same as the first album, with the exception of Bartley replacing Bolin. After two more tours, David and Candy were burned out having been on the road almost constantly since 1969, they called it quits.

Jock Bartley went on to play with Tim Goodman, Gram Parsons, Chris Hillman and Firefall, which he leads to this day. Michael Wooten was also in the original Firefall line-up, and then formed his own band Navarro, which recorded for Capitol. He toured and recorded with Carole King and in the nineties surfaced as a founding member of Leftover Salmon.

In 1973, after Energy and the Sunset Ride incarnation of Zephyr had folded, David and Candy formed a cover band The Legendary 4-Nikators with Harold Feilden, Mick Manresa and Tommy. Harold and Mick had been the founders of Flash Cadillac and The Continental Kids. Ironically, Tommy had been the first guitarist Harold approached when he was putting Flash Cadillac together, Jock Bartley was the second. It was during this time that it was decided to again reform Zephyr. A half-dozen or so gigs were staged and the Zephyr Live CD is from one of those dates. This CD shows the band in stellar form and Bolin never sounded better or demonstrated more restraint than he does here in the jazz context of the epic Pharoah Sanders/Leon Thomas composition The Creator Has A Master Plan.

Tommy left the 4-Nikators after getting an offer to join The James Gang. He later played with Deep Purple, jazz drummers Billy Cobham and Alphonse Mouzon and was touring in support of his second solo album when he died of a heroin overdose in 1976.

The 4-Nikators pressed on; sometimes joined by Otis Taylor. Over the years there were occasional gigs done under different names such as David and Candy and Friends, Candy Your Dinner's Ready, Otis Taylor's All Star Blues Band, The 5-Nikator and FMOZ.

ZEPHYR - Going Back To Colorado LP.

In 1977, David and Candy reformed Zephyr again, this time with David on guitar, Rocky Duarte on bass, Merry Stewart on keyboards, and John Oliver on drums. This line-up was unable to secure a record deal but did issue one live track on a Denver radio station sponsored compilation. Both Duarte and Stewart had previously been with The Freddi-Henchi Band. The band would continue to go through personnel changes, including the return of Otis Taylor on bass. Eventually, the momentum faded and Zephyr again broke up.

By the start of the eighties The 4-Nikators were still a viable and popular live act. David Givens was back on bass and Eddie Turner was handling the guitar duties. In 1982, the inevitable happened and Zephyr was reformed with Eddie Turner on guitar and they recorded the fourth album Heartbeat. A proposed fifth album was in the "we're talking about it" stage when Candy Givens drowned in a jacuzzi after passing out from a mix of alcohol and quaaludes in 1984.

In 1995, Otis Taylor formed his own band with guitarist Eddie Turner and childhood friend Kenny Passarelli.

By the late nineties it seemed certain that Zephyr would exist now only as a memory, though one that local fans will never forget. But in the summer of 1997 all surviving members of the original Zephyr regrouped for one weekend of shows in Denver. Accompanying David Givens, John Chamberlain, and John Faris were Jock Bartley, Otis Taylor, Eddie Turner, Anna Givens on vocals and guest guitarist Ralph Patlan. They performed material from the first two albums plus a lengthy version of The Creator Has A Master Plan that was the highlight of the shows. (DMo/AA/JSa)

An Indianapolis, Indiana outfit whose album of self-penned compositions is worth checking out. The material is mostly strong, there's lots of keyboards and sound effects on side two but good harmonies too. Side one is quite Beatlesque. The prime cut You Never Win opens with a backwards guitar intro; The Sweetest Part is first class synthesised rock and I Don't Understand and I Need It Higher add the band's own dimension to The Beatles' early seventies sound. On side two, Stoney Wellitz has a jazzy intro that gives way to a country/honky tonk sound; Hope has an appealing organ with the sea intro and is a decent organ-led number; Fool's Paradise has an unusual beginning with distorted vocals and the finale The Piper is regarded as a highlight by many who hear this album. Recommended.

The Zerfas brothers also released a single as Match II - Make A Little Wine/Incident (700 West 730820) in 1973.

45s: Blow Your Mind/Fly Today (Garland 2002) 1967
Lid To Go/Hey Joe (Garland 2003) 1967

From Knappa and Svensen in the far northern reaches of Oregon, this uncharted band released two very fine slabs of garage-psych.

So far only Blow Your Mind has been exhumed - on Bury My Body (CD). This has echoes of early Clear Light and features good fuzz and a rippin' solo. On Fly Today the singer builds up to larynx-wrenching screams and there's more great guitar. The follow-up features the lighter Lid To Go backed with what starts out as a straight, Love-inspired version of Hey Joe until they start cookin' in the last minute or so, first with a minor-chord fuzz workout, then a gentle simmer over pumping bass, before serving up a final blast of fuzz frenzy (which fades out too soon). ALBUM: 1(A) WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE (Imperial LP-12456) 1970

NB: (1) reissued on vinyl (Pickwick SPC-3715) 1979 with one track omitted (Fiery Emblems). (1) also reissued on CD (One Way 72438 19048 24) 1996.

Born in 1947 in Canada and classically trained, Warren Zevon moved to Los Angeles in the mid-sixties. A gifted songwriter, The Turtles decided to record two of his songs (Outside Chance and Like The Seasons), the latter being the flip to their million-selling Happy Together. He was then offered a recording deal with White Whale and recorded three singles as Lyme and Cybelle. After that he played with Smokestack Lightning, The Brothers and eventually met Kim Fowley. He wrote and arranged two songs on Fowley's Good Clean Fun album (Kangaroo and I'm Not Young Anymore) and through him got a contract with Imperial (who were bought by United Artists shortly after).

Dedicated to Fowley and produced by Zevon with the help of Bones Howe, Wanted Dead Or Alive is an excellent album, full of good guitars, interesting lyrics and strong songs (Gorilla, A Bullet For Ramona and Travelin In The Lightnin'), between blues, folk-rock and pop. The title track is a cover of The Rogues and was co-written by Fowley. Another cut, She Quit Me was used on the 'Midnight Cowboy' soundtrack.

On the album the rhythm section is comprised of former Arthur Brown drummer Drachen Theaker and Skip Battyn. Mars Bonfire also guested but is uncredited. One of the last albums released on Imperial, it flopped and Zevon was unable to find a new label.

After that commercial failure, Zevon became the musical director of the Everly Brothers, before relaunching his solo career in 1975 when his songs were covered by Linda Ronstadt. A long-time friend of Jackson Browne and David Lindley, Zevon continued touring and recording until his death in 2003.

Wanted Dead Or Alive has been compiled on In The Beginning (LP). (SR)

45s: Yummy, Yummy, Yummy/Chewy Chewy (Decca 32527) 1969
Baby I Know It/Peace Of Mind (Decca 32607) 1970

Produced by Vinny Testa this was probably a studio outfit from the New York region. Both sides of the first single are included on the album. The second single is non-album; unfortunately neither side is up to much - bouncey brass-pop and brass-rock.

Their concept album was created by Decca. They had the music tracks and needed a band to add the vocals. Zig Zag's manager, Lou Bolognese had a contact at Decca and so the band was hired. Apparently the only song the band played the instruments on was Indian Giver, although they were decent musicians. It just happened that way. The band eventually broke up. Their album has become collectable now. It includes covers of bubblegum classic like Little Bit Of Soul, Hanky Panky, Simon Says, Yummy Yummy Yummy, 123 Red Light, Chewy Chewy and Indian Giver. (VJ/MW)

NB: (1) came in a cover consisting of two 'slicks' held together with plastic tape! (1) reissued on vinyl and on CD (Way Back Records MMLP/CD 66017) 1994.

Zipper was a loud, raw hard-rock outfit from Portland, Oregon. Fred Cole had earlier been in The Lollipop Shoppe and The Weeds and is currently in Dead Moon. This album had really powerful vocals but the songwriting was a little uninspired.

Of the other members, Jim Roos became a computer programmer and plays in many different and successful Northwest bands. Lorry Erck is a skilled welder who continues to play music and is currently a partner in RSE, a production company involved in Pro Audio applications. Greg Shadoan also works as a computer engineer and is currently playing with The Tom Feeny Band. (CF/VJ/GS)

NB: (1) reissued on CD (OXF 005) 2008. (1) reissued on CD (Erebus ERCD014) 2009.

ZIPPER - Self Titled LP.

Dellwood was a subsidiary of Guinness and this album is essentially a second Jasper Wrath album. It was one of two sets of tracks they recorded. The other is credited to Arden House and this is the better and more experimental of the two. Both were released without the band's knowledge or consent by the tax-scam label Dellwood. The musical menu is symphonic progressive rock with lots of synthesizers, catchy hooks and some attractive vocals and it's one of the best of this genre in the USA. The jazzy-influenced Ghost Of Way which features lots of mellotron and a wide range of instruments is usually considered their magnum opus. The finale Day After Day is a very catchy song, which seems to capture the monotony of some people's lives and the opener Touch The Sky is another highlight. Now Is The Time is a pretty ballad and To Be Alive has a lovely piano, but is one of the more mainstream tracks. Comparisons are often made with bands like Yes. Some of the Zoldar & Clark tracks also turned up on Jasper Wrath's 1996 2-CD anthology, but if prog-rock is your bag that CD reissue on Erebus shouldn't disappoint you. (VJ)

I Cannot Lie later resurfaced on Highs In The Mid-Sixties, Vol. 13 - Texas Part Three (LP), although the band came from Shickshinny, Pennsylvania. With some snotty punk vocals and ringing guitar work it should appeal to fans of the genre.

You'll also find I Cannot Lie on Teenage Shutdown, Vol. 9: Teen Jangler Blowout! (LP & CD) and Yeah Yeah Yeah (CD). (VJ/MW/MM)

45: When The World Turns Cold/
We Chose To Walk (World Pacific 77896) 1968

From the Los Angeles environs, this band is of interest due to the presence of Brian Monsour, who was in an early line-up of Kaleidoscope. This is highly proficient rock and quite majestic in places, with some great passages of keyboards and violin, but the lyrics and imagery are totally off-the-wall, more in the weird'n'wacky camp than the weird'n'wonderful. 45: Sunset Strip/One Night Man (Sunburst 775) 1968

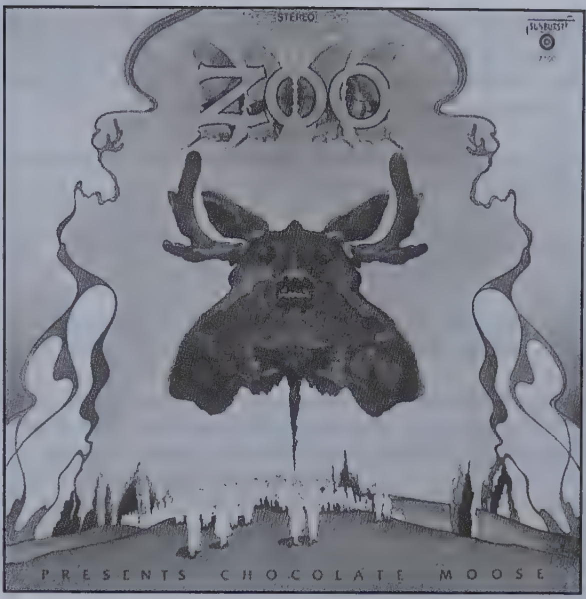
The band was formed by students at Hamilton High School in west Los Angeles. Wellesley left after the release of the single in December 1968 and was replaced by Gary Witkosky. The band became known as Mad Dog, recording an album in September which failed to secure a release and at that point they folded.

The album is on an Ed Cobb label and he produced and co-arranged it. It's an interesting album of rock with blue-eyed soul, vestiges of mid-sixties punk and some psychedelia, indeed, the most psychedelic and relevant cuts to this book are Love Machine, Have You Been Sleepin and From A Camel's Hump. It is now a collectors' item. The non-album single is not as good, though the raucously sung funk-edged Sunset Strip is redeemed by a searing guitar break and wah-wah'd outro.



THE ZOO - Presents Chocolate Moose LP.

The band continued to record under the name "Joyful Noise" and a second album was finished in 1969. The record made it to test pressing stage before being cancelled. This album was finally issued as Mad Dog: "Dawn Of The Seventh Sun". An impressive dual-guitar progressive/hard-rock effort, this may interest some readers. The 2004 reissue unveils the full story of The Zoo, Mad Dog, and the success that some of them went on to achieve. Leese & Flicker were involved with Terry Jacks' international chart-topper and million-seller Seasons In The Sun, leading to even greater success with the Wilson sisters and AOR giants Heart over the next two decades. Zoo producer Morgan Cavett struck gold later with The Captain & Tennille's The Way I Want To Touch You.

45s: Bachelors Got It Made/Telephony (Nu-Sound 711) 1964
Banana Man/I'm Just A Guy (Coconut Groove 2037) 1968

This band came from Flint, Michigan. Mike Snyder wrote both sides of the first single, which is very derivative rock'n'roll with humorous lyrics, almost like a comedy skit. Gary Story was later in Plain Brown Wrapper.

Ignore the songs on the discredited compilation Thee Unheard Of (LP). That was a con; it featured forged acetates with genuine songs but they were not by the bands listed (see Noblemen 4 for an example). (MW/VJ)

From Roseburg, Oregon this band made a trip to the Bay Area, laid down four tracks and had them pressed simultaneously as a pair of singles for self-distribution, on Leo De Gar Kulka's Golden State Recorders' custom label. Unavailable for the Big Beat compilations featuring Golden State recordings, the bouncy organ-pop-punker One And Only Girl has cropped up since on Fuzz, Flaykes, And Shakes, Vol. 2 (LP & CD) and You've Had Your Chance has resurfaced on Quagmire Vol. 1 (CD). 45: Together/Dark Of The Morning (Hexagon no#) 1971

From Minneapolis, both sides of this single are featured on Litter - Rare Tracks (LP) on Eva. The assumption is that they were connected to the Litter in some way since they were also produced by Warren Kendrick. That may be the only link since we already know that The Electras/Twas Brillig was a separate outfit and no definite details have emerged on this lot. The style here is pretty mellow rock and seems to have little in common with The Litter.

You can also find Dark Of The Morning on A Lethal Dose Of Hard Psych (CD). (MW)

Poignant orchestrated folk-pop with flute - a folkie protest about society's changing values and the hypocrisy of it all - The Revolution's Over is a sad comment on the end of an exciting decade of youth's self-discovery and assertion. The flip is brassy harmony pop. (MW)

This alphabetically-ultimate group was formed in Los Angeles by guitarist Glen Duncan, who'd been in a couple of Hollywood bands in the early-to-mid sixties.

Frank Kusak's Midnight Train To L.A. is a smooth rocker with a locomotive rhythm section and a great fuzz break. The Kusak-Duncan composed flip is ubercool rock with reverb and understated washes of fuzz that'll raise the hairs on the back of your neck. This extremely obscure single would appear to be their sole legacy.

There was another band called Zygoat with a synth-rock single and album on Polydor in 1974, but this is unconnected to the above act. (MW)

ALBUM: 1(A) OPEN FOR BUSINESS (Traffic CS 2001) 1970

This album was recorded at the Record Plant in New York with Rick Shorter producing. It's basically the work of a bar band with lots of horns that some dealers now try to pass off as prog or psych. Beware! (NW/VJ/CF)

REVERBERATION IV Compilation CD.

'You are now holding the brand new version of the most comprehensive guide to US psychedelic, garage and hippie rock ever published. It's been assembled with help from avid record collectors around the world and this edition covers a wider timeframe too.
The book provides an A-Z listing of relevant artists with discographies, personnel details, band histories, comment on the music and, in some cases, includes the personnel recollections of band members.
Individual entries also include details of reissues, appearances on compilations and album and 45 chart placings.
There is also a rarity scale for albums.
For many this is the US rock bible.'
